Japanese Peace Envoy Flying to U.S. to Speed Settlement in Pacific

Former Ambassador To Germany Will Aid Nomura; Tokyo Sees Silver Lining

By Otto D. Tolischus
Wireless—Copyright, 1941, by the New York Times

Tokyo, Nov. 5.—Hopes of maintaining peace in the Pacific rose with a bound today when the government announced it has dispatched Saburo Kurusu, one of Japan's most experienced diplomats, to Washington to assist Ambassador Kichisaburo Nomura in settling outstanding questions as quickly as possible.

According to comment in official quarters, Kurusu was sent to the United States in view of the serious situation which has developed between the two countries, in an effort to facilitate amicable American-Japanese negotiations based on former Premier Prince Mumimaro Konoye's "peace message" to President Roosevelt.

Diplomatic quarters, inclined to go further, hailed dispatch of the new envoy as a silver lining that suddenly rimmed the war clouds over the Pacific at a moment when they began to look dark indeed.

Success Uncertain

(The urgent mission of Kurusu was regarded in Washington as indicating how anxious Japan is to reach an agreement on outstanding questions with this country.

(Whether he will succeed was uncertain. Some estimates in Washington were that the chances were about one out of ten. However, according to informed sources, the situation looks better than it did recently. At least it is believed that the fresh conversations may ease the situation for the Tokyo government in the Diet when that body convenes on November 15. Presumably the government will be in a position to plead for patience pending the outcome of the Washington conversations.

(Kurusu is regarded as pro-American and anti-German. Although he signed the tripartite agreement for his government when he was Ambassador in Berlin, he did so under instructions, and it is understood that personally he was opposed to it. Not only has he served in the

Cards Foretell Kurusu Fortune

Tokyo, Nov. 5 (AP).—Saburo Kurusu played cards excitedly with his family during the last moments before he left on his special mission to Washington, intimates of the diplomat disclosed today.

His idea, they said, was that the luck of the cards would foretell his fortune on the fateful mission. The family did not tell how the cards fell.

Hopkins Enters Hospital Here

Harry L. Hopkins, President Roosevelt's friend and most valued trouble-shooter, was a patient at Naval Hospital last night undergoing a check-up.

He was taken to the hospital from Union Station early yesterday in a White House limousine, after traveling here from Hyde Park with President Roosevelt. It was learned that he was feeling ill when he boarded the Presidential special the night before at Highlands, near Hyde Park.

Foe Stopped Dead Before Moscow

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Nov. 5.—The German drive on Moscow has been stopped dead everywhere, and in at least one area of the Donets Basin the Nazis are in retreat, "leaving behind them heaps of dead and many guns," the Russians announced officially tonight in a broadcast.

The Germans now are burying their huge tanks for use as pillboxes to counter a big Red counter-drive, the Moscow radio said. Trenches also are being dug for Nazi infantrymen, it added.

This development followed a big two-day Soviet land and air attack which it was said destroyed 176 Nazi tanks, 25 field guns, a long supply convoy of 350 ammunition and infantry trucks and 30 tank trucks, the Russians said.

At Tula, 100 miles south of Moscow, the Russians said the fighting was continuing, too—"but the enemy is not fighting with the same ardor as when he began the offensive."

The official radio announcement summed up the military situation thus:

Three days ago a big Red counter-offensive began on the right flank, presumably in the Kalinin area, 95 miles northwest of Moscow, after a German drive which left hundreds of Nazi dead on the field had been stopped.

The Red tank forces then destroyed 15 Nazi tanks and cut through the German ranks to mow down 300 Nazis in one engagement and 600 in another.

In the Maloyaroslavets sector, 65 miles southwest of the capital where the German drive now has been halted for a month, the Russians claimed to have "severely mauled" a number of German divisions.

Smashing 67 German tanks in the Mozhaisk area, 57 miles west of Moscow, during last night's operations, the Nazis were said to have

New 5 Billion Tax Bill Given To Congress

Income Levies Would Be Deducted From Pay Checks

By James Shepley
United Press Staff Writer

The Treasury last night proposed that Congress start work immediately on a gigantic tax program which would yield an estimated $4,800,000,000 through still higher social security taxes and a new income tax levy to be deducted from payrolls by employers.

A member of the House Ways and Means Committee said the Treasury proposed a 15 per cent rate for the new at-the-source income tax. He said normal personal income tax exemptions would be deducted before the tax is computed.

The proposed income taxes would become effective January 1, 1942. They would not be retroactive, thus applying only to 1942 income. The social security payroll tax increases become effective whenever they are enacted.

The program, as revealed by Congressional sources, calls for:

1. The at-the-source income, or withholding tax. Its yield was estimated at from two to three billion dollars, depending on the rate finally adopted.

2. Imposition of a 1 per cent payroll tax on employes, to be withheld and paid by employers, for the Social Security system's unemployment compensation fund. This would bring in 450 million dollars.

U-Boats Move Closer to U. S., Admiral Says

Nova Scotia Operations Forecast; Subs Fought in Sight of Newfoundland

By the Associated Press

Toronto, Nov. 5.—German submarines, already reported seen from the Newfoundland coast, will be operating close to Nova Scotia within a short time, Rear Admiral Percy Nelles, the chief of the Canadian naval staff, predicted tonight after the christening of a corvette designed to fight U-boats.

(If U-boats reach Nova Scotian waters, they would be adjacent to areas of the United States. The western coast of Nova Scotia is about 50 miles from the easternmost point of the United States and almost the same distance from Campobello Island, New Brunswick, where President Roosevelt has a summer home. Cape Sable, southern tip of Nova Scotia, is about 250 miles east of Portland, Me.)

Earlier, when the corvette Oakville was christened at Oakville, Navy Minister Angus Macdonald revealed the reported presence of submarines off Newfoundland and said two had been attacked. He said one was possibly sunk last month by a Canadian corvette and a coastal command plane in the Belle Island Channel.

This channel, at the mouth of the strait between Newfoundland and Labrador opposite the northern tip of Newfoundland, is about 400 miles by air north of the United States defense base on Newfoundland.

"There are many submarines now

Death Toll Reaches 80

Deaths this date last year 58
District total last year 79

A 6-year-old boy died under the wheels of a hit-run auto yesterday—the District's eightieth traffic fatality for the first ten months of this year. Washington had 79 fatal accidents for all of 1940.

The youngster, Marvin Marshall, Negro, of 70 Myrtle Street Northeast, was struck, according to police, as he ran from behind a parked auto into the path of the auto in front of his home.

Witnesses told police that the car sped east on Myrtle Street, making a left turn at First Street.

Marvin was returning to his home from the store across the street when the accident took place. His mother, Mrs. Mrs. Ruth Marshall, ran out to the street on hearing the cries of neighbors, and she held the child on her lap as they were rushed to Freedmen's Hospital in a neighbor's machine. The boy was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital.

George Bownes, 25, Negro, of 1718 Fourth Street Northwest, sought by police as driver of the hit-run car, later presented himself at Eleventh Precinct Station. He was charged with leaving the scene of an accident after colliding, and held for action of the coroner's jury. Bownes told police he drove through Myrtle Street about the time the accident occurred but denied that he had struck the child.

Meanwhile in Rockville Md. Florence Dove, 51, Negro, of that town was killed when she was struck by an automobile while crossing Route 240, just north of the town. She was pronounced dead on arrival at

General Alarm

Firemen Battle Blaze at Monticello Hotel

Four persons were burned to death, 12 were rescued from the flames, and 20 others fled to the street in their night clothes when a general alarm blaze swept through the Monticello Hotel in Alexandria early this morning.

Three of the dead were found on the third floor of the four-story brick structure about an hour after the first alarm was sounded, and the bodies could not be immediately identified.

One of the persons removed from the hotel was in such critical condition, firemen removed him to the hospital in an oxygen tent. He was dead on arrival.

Nine Alexandria fire trucks and two from Arlington County responded to the scene, 807 King street, and fought for hours to keep the flames from spreading through the historic block on one of the city's main streets.

A dozen occupants of the hotel required treatment for smoke inhalation, burns, and lacerations from broken glass. Taken to Alexandria Hospital, and treated there, were Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. James, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Barnes, and Mrs. Herman Hood.

At least 12 persons had to be carried or helped out by firemen after they had been trapped in upper stories by the flames, or overcome by smoke. One man, a fourth-floor occupant, driven from his room by the intense heat, climbed out the window and hung onto a neon sign until firemen could raise a ladder and bring him down.

A hotel clerk estimated there were between 35 and 40 guests registered last night in the 35-room hotel. Most

Lawyer Says He Paid Langer $56,800 for Land Sight Unseen

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

An Iowa lawyer whose returns in North Dakota bond deals ran into tens of thousands of dollars told the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee yesterday that he paid Senator William Langer $56,800 for land without knowing how much it was worth.

Edward Burke, former Nebraska Senator and counsel for North Dakota citizens fighting to unseat Langer, once their governor, last night announced he would call three independent appraisers who would tell the committee the land is worth about $5700.

In an emotion-packed climax to three days of hearings on Langer's fitness to hold his Senate seat, Gregory Brunk, of Des Moines, who looks like a deacon and can speak with the fervor of an evangelist, said he felt Langer had been persecuted by his enemies and he felt this so strongly that:

The Baruch Price Plan

President Reported Favoring Overall Limit on Pay, Staples

By Henry N. Dorris
Copyright by New York Times

President Roosevelt, after a conference yesterday with his advisers on anti-inflationary control, was reported on Capitol Hill to be leaning toward the so-called Baruch plan to place an overall price limit on all commodities and wages.

Mr. Roosevelt talked at length with Leon Henderson, administrator of price control, and his attorney, David Ginsberg, who declined to comment upon leaving the White House except to admit that price control was discussed. They said the President had asked that no statement be made for publication.

Strengthening the report that the Administration, as an effective means of preventing inflation, was leaning strongly to the Baruch plan were two developments, as follows:

1. That Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada had convinced the President during the talks of Friday and Saturday, that the Canadian "overall price measure" was working splendidly.

2. The Railway Mediation Board in its report yesterday virtually

Selectees Renege on Threats To Go Over Hill—Too Busy!

By Edward T. Folliard

In the uncertain days of last August, when Congress was angrily debating an extension clause in the National Service Selective Act, soldiers in some of the camps were chalking a defiant inscription on the walls and on artillery pieces: O-H-I-O.

It meant "Over the hill in October," and it was the selectee's way of saying that, when his year's service was done, he was leaving this man's Army no matter what Congress or the War Department said about it.

Well, October has come and gone, but the hills have yet to feel the rush of deserting selectees. The boys, it seems, have been too busy

Plans for Vote Moved Up

Senate Leaders Seek to Limit Debate on Free Shipping Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Senate Administration leaders, claiming votes in hand to pass the President's free shipping bill, prepared to move for limitation of debate today as the Senate passed its ninth day in talk without signs of a break.

With a long list of Senators still waiting to speak, plans for a vote were moved up to tomorrow and notice served of a Saturday session if the drive for earlier action fails.

Returning from a White House conference at which the President asked prompt approval of the bill as it now stands without labor riders, leaders rechecked their voting strength and found it approximately as follows:

For the bill, 46 Democrats, 5 Republicans and 1 Independent. Total who will vote for or be paired for, 52.

Against the bill, 22 Republicans, 16 Democrats and 1 Progressive. Total aganist, 39.

Still doubtful, 4 Democrats and 1 Republican. Total doubtful, 5.

Senate passage this week was the goal, and to this end Senators may be asked for unanimous consent to limit their speeches to 20 minutes. Only one or two opponents hinted action may be forced over until next week.

Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, and Senator Wheeler, of Montana (Democrats), took the floor against the bill yesterday, and Senator Hattie Caraway (Democrat), of Arkansas, mother of two sons in the service, spoke briefly for it. Wheeler assailed the measure for more than four hours and will resume at 11 a. m. today.

From the White House legislative conference, leaders meanwhile brought back word that the President wanted expedition on the bill in its present form rather than delay it with riders designed to curtail defense strikes. Two such amendments were pending, and it will be urged that they be withheld until the price bill reaches the Senate.

Highlights of yesterday's debate:

Wheeler, warning the bill meant another A. E. F. and frequently leaving his 21-page speech to engage other Senators in debate, told colleagues: "Vote to repeal the Neutrality Act, and you will soon be called upon to vote for war. Vote to repeal the Neutrality Act and you vote by indirection to destroy

Relative Issues

Defense Mediation Board deliberations on John L. Lewis' demands for a union shop in "captive" coal mines were believed yesterday to be complicated by the implications of such an award in the steel and shipbuilding industries' labor relations.

At a press conference following yesterday's executive sessions of the board, Chairman William H. Davis was asked if the problem of a closed shop in mines was being discussed "without relation" to other industries, specifically steel and ships. The owners of the captive mines involved in the current dispute are the Nation's largest steel companies, with shipyard subsidiaries.

Davis declined to answer the question. After a pause, however, he declared:

"I can say this much—the problem that the Mediation Board is confronted with is not an abstraction."

"The answer you just gave," a reporter countered, "is an abstraction."

"It was intended to be," Davis

Rail Heads, Unions Oppose U. S. Pay Plan

Roosevelt Board's Suggestions Fall Short of Demands

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Recommendations made yesterday by President Roosevelt's fact-finding board, calling for from 7½ to 13½ per cent wage increases for 1,150,000 railroad workers, met a sharply unfavorable reaction last night from both employers and unions.

In Chicago, chiefs of the "Big Five" operating brotherhoods, with 350,000 members, recommended against acceptance, while spokesmen for the railroads expressed themselves as disappointed.

Announcement of the action by the brotherhoods' leaders was made by A. F. Whitney, president of the Railroad Trainmen, oldest and largest union of the group.

Whether the recommendation for rejection would be followed by the unions, who must vote on the proposition, was not known. Under the law, the emergency board's findings are not binding on either party, but, in the past, public opinion has rarely failed ot secure acceptance without a strike.

In any event, the law forbids a strike within 30 days after the report has been made public.

The board's recommendations, far below the 30 per-cent raise demanded by the brotherhoods, was expected to cost the companies about 270 million dollars, which, when passed on to the public in the form

Witness' Memory 'Fails'

2 Magazine Officials Accused Of Obstructing Nazi Probe Jury

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

The two top executives of the magazine Scribner's Commentator were accused in the District Court yesterday of trying to obstruct the special grand jury investigation of German agents by close contact with one of their employes who was summoned as a witness.

The executives were accused by Special Prosecutor William Power Maloney when Bessie Feagin, the Scribner's sales and promotion manager, was haled before Justice James W. Morris for possible contempt of court action after her memory "failed" in the grand jury room.

Miss Feagin admitted to the grand jurors that George T. Eggleston, editor, and Douglas M. Stewart, publisher of Scribner's, came to Washington last Sunday and talked to her about her testimony after she left the grand jury room on Monday and Tuesday. They have left Washington, she said.

Subpenas were promptly issued, commanding both the magazine executives to come back and testify before the grand jury.

Miss Feagin was taken into court for admonition after nearly two hours of questioning on her third appearance before the investigators.

Prosecutor Maloney told Justice Morris that during the investigation of Adolf Hitler's propaganda machine it became necessary for the grand jurors to know the facts about certain mailing lists used by the agencies which disseminated propaganda.

Miss Feagin was asked about one such list, Maloney said, which had been made up from names supplied to Scribner's Commentator by for-

Casualties First Among Hundreds Of U. S. Volunteers For Technical Work

The British Press Service announced last night that 17 American volunteer members of Britain's civilian technical corps are missing and presumed lost in the U-boat sinking of the British merchantman carrying them to England. Two Canadians also were killed.

Press service officials said that as far as could be ascertained the 19 are the first to have come to harm in the hazardous passage across the Atlantic out of the hundreds recruited since last June to help man Britain's radio airplane locators and other technical defense works.

The formal announcement of the disaster stated:

"The British Press Service has been requested by the Royal Air Force delegation at Washington to announce that 19 members of the civilian technical corps are missing from the ship in which they were taking passage to the United Kingdom.

Next of Kin Notified

"The ship is presumed to have been sunk, but the date is uncertain and there is no knowledge yet of any survivors. Telegrams of condolence have been sent to the next of kin."

The list of those lost in the disaster follows:

Knox Asserts Navy Still Shoots on Sight

Joint Defense Plan

U. S., Canada Get Together On Industry

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

A new step toward integration of Canadian and American industrial machinery, designed to bring the combined defense production capacity of the two nations to maximum level, was announced simultaneously yesterday in Washington and Ottawa.

President Roosevelt, who surveyed Canadian-American defense problems in a Hyde Park conference with Prime Minister Mackenzie King last weekend, disclosed the appointment of a 12-man Joint Defense Production Committee.

The White House said the new committee will "survey the capacity and potential capacity for the production of defense materiel in each country to the end that in mobilizing the resources of the two countries each country should provide for the common defense effort the defense articles which it is best able to produce."

Fourth Agency

The White House announcement pointed out that the United States and Canada have already set up the Permanent Joint Board on Defense, the Joint Materials Coordinating Committee and the Joint Economic Committee, but that no machinery had been set up for coordinating defense production capacity.

The new committee is instructed to maintain liaison with the materials and economic groups and reports its own findings and recommendations to President and Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

President Roosevelt's statement emphasized that the committee will attempt, in its efforts to coordinate Canadian-American industrial effort in the present emergency, to minimize "maladjustments in the post-defense period."

Board is Named

Chairman of the American delegation will will be Milo Perkins, executive director of the Economic Defense Board. Other members are Undersecretary of the Navy Forrestal, Undersecretary of War Patterson, W. H. Harrison, director of the OPM production division, Lend-Lease Administrator Edward Stettinius, and Howard L. Vickery, vice chairman of the Maritime commission.

G. K. Sheils, deputy minister of the Department of Munitions and Supply, heads the Canadian delegation.

Losses in Battle Of Atlantic Fail To Change Orders

Secretary Knox declared yesterday that the Navy's orders to "shoot on sight" in its U-boat hunt stand unchanged as the result of the recent losses in the Battle of the Atlantic.

At his first conference since publication of the sinking of the destroyer Reuben James and torpedoing of the Navy tanker Salinas, Knox urged the arming of merchantmen as one means of reducing American ship losses in the Atlantic. Asked for comment on the attacks, he said.

"There is no change in the situation. The orders remain the same. The work is going on."

He replied to Capitol critics of the Administration's neutrality revision bill, who have charged that guns on merchant ships afford little protection against submarines.

"The submarines have no love for ships with guns on their decks," Knox said. "That means merchantmen, too. The subs do most of their hunting at night, on the surface, where they can use their own guns. This makes them extremely vulnerable to guns on other ships."

The Navy chief declined to comment on a Canadian announcement that German U-boats had been operating off the coast of Newfoundland, where the United States has bases. He also declined to express an opinion when asked if the recent attacks on American ships west and south of Iceland indicated a German effort to cut communications between the United States and its new Iceland bases.

"We cannot read what is in Hitler's mind," he replied.

Later in the day, the Navy announced the award of contracts for the construction of 10 fast picket boats for the Coast Guard. Five shipyards received awards totaling $806,540 for the craft, which will be used for inshore patrol and harbor protection work. They are 38 feet long and have a speed of 18 miles an hour.

If all goes according to schedule, Kurusu is expected to reach Washington by November 17.

Kurusu has been in the foreign service since 1910, serving in such posts as consul general at Manila, Honolulu, Chicago and New York, Minister to Peru and Ambassador to Belgium and Germany. In the latter capacity he signed the triple alliance on September 27 last year, though the driving force behind the alliance was former Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka and its originator was Lieut. Gen. Hirosi Oshima, who soon replaced Kurusu as Ambassador to Berlin.

He also has been director of the commercial bureau of the foreign office, so he is familiar with economic questions. He therefore is expected to assist Admiral Nomura in mastering the diplomatic intricacies which are held partly responsible for the slow progress of the Washington conversations.

Premier Hideki Tojo today reiterated before a plenary session of the privy council his government's inflexible determination to carry out Japan's "immutable" policies, aiming at successful conclusion of the China "incident" and establishment of the "greater East Asia coprosperity sphere."

How much leeway these policies leave for negotiations with the Unitde States, and whether Kurusu is carrying with him new proposals or fresh points of view on old ones, remains to be seen.

The President's Day

By International News Service

RETURN: Fit and glowing, the President got off the train from Hyde Park yesterday morning with one cup of coffee under his belt, sped to the White House for another before the day that broke some records.

LEGISLATION: After breakfast and a hasty gobbling of facts needed immediately, he received Congressional big leaguers in the White House Oval Room for 45 minutes of conversation on the Neutrality Act and on price control. The President would like the boys to get around to some legislation of some sort on the two scores pretty soon now. As always, the Secretary of State Hull led, followed by Vice President Wallace, Senator Tom Connally, Acting Speaker Jerry Cooper, Representative Eugene Cox and Sol Bloom.

FOR KEEPS: Revealing that William J. Donovan's Office of Coordination of Information is no mere emergency measure but probably here to stay, Administrative Assistant of OCI Tom Early and Public Buildings Commissioner W. E. Reynolds bounced in with bulging brief cases, unrolled for Presidential inspection proposed plans for a fine new home for OCI. As they exited, with plans, Price Fixit Leon Henderson and his counsellor in chief, David Ginsberg, came at the request of Mr. Roosevelt to answer a few questions, ask some in return.

INTERNATIONAL DASH: Keeping the ball rolling, FDR then received natty Undersecretary of State Welles and the Polish Ambassador Jan Ciechanowski, talked over a thing or three with them for 15 minutes.

FIREWORKS: In the middle of everyone's lunch hour, the first splutter that spoke of fireworks to come glinted in the executive office. At 1:40 p. m. the fun began. The Railroad Emergency Board came in with a nice little bit of reading matter—150 pages of report on the railroad wage controversy.

MERGER: Next came an announcement from the President that a joint production board had been knit together to coordinate the defense production of the United States and Canada. Thus, to a tangible conclusion came the lengthy weekend talks between the President and the Canadian Prime Minister at Hyde Park.

AND THE PICKETS: Shortly before three the much-picketed White House and President were given another jolt of ambulating placards. Claiming they represented Women United of New York and We, the Mothers of Chicago, 7 ladies shouldering placards stepped from cars, started marching up and down outside the White House. Among other things, they wanted—to impeach the President, drive the British out of Washington.

WINDUP: After a cyclonic day, the President lingered on at his desk, working, conferring by phone, blue-penciling and making marginal notes on national business that won't wait. Long after 6 p. m. he finally folded shop, took some homework with him and went over to the White House for dinner and an evening of work on the radio speech he will deliver from the East Room today at 3:30 p. m. on labor.

between Belle Isle and Iceland and there are others along the southern convoy route," said Macdonald.

U-boats also lie off Dakar, French West Africa, and "nearly always attack a convoy passing there, and they can generally get a ship," he added.

Macdonald's statement followed his assertion before the House of Commons last night that "more than one" U-boat had been sunk by Canadian ships and disclosure that Canada is building operational airdromes in Newfoundland and Labrador on the Atlantic and British Columbia on the Pacific.

In Halifax, Nova Scotia, focal point of Canadian naval activities, the news occasioned no surprise. It was recalled that a group of survivors reaching Halifax several weeks ago were understood to have been from a ship torpedoed near Newfoundland.

It was recalled, too, that during the World War German submarines several times operated within 25 or 30 miles of Halifax itself. Many persons at that time claimed to have seen them from shore.

Unofficial reports in New York said Canadian planes based at St. John's, Newfoundland, already had sunk several submarines, and marine observers said the Germans had been coming steadily closer to the American continent as German-American relations became worse.

Canada Expanding Shipbuilding Program

Ottawa, Nov. 5 (AP).—Munitions Minister C. D. Howe announced today that Canada's wartime shipbuilding program is being expanded with negotiations under way for construction of 55 corvettes, 25 minesweepers, 16 trawlers and 50 cargo ships. This is in addition to 230 naval units already under construction.

27,000 in Navy

Ottawa, Nov. 5—Navy Minister Angus MacDonald today gave the total of Canada's naval strength at 27,000 officers and men, while the number of ships has increased from 155 to 300.

Since the war began, MacDonald said, 7000 ships carrying 42,500,000 tons of cargo had left Canadian shores. Not one troop-carrying ship had lost a single man; 364 officers and men in the Canadian navy have been killed and 67 wounded.

Ottawa, Nov. 5 (INS).—More than 110,000 Canadian soldiers are now in active service outside of Canada, Leighton Ralston told Parliament today, adding that this total is exclusive of the air and naval forces.

U. S.-Free France Relations Urged

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Nov. 5.—A plea for official United States recognition of the Free French and establishment of regular diplomatic relations between this Government and the Free French organization because "we speak for a nation," was made today by Count Jacques de Sieyes, representative in the United States of Gen. de Gaulle, Free French leader.

Count de Sieyes, speaking at a luncheon of the Canadian Club here, pointed out that the United States recognized all of the governments in exile of the conquered nations of Europe, now set up in England.

"We do not represent ourselves as a government," he said, "but we speak for a nation.

Senate Leaders Seek to Limit Debate on Free Shipping Bill

Constitutional democracy."

Senator Caraway declared it "not so much a question of whether we will go into war but whether war will come to us." Announcing for full modification of the act, she said: "I plead for unity.* * * United we can withstand any attack."

Downey, Johnson Clash

Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, said arming of merchantmen would "weaken our Navy" at a critical time and declared repeal of major features of the Neutrality Act would amount to "concurrence in a shooting war which the President on his own authority has proclaimed."

Senator Downey (Democrat), of California, now counted as a vote for the bill, told the Senate that 75 to 80 per cent of the people of California favor Neutrality Act revision. Downey was swiftly challenged by Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, leading opponent of the bill, who jumped to his feet to dispute the statement.

A poll taken for the leadership meanwhile counted the following 46 Democrats as for or paired for the bill:

Opposing Democrats

Democrats listed as against were Senators Adams, Bilbo, Bone, Bulow, Byrd, Chavez, Clark of Idaho, Clark of Missouri, Gillette, Maloney, McCarran, Reynolds, Smith, Van Nuys, Walsh, Wheeler.

Democrats still regarded as doubtful were Senators Gerry, Johnson of Colorado, Russell and Tydings.

Only five Republicans and one independent were counted as definite votes for the bill. They were Senators Austin, Ball, Barbour, Bridges and Gurney. The independent was George Norris, of Nebraska.

Senator White (Republican), Maine, who in committee voted against Sections 2 and 3 but voted for reporting the bill as amended, was not included in the count of 52 for the bill, but may support it.

Yesterday's debate was marked by periodic clashes of which the Downey-Johnson set-to was typical.

Downey, who left the Senate's noninterventionist bloc to support the bill, told the Senate he had talked with a representative cross section of "all kinds and classes" in arriving at his conclusions that 75 to 80 per cent of Californians are opposed to Neutrality Act shipping restrictions.

Johnson protested that he was in touch with the people of California and the majority of his letters from mothers in the State oppose "going to war."

"I do not believe California wants to go to war," said Johnson. "Even if it were so, I would not vote to take this country into war and I stand here and protest against it with every bit of force I possess."

Short tempers flared again when Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, interrupted Wheeler's speech to shout that the Montanan was "preaching the same doctrine that Quisling preached in Norway" before it was subjected by the Nazis.

Wheeler Shouts Denial

Wheeler shouted a denial. He said he had been called Quisling "by a lot of small-minded people" but would "feel sorry for myself" if he could not deal with hard facts any better than the Senator from Oklahoma.

Resuming his speech, Wheeler said on his recent Western trips he was told by laborers, mothers, businessmen, farmers and WPA employes that they opposed the Administration's foreign course but "dared" not speak.

Mrs. Caraway, who rarely enters debate, spoke just before the recess.

"I have voted for the other preparedness measures with full knowledge of the responsibility which I assumed," she said. "I cast these votes believing it to be to the best interests of not only my sons, but those of the other fathers and mothers of America. Believing it to be right I can see no other way except to cast my vote for the pending measure. That I intend to do."

Nazi Crimean Drive Reaches Black Sea

Defending Forces Split Into 3 Parts, Berlin Declares

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Nov. 5.—A German spearhead driving through the Yaila Mountains which serve the Russians as a natural fortress was reported tonight to have reached the Black Sea to split the Soviet defenders of Crimea into three segments.

This maneuver announced by the high command would enable the Germans to spread fanwise along the coast in an attempt to take the Yaila positions from the rear.

In its attempt to convert the big peninsula into a base for attack on the Caucasus to the east another German unit was reported pounding beyond the burned-out city of Feodosiya, only 55 miles short of Kerch, a bridgehead to the Caucasus.

But there were no specific gains mentioned there either by the high command or the press.

In southwestern Crimea, a third German army apparently was fighting beyond Simferopol in the drive on Sevastopol, big Soviet naval base 40 miles away. But news of this front also was scanty.

German airmen were said to be raining explosives on that city to cut off any Soviet attempt to escape by sea and also to make that port useless for the Red Fleet.

Regarding the Moscow front, the high command and press were silent except to tell of German air attacks on the Soviet capital, and on the industrial city of Gorki, 250 miles to the east.

"Direct hits by heavy bombs caused great damage in the Molotov motor works and shipyards," at Gorki, the announcement said. "Several extensive fires broke out."

At Leningrad a Russian attempt to cross the Neva River southeast of that besieged city was repulsed with heavy Soviet losses, the high command said.

"Half of the 100 boats used were sunk and the rest were compelled to turn back," it added.

The commentary Dienst aus Deutschland said that German troops entering the eastern Crimean city of Feodosiya en route to Kerch found it abandoned by civilians and converted into a fortress that failed.

Its wooden homes were burned by the retreating Russians and its harbor was glutted with the wreckage of ships sunk by German airmen, the commentary said.

The news agency D. N. B. said a Soviet regimental commander and other high officers were captured there.

Paper Puts Germans 31 Miles From Moscow

Berlin, Nov. 5 (U.P.).—Strong German bomber forces were said by the Nazi press today to be blasting at the area of Rostov on the Don, the hinge of any Axis swing around the Sea of Azov toward the Caucasus.

Three full gasoline trains were reported destroyed, others badly damaged, and Soviet communications throughout the zone hampered.

On the Moscow front German spearheads were reported within "about 50 kilometers" (31 miles) of the Soviet capital, six miles closer than the high command reported on October 23. The assertion by an aviation expert was published in the Boerzen Zeitung.

The high command said air raids on Crimean Harbors had sunk two troop transports totaling 10,000 tons and one patrol boat, while bomb hits had badly damaged five more merchantmen in transport service and one small cruiser.

A belated report said that last Friday German dive bombers operating over the west coast of Crimea scored two bullseyes on a Russian cruiser, exploding the boiler, and damaged two destroyers, one of which was brought to a halt and the other beached.

A summary of official and unofficial reports showed that Germany had claimed the sinking or damaging of more than 100 Soviet warships during the war with Russia.

War Sidelights

Isles Ready To 'Greet' Paratroops

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Nov. 5.—The natives of the Netherlands East Indies have made the islands impregnable against attack by parachute troops by the simple expedient of "planting forests of sharpened bamboo sticks" in exposed areas, Joe Fisher, Singapore businessman, said today at a luncheon of the Advertising Club of New York.

Millions of these bamboo posts, ranging up to 4 inches in diameter, have been set in the ground "in every nook and cranny of the islands," Fisher said. The posts were allowed to bake in the sun until nearly as hard as steel. They were then planted at close intervals with their bayonet-like ends pointing to the sky.

Fisher said that this defense against parachutists was devised by natives of the islands, who use bamboo for their food, building material, utensils and even musical instruments.

Play's Author Killed

London, Nov. 5 (U.P.).—A matinee performance of the play "Distant Point," at the Westminster Theater, was interrupted by Manager Reginald Knight to announce that the author, Alexander Afinogenov, 41, had been killed in an air raid in Russia.

"Distant Point" was written about six years ago. It warns of the danger of an armed invasion and once was played at 200 Russian theaters simultaneously. Afinogenov was a member of the Soviet Information Bureau.

Queen 'Strapped'

London, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Just like the average Englishwoman, Queen Elizabeth is running low on clothing purchase coupons.

Last year the Queen bought 20 yards of hand-woven tweed at the disabled former service men's exhibition, but today she could spare only enough coupons to buy two scarves at the exhibit.

Balloon Protection

London, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Both the British and Germans are reported to be equipping their planes with special devices to protect them against barrage balloons.

Informed sources said today that some German planes which have been captured were carrying 800-pound fenders as a protection. This weight was said to reduce the speed and load of the planes.

It is understood some British planes now are fitted with balloon cable cutters.

Pledge Is Signed By Mrs. Roosevelt Not to Waste Food

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt warned American housewives today that they would soon be called upon to sign a consumer pledge promising not to waste food in their kitchens, as well as to undergo other sacrifices in the name of national defense. Mrs. Roosevelt, speaking on the opening program of the town hall lecture season, revealed that she had already signed the pledge as mistress of the White House, and that all White House employes likewise had signed it.

Mrs. Roosveelt said that the women of the Nation would be asked to sign the pledge next week during Civilian National Defense Week, November 11 to 16, and that the whole project involved something "never done in the United States before."

Finn Paper Attacks Truce Demand by U.S.

By the Associated Press

Helsinki, Nov. 5.—The United States' demand that Finland quit fighting Russia is an effort to open the Murmansk-Moscow railroad to British-American supplies and also to release "the Russian forces we have tied down on a long front," the newspaper Sanomat said tonight.

Russia still holds "strategically vital parts of our land," Finland's leading newspaper declared, and compliance to the United States' demand would mean "sacrificing the military security which through the utmost exertions of our army and the whole nation we have achieved on our eastern borders."

Finland has not yet announced an answer to Secretary of State Hull's note that she risked loss of United States friendship if she kept on fighting Russia.

But Sanomat summed up the situation thus:

"What practical aims the pressure against us strives to realize are not hard to guess. Everybody understands that the matter involves the Murmansk railroad which it is desired to liberate for British-American transport.

"In addition it is to release southward the Russian forces we have tied down on a long front.

"It is difficult to understand how any operations on our eastern frontiers aiming to insure the safety of our country can trespass on American interests.

"The United States still is a neutral country which is not formally at war with Germany, let alone an ally of Russia. If our protective measures interfere with America's sending of help to Russia, it probably hurts the Soviet supply system but it is childish to argue that it weakens American security.

"Of all the nations fighting Russia we are the only one which even the Western powers acknowledge to be a democracy. Paradoxically just these positive qualities appear to activate a desire to make us the first example of warning.

"Perhaps it is felt that there is still hope that threats can influence us."

A spokesman denied today reported demonstrations in the streets of Helsinki and clashes between police and Finnish crowds.

Rejuvenated Reds Slow Foe In Crimea

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 5—Russian reports indicated tonight that the pace of Hitler's offensive in the Crimea was slackening both before Sevastopol, where the terrain was turning increasingly hostile to the invader, and toward Kerch at the northeastern extremity of the peninsula facing the Caucasus.

While detailed information was lacking, this was the general picture as drawn from Soviet advices and from informed London quarters:

The supreme Soviet commander of the south, Marshal Semon Timoshenko, had initially underestimated the strength of the German thrusts and because of this and the necessity of reorganizing after the German break-through down the Perekop Isthmus from the lower Ukraine, he had for several days been fighting only rear-guard actions while he fell back toward more defensible positions.

This phase of retreat had now ended, or was about to end, upon both the Sevastopol and Kerch approaches, and while strong defenses were being thrown up the outer Red forces were now cautiously opening a more general resistance likely to turn shortly into pitched battles far more furious than anything that had yet developed.

Competent informants here declared that Timoshenko now had a well-knit fighting force which from here on would contest strongly for every mile of the Crimea.

Army Sets Up New Center to Experiment In Tank Destruction, Panzer Combat Tactics

The nucleus of a new "blitz" arm was set up in the United States Army yesterday, latest of a series of innovations put into effect since the beginning of the emergency.

Announcement was made of the creation of a Tank Destroyer Tactical and Firing Center which is charged with the task of developing tactics, experimenting with material and training specialized units to stop panzer troops. The step is a forerunner of a large expansion of the Army's tank destroyer forces.

Lieut. Col. Andrew D. Bruce was named commander of the new antimechanized center, with headquarters here for the time being. He will report direct to Gen. Marshall, as is the case with the armored force, created 15 months ago.

At present the Army has only one tank destroyer battalion, an experimental unit created at Fort George G. Meade, Md., two months ago. It is now taking part in the First Army maneuvers in the Carolinas.

Additional such battalions are expected to be organized shortly as soon as additional tank destroyers are delivered. Some modifications may be made in the design of the craft as the result of what is learned from the maneuvers and subsequent tests conducted by Col. Bruce's new center.

There are 54 tank destroyers in the experimental battalion. They are of two types. One is a half-track vehicle mounting a 75-millimeter gun, able to stop the heaviest tanks. It carries a crew of four men, has two-way radio apparatus and can make 50 miles an hour. The other is a wheeled vehicle mounting a 37-millimeter gun.

Nazis Use Similar Weapon

Somewhat similar self-propelled artillery has been used by the Germans against Russian tanks. Their advantage over the older type of antitank guns lies in the fact that they can go into action against a tank without unlimbering. Both types of destroyers are faster than than tanks.

"When the tank destroyer battalions are formed," the War Department stated, "they will be trained as units in tactics and firing technique in accordance with doctrines which will be developed at the center. Col. Bruce will conduct experiments to determine suitable types of material and will make recommendations to the War Department.

"Detailed plans regarding the organization of the tank destroyer units, location of the center and other allied matters are now under study."

5000 Machine Guns Found Defective in Army Checkup

By John G. Norris

Post Staff Writer

Army officials admitted yesterday that 5000 machine guns recently produced by an automotive company have been found defective and returned to the maker for rebuilding.

The flaws, which occurred in both airplane wing and antitank 50-caliber machine guns, were discovered on final acceptance tests conducted by Ordnance Department field service depots during the last month. None of the guns reached troops, it was said.

Maj. Gen. Charles W. Wesson, Chief of Army Ordnance, declared in a statement last night that the defects "did not involve the fire capacity of the weapons, but simply the interchangeability of parts." The guns had been passed by Army inspectors at the plant as to their firing ability, but later it was discovered that the corresponding parts of all the guns were not identical.

Officials said it was "a moot legal point" as to whether the Government or the manufacturer, the A. C. Spark-plug division of General Motors, would have to stand the cost of rebuilding the weapons. They would make no estimate of the probable cost of the work.

While the War Department will not confirm it, there is reason to believe that there are other cases of faulty equipment turned out by civilian plants converted to arms manufacture in the first orders received. Workmen and plant supervisors in certain cases have found some difficulty in quickly adapting themselves to the highly precise new jobs, it is said.

General Wesson declared that the flaws in the 5000 machine guns were not due to faulty design.

Statement Given

His statement follows:

"A small percentage of machine guns of the total number produced during the past year have been found unsuitable after examination at field service depots of the Ordnance Department within the past month. None of these guns reached troops. The defects discovered did not involve the fire capacity of the weapons, but simply the interchangeability of parts. These weapons are being returned to the manufacturer for reworking.

"The unsatisfactory condition found in the guns was not due to faulty design.

Langer Sold Land 'Unseen' For $56,800

In a voice that shook with feeling, Brunk, an associate of the Minneapolis bond broker who engineered the deals while Langer was Governor in 1937-38, spoke of the intensity of his sympathy for "the fellow who happens to come from the wrong side of the railroad tracks" as opposed to the "chain corporations and the big banks" who, on occasion, "can become perfectly holy."

Brunk told the committee that he has known Langer since about 1928, that he induced the Republican National Committee to contribute $5000 to his court defense and that he, personally, donated $1000.

But his discourse was interrupted by Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, committee chairman, with a question: "Why didn't you just give him a check for $56,000 instead of using this subterfuge?"

"If I had been intelligent, I would not have bought the land," came the reply. "If I had been intelligent, I would not have used a subterfuge. If I had been intelligent, he (gesturing in Langer's direction) would not have been here and I would not be here.

"All I can say is, I am that kind of a fellow, Senator. I don't claim to be rational."

"Embarrassed, Unhappy"

Senator Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, broke in with a reference to "the wrong side of the railroad tracks," and the observation that "You've done pretty well."

"I did so well I put some of it (money) back up there (North Dakota)," Brunk responded.

Brunk already had made the committee a speech. That was after Lucas asked him why he bought the land "sight unseen."

"I think that there isn't any explanation that would satisfy anybody unless they knew my idiosyncracies and ridiculous——to anyone else——concept of the length to go in doing things," said Brunk. "And I have embarrassed him (Langer), and I embarrassed myself, and I have been totally unhappy about it.

"But I did believe that he was—I think that he had been—broken by this continual harassment. I have made money in the State of North Dakota and I believed the State would come back.

"As I told you this morning, I did not have simple motives—and they are not good motives as they now appear—and I am totally unhappy in their concept.

While Langer was Governor, Brunk testified, the firm in which he was associated with V. W. Brewer, the broker, grossed a total of $303,838 "certainly three-quarters" of which came from North Dakota bond transactions.

From September 30, 1936, to the end of the fiscal year in the following September, Brunk disclosed, attorneys fees and commissions were paid out by the company to a total of $49,950 of which $35,610 went to Brunk's law firm and $8500 to him personally.

In the 1938 calendar year the outgo for fees and commissions was $108,206 of which $66,934 was paid to the law firm.

Cheapest Service

Brunk told the committee that he purchased from Governor Langer a total of 3510 acres of land which he intends to "keep and protect." Since purchasing the property, he testified, he has paid $300 in taxes. Income from the lands in 1939, he said was $1865, in 1940, $1746, and he estimated that the 1941 return would be $2317.

Brunk's disclosures followed the testimony of Brewer who admitted paying Langer $610 a short time before he became governor for "legal services." Brewer said he had some bonds he wanted to sell to the workmen's compensation board and asked Langer's advice.

"Langer was to go up there and see the board and keep straight our setups," Brunk told the committee. "It was the cheapest service Brewer has ever paid for."

In 1937 and 1938, committee records disclose, a considerable number of North Dakota counties issued refunding bonds. In many instances county officials sought to dispose of these bonds through the Bank of North Dakota and other State agencies, but, for the most part, these applications were rejected.

The committee contends that many of these bonds were bought by Brewer at a discount and sold at par to State agencies.

Some of the payments made by the Brewer company, Brunk said, were in keeping with a business philosophy of keeping "everybody else in agreement with you who might upset what you are trying to do." He said $1900 was thus paid to a life insurance company official who might have had some "nuisance value," that $1000 went to the author of "The Fighting Governor," a book about Langer, and additional funds to a man who acted as a "dummy" for Brewer in delivery of bonds to the State in the administration of the present Governor, John Moses.

It was deemed necessary to use a "dummy," said Brunk, "because the name of Brewer had been given plenty of publicity and we didn't want the name in the record of the transaction."

All the land transaction with Langer were made with Brunk's law partner, he said, and his instructions were "to go up there and do exactly what the Governor asked him to do."

In a brief interlude in the questioning of Brunk, the committee heard the story of Fred Ingstad, of Fargo, N. Dak., who declared he saw one of the defendants in Langer's Federal court trials hand over his indorsed $950 commission check to Ernest Reich, one of the jurors who held out for acquittal.

Bond Broker Tells Of Paying Langer

gone on the defensive and the Russians recaptured a village where heaps of Germans lay in the streets.

The sixty-eighth and sixty-ninth German regiments were declared to have suffered severely in the Volokolamsk area.

Twenty-seven German planes were shot down near Moscow itself during the day.

German losses in the Donets Basin fighting far to the south during the first two days of November totaled 260 German trucks, 14 tanks, 16 field guns, 10 antitank guns, and 2 tank trucks. This was scored by Red airmen alone, Russians said.

The Russians were silent about the Crimea fighting, but said German attempts to encircle Leningrad in the northwest had failed and that Red troops were counterattacking on all approaches to that besieged city.

Selectees Refuse To Go Over Hill

at maneuvers to think much about O-H-I-O; too busy making themselves cogs in what promises to be the greatest Army in American history.

Of course, there never was much to the "over the hill' threat to begin with. The War Department never did take it seriously, knowing that the soldier of 1941 was no different from his counterpart in 1917-18, when it came to griping. All soldiers do that. Napoleon once worried aloud because, as he said, his Old Guard had abandoned its habit of growling and complaining.

A check-up at the War Department yesterday disclosed that Army desertions in October apparently were no greater than at any other time. The department does not have any figures on desertions, these being retained in the various divisional posts.

But a War Department spokesman said desertions were no problem, that A. W. O. L. figures, so far as the Department knew, were very low. If that were not so, he explained, the War Department certainly would know about it.

In mid-August, about the time Congress was debating the question of extending selective service from one year to 30 months, Army morale became what was known as a burning question. Investigators found that one trouble in the camps was a profound uncertainty. This, it seemed, was but a reflection of the uncertainty that existed outside the camps—in Congress itself, for example, where in the House the extension act passed by the narrow vote of 203 to 202.

There were other reasons for the disturbing reports about morale: The selectees had gone through a rather violent transition from civilian to military life. They were still, for the most part, undergoing their basic training, and had not yet had a taste of real soldiering.

Now most of them have been through large-scale maneuvers or are going through them. They have found out what is expected of them as soldiers, as individuals and as members of an outfit.

Army men like to say that morale is nothing more than self respect, or pride in oneself and in one's outfit. A good soldier starts out by thinking that he's the best man in his company. Then he goes on to believe that his company is the best in the division; that his division is the best in the corps; that his corps is the best in the Army, and that the Army itself is just about the best in the world.

When soldiers begin to feel that way, say the old-timers, then you've got something.

Judging from the reports from the maneuver areas, reports telling about the competition to capture objectives and rival generals, some such feeling is now taking hold in the United States Army.

now in Sarasota, Fla.)

The British merchantman bearing the civilian technical corps recruits was part of a convoy. Those lost in the sinking were said to be only a small percentage of the total number of volunteers traveling in the same convoy, other ships of which are believed already to have reached England.

Most of the volunteers lost were experts in radio and related fields.

The first official call for Americans to volunteer for paid civilian work in the British Isles came from Lord Beaverbrook, in a broadcast to the United States June 17. At that time, the operation of "radiolocaters" to detect and intercept enemy planes before they reached their targets in Britain was disclosed for the first time and was hailed as "Britain's best secret weapon."

Early this fall the first group of American volunteers to help man the radiolocaters and similar technical equipment of the armed forces arrived in England.

President Confers on Price Control recommended the Baruch plan, saying that "an effective attack on the problem can only be made for all classes, groups and industries."

Embodied in Gore Bill

"Such a comprehensive attack," the board said, "if it is going to be made at all, must be made by this Government. It must grow out of a carefully formulated and well coordinated plan covering prices, wages, profits, taxes, credit, investment and priorities."

That, in substance, was the recommendation to the President a year ago by Bernard M. Baruch, World War price administrator, and which was embodied in the bill by Representative Albert Gore, of Tennessee, which lost in the House Banking and Currency Committee by two votes.

Within the personnel of the House Banking and Currency Committee came reports yesterday that Mr. Roosevelt might attempt to "sell" the committee on withdrawing its recommendations on the measure reported last Saturday, and substituting a bill that would more nearly fit the combined thoughts of various groups which would be most greatly affected.

The measure reported by the committee afforded no authority for wage or farm price control, and has been criticized as "wore than no bill at all." Representative Monroney, of Louisiana, a member of the committee, said after the bill was reported that "it gives Leon Henderson the power to control everything but inflation."

The situation affecting the price control bill was considered tonight as "still in the air," but those most closely connected with developments indicated that something definite might be forthcoming immediately.

One of these developments, it was said, might be the summoning of Representative Henry B. Steagall, of Alabama, chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, to the white House to see if a substitute bill cannot be worked out and reported by the committee. This would be a rare, but not an unprecedented procedure.

Members of Congress were reported to be falling in line behind the idea that if a price control bill is to be enacted, it ought to govern all segments of the population. Many "friends of labor" are said to be willing to vote for a bill that would guarantee fairness "all around."

Conversations were understood to have taken place during the day between representatives of labor and the farm groups, over a possible compromise that would meet their demands for a not too strict ceiling on wages and farm products, and at the same time curb prices generally.

Red Drive Fumbled In Mock Warfare

Element of Surprise Lost as Attackers' Move Is Delayed

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Monroe, N. C., Nov. 5.—Red First Corps today hurled the full force of its first armored division against the Twenty-ninth Infantry Division, on the left flank of the Blue First Army and met a savage resistance with everything in First Army's arsenal.

Had the armored attack started as planned at 7 a. m., it would have caught the Twenty-ninth flat-footed. As it was, the blow was delayed eight hours, the element of surprise lost and time given for the Twenty-ninth, Second Corps and First Army to mobilize their resources to meet it.

It was no defense of the Blues that delayed this attack but an act of the Reds themselves. Early this week First Corps blew out all highway bridges over protecting swamps to the south of the battle front to protect their own flank. Today these bridges had to be rebuilt, one by one, for the light and medium tanks to cross.

Light Resistance Crushed

As it was, the Sixth Armored Infantry regiment, mounted in half track scout cars, forded the narrow swamp streams or found light bridges on back roads and poured eastward in a steel flood. Such light resistance as the Blues placed in its path was crushed with hardly a pause in its slow relentless march.

With the mechanized attack definitely established against the Blue left flank, resistance was mobilized quickly. Antitank and motorized infantry units of the Twenty-ninth were flung against its first.

Tonight the armored division had thrust the head of one column eastward on U. S. Highway No. 1 to Patrick, S. C., object of the Sixth Armored Regiment where it bivouacked. A second column, crossing the swamps on No. 1, turned northward at McBee, S. C., and took Jefferson, S. C., after a hot and smoky battle in the southern outskirts in which they blasted Twenty-ninth Antitankers out with mortars.

In the north, the battle developed into one of those confusing melees so much a part of actual warfare as of maneuvers. The First Division, on the north flank, was to move southwestward at dawn in concert with the Twenty-sixth on its left and drive into the north flank of the Reds. This maneuver, it was expected, would relieve pressure on the Twenty-eighth, held up short of its objective since early yesterday, and enable the Blue line to go forward. It also would have placed the bulk of Blue strength, alert and mobile, in the path of the armored attack had it come that way as expected.

Maneuver Bogs Down

This maneuver bogged down and made almost no progress, the Eighteenth Infantry, First Division, somehow lost its direction and moved across the front of the Twenty-sixth, colliding with the 104th Infantry of the Twenty-sixth and engaging it briefly before identities were straightened out. In this mix-up the impetus of the attack was lost.

Even so, had the attack been made as planned it would have burst upon thin air. Last night Maj. Gen. Charles F. Thompson, commanding First Corps, withdrew his Ninth and Thirtieth Divisions back to the line where it had been pushed by the Forty-fourth, only Blue division to reach its objective yesterday.

Last night, Gen. Thompson again withdrew his line 6 miles to a new defensive position with the armored division deep in Blue territory.

U. S. Eagle Stars RAF Bomber 'Pay Loads' Are Heavier

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 5.—British bombers dropped heavier loads of explosives on Germany and occupied territories in the last three months than in their heavy summer raids and averaged ten attacks a day during October on shipping off the European coast, an informed source said today.

Attacks on the repeatedly battered Ruhr and Rhineland were resumed last night after a lull caused by bad weather and, the air ministry said, docks at Dunkerque and Ostend were hit and a large merchant ship was damaged by bombs during patrol flights along the coasts of Norway and the low countries.

J. J. Crowley, of Oakland, Calif., a pilot in the American Eagle Squadron of the R. A. F., was credited by the ministry with blowing up an ammunition dump and machine gunning a German truck column in a dawn sortie over northern France.

One Fighter Lost

R. A. F. fighter pilots reported encountering the heaviest antiaircraft barrages they ever had met, indicating the Germans had been installing substantial new defenses. One fighter plane was listed as lost.

Drawing a large scale picture of the R. A. F.'s operations, an informant said more than 10,000 tons of bombs were dropped on Germany, Italy and German-occupied territory during the last three months by bomber command planes alone.

Since the R. A. F. made fewer flights during August, September and October than in the three preceding months, the amount of explosives loosed in each attack was described as tremendous.

The figures, it was said, included only such raids on Italy as were launched from England.

Battleships Hit Many Times

It was reported authoritatively that the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the cruiser Prinz Lugen have been hit repeatedly in 1500 to 2000 individual plane attacks since they were docked on the west coast of France.

The British source said some German planes recently have been found to be carrying fenders as protection against the cables of British barrage balloons.

These fenders, it was said, weigh as much as 800 pounds and reduce the speed and load of raiders.

Japanese Ship Hits Mine, Sinks

Tokyo (Thursday), Nov. 6 (U.P.)—The Japanese steamer Kibi Maru, 4522 tons, plying between Seishin and Tsuruga with 342 passengers aboard, struck a floating mine last night and sank within 30 minutes.

Tsuruga is a port on the north shore of the Japanese main island. It is on the Sea of Japan and south by southeast of Vladivostok, Russia.

(The Japanese charged recently that Soviet mines had broken loose or had been set floating in Russian territorial waters and drifted down toward Japan, endangering Japanese shipping.)

Attorneys for Jarvis T. Catoe, convicted sex slayer, served notice in District Court yesterday that they are filing an appeal in the United States Court of Appeals. The three-man defense counsel, Walter M. Shea, J. They also state that the District Court erred in overruling of defense motions for change of venue and for a continuance.

Chinese Reported Sending 40,000 Troops to Aid Russia

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 5.—Roundabout reports from unidentified sources were received in New York tonight to the effect that Chinese troops are going to the aid of Russia against the German invaders.

The Morocco radio said the Chinese would send 40,000 troops to Russia, asserting its information came from China dispatches which said the general commanding the Chinese Eighteenth Army had made the decision to send help.

Later the Swiss radio, heard here by the National Broadcasting Co., identified the Eighteenth Army as consisting of Chinese Communists and said reports from North China related that 100,000 of these troops would be sent to European Russia at Russia's request.

Whether by "North China" it meant Japanese-controlled areas, the radio did not say.

There was no confirmation of the reports from other sources.

Last January Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, of the Chungking government, disbanded the Communist new Fourth Army on grounds of insubordination, and in March refused Communist demands that special areas along Soviet lines be set up in China.

Last July 26, however, four days after the German invasion of Russia, London sources reported that Chiang and Premier Joseph Stalin had reached an agreement whereby a half-million Chinese troops would help Russia if Japan should attack the Soviet Union.

De Gaulle Paratroops Captured in France

By the Associated Press

Vichy, Nov. 5.—Discovery and capture of an unstated number of Free French parachutists in western unoccupied France and the capture of a grounded British plane loaded with De Gaullist propaganda in the same vicinity were disclosed today.

(The dispatch gave no indication as to when the parachutists were rounded up.)

The plane, carrying instructions for De Gaullist agents, was captured near Perigueux two days ago when it was forced down by bad weather. The entire British crew was reported held.

The parachute troops reported landing in the vicinity of Perigueux—all of whom are understood here to have been captured by the French—were said to have been French followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Reports here said they were mostly natives of the region who were sent to hide themselves until opportunities to commit sabotage occurred.

(This dispatch is the first mention from Vichy of parachute troops having been found in France.)

Perigueux is one of the largest centers of unoccupied France that is near Bordeaux in the occupied zone.

Hull Indorses Suggestions to Protest Reprisals

Copyright by New York Times

The Chilean suggestion to the other American republics that they join in a protest to Germany against reprisals on hostages was indorsed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull at his press conference yesterday, with the observation that it was a wholesome, healthy thing for any other country to do

However, Hull indicated that the United States might not necessarily consider it imperative to join in such a protest because of the position that has already been asserted in condemnation of the executions. He said in this connection that the attitude of the United States could not be more emphatically expressed than it was by President Roosevelt in his recent statement denouncing the reprisals.

Hull indicated that if Germany does not pay the damages demanded by November 19 for the sinking of the American freighter Robin Moor, the claim of $2,967,092 will be grouped with other pending cases for adjustment later, possibly after the war. The demand was made in a note on September 19 and 90 days was given for compliance.

Important Roosevelt Speech Due Today

Moulton Says:

U. S. Will Be Totalitarian If Nazis Win

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 5.—Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of Brookings Institution, said today a German victory eliminating Great Britain would force the United States to conduct its international trade and financial operations according to totalitarian methods.

Moulton, in an address prepared for delivery before the convention of the Associated Grocery Manufacturers of America, said such an eventuality would involve strict government control.

"Since it would doubtless be necessary to bend every effort to safeguard the future security of the country, international trade and financial policies would be dominated by military considerations," Moulton said.

Difficult problems also would face the United States if Germany were defeated, Moulton continued. The United States' chief interest would be a postwar peace promoting economic advancement throughout the world, he said, to make domestic prosperity possible.

Clarence Francis, president of General Foods Corporation, urged manufacturers to solve their own problems without asking Government help.

"With right of way given to defense, civilian industries will suffer," Francis said in a prepared address.

"Some will even succumb. We will face a public with vastly increased buying power and a reduction of supplies. Industries fortunate enough to continue operations should supply consumer demand to the maximum degree possible, in the most efficient manner, and at prices consistent with sound conduct and in the public interest. Taking unjustifiable profits at any time is bad, but at such a time as this it is an unpardonable sin."

President's Address To I. L. O. Delegates Will Be Broadcast

President Roosevelt will close the convention of the International Labor Office at 3 p. m. today with a widely broadcast address which White House aides have labeled "important."

Secretary William D. Hassett said the President would address 250 I. L. O. delegates for 20 minutes in the East Room of the White House. Representatives of 50 nations in the I. L. O. have been meeting in New York.

Maj. Clement Richard Attlee, deputy prime minister of Great Britain and Lord Privy Seal, will arrive here at 7:15 a. m. to attend the session. He has been in the United States for more than two weeks for the I. L. O. meetings.

Attlee will be accompanied by Arthur Jenkins, parliamentary private secretary; John Roberts and Roger Makins, of the British foreign office. He will pay his respects to Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone, Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles.

The I. L. O. yesterday adopted a resolution urging all free peoples "to contribute to the uttermost limit of their power for the victory of China, Great Britain, Russia, and their allies by supplying all the arms which their industry can produce." The resolution which was adopted in New York with representatives of 23 countries attending was adopted unanimously.

The conference authorized the holding of its next sessions away from its home in Geneva if circumstances should so require. Principles laid down in the Roosevelt-Churchill Atlantic Charter were indorsed.

It is considered likely that the President will use the presence of the I. L. O. delegates as a setting for a statement on America's labor policy during the defense emergency.

Railway Pay Rise Plan Is Opposed

of higher passenger and freight rates, was calculated to jump costs by 5 per cent.

The increases would continue until December 31, 1942.

The findings of the board, created by the President when 19 railroad unions voted to strike over their wage demands, were made public at the White House.

Specifically, the proposals called for a 7½ per cent rise for the 5 operating brotherhoods and a 13½ per cent increase for the 14 non-operating brotherhoods, who have 800,000 members.

The board, headed by Wayne L. Morse, dean of the Oregon University Law School, also recommended that the non-operating brotherhoods be granted a week's vacation with pay. In monetary terms, the board's proposal called for payment of less than one-third of the 900 million dollar cost increase which the railroads estimated was called for by the union's original demands.

In making the recommendations the board said it assumed that the railroads could secure any relief needed by obtaining permission to increase their fares and rates.

"Indeed," the report continued, "our recommendations are made on the assumption, though not on the affirmative finding, that a large portion of the increased wage bill . . . will be made good to the carriers through increased rates."

Discussing the general economic state of the Nation, the board said: "The country is in a period of incipient inflation such as ordinarily occurs in times when great wars derange the economic life of the world . . .

"Wholesales prices within the last two years have risen rapidly and the cost of living is mounting. Wages are increasing . . . in the absence of a coordinated national policy of economic control, the Nation appears to be in danger of severe inflation . . .

"But it must be recognized that an extreme inflationary rise in prices and costs is injurious to all save a few who adroitly profit from speculative activity and those who profit from defense contracts."

Bringing the supply of consumer dollars "into any sort of equilibrium with the supply of civilian goods, available," it said, "Cannot be done by policies adopted for one industry and its labor alone. Effective attack on the problem can only be made for all classes, groups and industries.

"Such a comprehensive attack, if it is going to be made at all, must be made by the Government. It must grow out of a carefully formulated and well coordinated plan covering prices, wages, profits, taxes, credit, investment and priorities.

"A temporary expedient seems therefore to be the only possible course, pending the evolution of defense policies to the point where the threat of inflation may be moderated and a policy of equality of sacrifice among those able to share in that sacrifice is devised."

Miners to Get Compensation For Strike Against Dues Hike

By the Associated Press

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 5.—Lewis G. Hines, Pennsylvania secretary of labor and industry, ruled today that 15,000 anthracite miners who left their jobs for four weeks to protest union assessments and increases are entitled to unemployment compensation benefits. Checks were drawn immediately.

Hines decided the walkout from September 9 to October 6 in District 7 of the C. I. O. United Mine Workers Union setup was an industrial dispute involving the operators and hence compensation should be awarded.

The district's 42 collieries employing 22,000 men were closed.

Union Chieftain John L. Lewis broke the strike with an appeal to insurgents to return to work pending an investigation of their grievances by a union commission. He then took over administration of the district pending outcome of the inquiry.

The secretary said an inquiry disclosed that some operators were asked to refrain from using the check-off system of collecting union dues and that they had refused.

"This action put the operators squarely into the problem and thus it becomes an industrial dispute," Hines said.

The miners staged the walkout in protest against an increase from $1 to $1.50 monthly in district dues levied to aid financially distressed locals and a boost from $4 to $6 a year in international assessments designed to build up the powerful C. I. O. union's treasury.

Hines said he was unable to estimate, pending a checkup, the amount to be paid the miners in benefits which range from $7.50 to $15 a week based on the amount of wages they earn.

D. C. Courts Set New Calendars

In order to speed up cases which have been awaiting trial more than 40 days from the time of indictment, new calendars were announced yesterday for the District criminal courts, Justice James M. Proctor is in charge of the calendars. It is hoped that under the new schedule, all long-standing cases will be quickly brought to trial.

Lists of cases to be heard have been assigned by Justice Proctor to the three judges now sitting in criminal sessions. They are Justices James W. Morris, F. Dickinson Letts and T. Alan Goldsborough.

Coal Issue Effect In Steel Studied

The problem, it was believed, takes on an added importance in the light of known C. I. O. ambitions for a closed shop in the steel industry. Lewis is viewed as seeking an entering wedge via the captive mines.

Davis explained that in yesterday's sessions the four labor members of the board presented their views on the dispute, involving 53,000 coal miners, members of Lewis' United Mine Workers, and that the employer members of the board presented their views later in the day.

Asked about the board's information on the percentage of nonunion members working in the mines, the board chairman said that in a few individual collieries of the United States Steel Corporation, the company's check-off figures showed, on their face, that the C. I. O. union did not have a majority. He remarked, however, that there could be "very substantial discrepancies" between company check-off data and union membership rolls, since some members might be excused from the check-off procedure.

Davis also revealed that in the Gary (West Virginia) mines, an independent union had bee certified as bargaining agent, although the United Mine Workers claim a majority. He said, however, that the A. F. of L. had not "been heard from" in laying claim to any members in the captive mines.

He again refused to place any deadline on the length of board deliberations on the dispute. It was recalled however, that Davis had told President Roosevelt he "saw no reason to doubt" that the findings could be issued some time this week.

C. of C. Head Says Closed Shop Kills Free Enterprise

Chicago, Nov. 5 (AP).—Albert W. Hawkes, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, declared today that private enterprise would disappear if labor were successful in its demand for a closed shop.

He addressed the first rally of a campaign begun by the Union League Club under the slogan, "Preserve Free Enterprise." In his prepared speech, he said in part:

"I make the prediction to labor that if it persists in its closed shop demands and has the power to enforce them upon the American people, then the accomplishment of that act will be the destruction of management—the final taking over of private enterprise by the State or Government—and the withdrawal from labor unions of all the gains and rights and privileges they have accumulated for themselves in the battle that has lasted for more than 75 years."

Hawkes contended that the closed shop issue transgressed the rights of individual citizens.

He said he was opposed to anti-strike legislation because it took away the right of a worker to choose whether or not he should work.

West Coast Welders Called Back to Jobs, Pending Parley

By the Associated Press

Sidney Hillman, associate director of the Office of Production Management, announced yesterday that a committee representing striking West Coast shipyard welders had agreed to ask the men to go back to their torches immediately pending a conference of the men, OPM officials and other labor representatives. Some 1700 men were called back to work in the Seattle area and striking shipyard welders at Los Angeles voted last night to return.

The strike of the independent welders, who demand a charter from the A. F. of L. recognizing it as a separate union, started three weeks ago. The men complained they now have to pay dues to several A. F. of L. organizations. Union leaders estimated 20,000 were involved in the strike and the OPM said 5000.

While there was a temporary settlement in the case of the shipyard welders, the strike spread to the welders in the aircraft industry. The men walked out of the Lockheed and Vega plants in Burbank, Calif., in the early morning and failed to show up at the Consolidated plant in San Diego at 7 a. m.

Production on $1,400,000,000 in military orders was not immediately affected, company spokesmen said, but Jimmie Goss, president of the United Aircraft Welders, independent, said the strike had seriously curtailed operations in the plants. He wants a labor board election to determine the bargaining agency.

A spokesman for Lockheed and Vega aircraft companies in Burbank asserted:

"As far as we are concerned the strike is whipped, but come what may we are going to continue turning out military planes."

The third struck plant, Consolidated at San Diego, said the strike would not slow its production schedule on 780 million dollars in bomber orders.

Robert E. Gross, president of Lockheed, said his concern had never had a labor dispute or a strike "and we do not consider there is a strike now."

Meanwhile, A. F. L. building tradesmen called a strike at the Naval Training Station at San Diego, Calif., and the Marines' Camp Elliott, halting work on a $5,500,000 expansion program.

The work stoppage was ordered to enforce wage demands reportedly sought for 15 of 21 crafts involved in the construction of barracks and other facilities at the military establishments. Details of the wage demands were not released by the Navy or the union officials.

The War Department announced yesterday it had taken over the branch establishments—five plants and two warehouses—of Air Associates, Inc., Bendix, N. J., to facilitate operations.

Taken Over Last Week

The main plant at Bendix was taken over last week by the Army under an Executive order from President Roosevelt after a labor-management controversy had delayed production on defense orders held by the company.

The branches are at Lodi and Belleville, N. J.; Chicago and Rockford, Ill.; Dallas, Tex.; Marshall, Mo., and Los Angeles, Calif.

Officials said there was no labor trouble at the branches and no troops were used when the Army took charge of them.

This latest action was necessary, they said, because it was impossible to segregate the branch plant operations from the business of the main plant at Bendix.

Maybank Sworn In To Fill Byrnes Post

Burnett R. Maybank, 42-year-old Charleston cotton merchant and former Governor of South Carolina, was sworn in yesterday as a Senator from his State.

Maybank, who resigned Tuesday as Governor, was elected last September to complete the unexpired term of James F. Byrnes, who quit the Senate to become an associate justice of the Supreme Court. The term will expire in 1943.

Off-Year Elections Run True to Form

By the Associated Press

Results of the off-year elections, headed by Mayor F. H. LaGuardia's return to office in New York, showed last night that the voting generally ran just about true to form.

LaGuardia's winning of a third term by a 133,841 plurality, smaller than those he enjoyed in his previous victories, constituted no upset. His opponent, District Attorney William O'Dwyer, of Brooklyn, had potent support from Tammany Hall and Democratic leaders, although President Roosevelt indorsed the mayor.

The New Jersey Legislature remained Republican despite the State-wide stumping campaign by Gov. Charles Edison in behalf of Democratic candidates. In fact, the Democrats lost one seat in the State Senate, giving the G. O. P. control by 17 to 4, and at least 3 of their 19 seats in the 60-place Assembly.

Republicans captured the two State-wide judiciary posts at stake in Pennsylvania and claimed a major share of the local offices. The special Congressional election in the Fifteenth Pennsylvania District, traditionally Republican, went to Wilson D. Gillette, of the G. O. P., over George D. Wagner, Democrat.

The other Congressional election of Tuesday, in the Second Mississippi District, went to Jamie L. Whitten. Both he and his opponent, L. A. Pyle, are Democratic prosecutors.

The only result remotely resembling an upset was the record-smashing victory of Frank John Lausche in the Cleveland mayoralty fight. Lausche defeated the Republican incumbent, Edward Blythin, by some 50,000 ballots, exceeding the previous high of 39,000 attained by Harold H. Burton in 1935.

The comeback campaign of former Mayor James M. Curley in Boston was wrecked by Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, who won reelection in a four-way nonpartisan race with 126,002 votes, the most ever polled by a mayor there. Curley's total of 116,488 also was the largest he ever had amassed. Curley charged the opposition with "chicanery, dishonesty and trickery" and announced he would seek a recount.

In Detroit, where Mayor Edward J. Jeffries was reelected in a nonpartisan contest, Billy Rogell, the former Detroit Tigers' shortstop, won a seat on the city council which already included Charles E. (Gus) Dorais, University of Detroit football coach.

Incumbent mayors of the four largest Connecticut cities, including Socialist Jasper McLevy, of Bridgeport, were reelected. The Democrats took another four-year lease on the Albany, N. Y., city hall with the election of 32-year-old Erastus Corning, 2d, as mayor.

And in Yatesville, Pa. (population, 800), four women who ran against their husbands for town officers went back to their kitchens, defeated, but said they might try again in 1943.

Bioff Pictured As Pawn in Big Money Game

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 5.—William Bioff was pictured in court today as a pawn in some mysterious big money game played by movie magnates as his attorney summed up the case against the theatrical union leader on trial for extortion.

Concluding his four and one-half hours' summation, George M. Breslin told the jury, "I am mystified as to what really happened, but I am convinced as I am sure you are, that Bioff is no extortioner."

Bioff is on trial with George E. Browne, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employes (A. F. of L.), on charges of extorting $550,000 from the movie industry as the price of labor peace. Bioff denied the accusation from the stand. Browne did not testify.

The case was expected to go to the jury tomorrow after Attorney Martin Conboy has summed up in behalf of Browne, and United States Attorney Mathias Correa for the Government.

Called Willing Victims

Arguing that Bioff's alleged victims were willing victims who turned over large sums of money to him with little or no protest, Breslin said that the evidence pointed not to extortion but to a deal arranged by Nicholas Schenck, president of Loew's, and others.

Bioff testified that he collected more than one million dollars from executives of Loew's, Inc., Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, Paramount Pictures, Inc., and Warner Brothers, Inc., at the request of Nicholas Schenck who, he said, told him "the industry is being sandbagged through legislation."

Bioff said he delivered the money to Joseph M. Schenck, then chairman of the board of Twentieth Century-Fox in California.

Breslin said that only two witnesses testified to threats by Bioff. They were, he said, Charles Moskowitz, Loew's New York manager and brother of Joseph Moskowitz who was convicted along with Joseph Schenck of income tax evasion; and Nicholas Schenck, brother of Joseph.

Breslin contended that Bioff was a comparatively poor man since Joseph Schenck was known to have loaned him large sums of money.

"Joe Schenck's relations with Bioff demonstrate that Bioff did not hold or retain any substantial amount of the money he got from Schenck," Breslin said, adding:

"Knowing Bioff had money, would Joe Schenck lend him $100,000? Would Joe Schenck have cut Bioff in on $8000 of his gambling winnings? Would he pay for a pleasure trip for Bioff?

"Schenck knew Bioff was not an extortioner and had very little money of his own."

Welfare Board Delays New Aged Home, Driscoll Charges

A stinging rebuke was handed the Board of Public Welfare yesterday by one of its own members—A. J. Driscoll—for its action recommending delay in construction of a proposed new Home for the Aged and Infirm.

He accused the board of exceeding its authority by suggesting postponement of plans for the new institution on the grounds of "priority demands" on construction materials.

"That is a question," he said, "which should be left to duly constituted authorities."

Visits to the Home, said Driscoll, have convinced him of the need for improvements.

"When delay was suggested," he declared, "I pointed out that in my opinion approval of the recommendation by the board would be most unfortunate and subject the board to serious criticism.

"The Commissioners, Congress and the public in general are convinced as to the needs for a new institution."

Commissioner Guy Mason, in charge of welfare activities, earlier had assailed the board for its action and indicated yesterday the city heads intend to take matters into their own hands and ignore the board's views. A site for the new home is under consideration at Glenn Dale, Md.

Cleveland Women 'Picket' Halifax

Cleveland, Nov. 5 (AP).—A group of women carrying banners which read "Halifax, go home" and "Halifax is a warmonger" paraded in front of City Hall today as Lord and Lady Halifax called on Mayor and Mrs. Edward Blythin.

Police escorting the British Ambassador and Lady Halifax said there were about 40 women in the group and identified the demonstrators as mothers and wives of men in Army camps.

800 to Be Examined Tonight For Volunteer Firemen Here

Physical examinations for 800 men who have registered their desire to become part of a Volunteer Fire Auxiliary and help defend Washington in the event of an air raid, will begin tonight at the Police and Fire Department Clinic at 1018 Thirteenth Street Northwest.

False teeth and eyeglasses will be no barrier to acceptance by the medical board, it was declared last night. Dr. John A. Reed and four volunteer doctors will examine mostly for "strong hearts," District defense officials said.

"Our real firemen have to be between the ages of 21 and 30, and we would not think of taking one with glasses—but the volunteers can be between the ages of 18 and 55," Capt. C. S. Petersen asserted.

Examinations will continue on Monday and Thursday nights until 600 volunteers have been accepted, and then classes will begin at the District's 30 fire stations with regular firemen as teachers.

Fifty hours of training in fire engine work and 30 more in truck service will be given, the volunteers coming to their classes for three nights weekly.

Soon after the first of the year, the graduates will be ready for special instruction which will include information about incendiary bombs and gas.

"We intend to train 2000 volunteers before we are through," said Capt. Petersen, who is assistant to Col. Lemuel Bolles, the District's executive director of civilian defense.

Commissioner John Russell Young, U. S. Defense Coordinator, yesterday announced the appointment of C. Melvin Sharpe, executive assistant to the president of the Potomac Electric Power Co., o be chief of utilities for defense for the metropolitan area. Sharpe's job will be to organize the various utilities to act as a defense unit "should the emergency arise," Commissioner Young said.

Leaders to Hold Congress in Crisis With Japanese

By the Associated Press

Administration leaders have decided to hold Congress in session indenitely because of the crisis in Japanese-American relations, informed sources said yesterday.

The decision came as a surprise, inasmuch as some House leaders had talked previously of knocking off legislative work for the balance of the year, as soon as the neutrality and price control measures were out of the way.

Influential Democratic legislators, who asked that their names be withheld, said that under present plans there would be nothing more than three-day recesses for either the Senate or House in the near future.

Lang Denies Plan to Return To Germany

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—The Government today introduced as evidence a document in which Herman Lang, one of 15 men on trial for espionage conspiracy, announced, four months after his naturalization, that he intended to return to Germany.

Lang, still on the stand after testifying for three days about Gestapo efforts to obtain from him secrets of the American Norden bombsight on which he had worked, identified the paper as his request to transfer funds from New York to Berlin prior to visiting Germany in the fall of 1939.

The defendant denied that he had intended returning to Germany. But, he admitted, the application for the deposit of $3500 worth of marks stipulated that he intended to re-establish permanent residence in Germany and would accept any refund determined by the German Volkesbank if he should change his mind and remain in the United States.

The application was filed, he said, in July, 1939, 10 months after he had spent a summer vacation in Germany. In March, 1940, William G. Sebold, American counter-espionage agent, began receiving messages from the Hamburg Gestapo Radio Station suggestion that Lang return via Mexico.

Lang said Sebold attempted to drag him into spy activities with promises of money; the attentions of a beautiful woman and threats of reprisal against Lang's family in Germany. Lang said the threats deterred him from exposing Sebold as a German spy. He denied giving Sebold or anyone else defense information.

Congress Handed New Tax Program

3. A 1 per cent increase in payroll taxes on both employers and employes for the old-age pension fund. The tax now is 1 per cent on each; the program would raise the rate to 2 per cent on each. The yield was estimated at 900 million dollars.

Comes As a Surprise

The program was presented informally to the House Ways and Means Committee by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., and Assistant Secretary John L. Sullivan. It came as a complete surprise inasmuch as Morgenthau, only a few days ago, said he thought—but was not sure—that his recommendations would not be ready before January 1.

Disclosure of the huge program came from Congressional sources, who said its yield was estimated at from $4,300,000,000 to 5 billion. They said the $4,800,000,000 figure appeared to be a fair medium.

Morgenthau declined to comment except to confirm that he had visited the Capitol. He said Chairman Robert L. Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, of the Ways and Means Committee, had invited him to a conference to determine whether a new bill should be passed to become effective January 1.

Decision Tomorrow

The committee is slated to decide tomorrow whether it will start hearings immediately and rush the measure through or whether it will proceed slowly.

The measure is the third revenue program proposed by the Treasury in a little more than a year. Already on the statute books are the tax law enacted in 1940 which imposed a special overriding 10 per cent tax on income levies and the $3,500,000,000 defense revenue bill enacted last summer.

Committeemen said the Treasury officials presented the new measure as a double-barreled program which would help finance the multibillion-dollar arms program and help stave off inflation.

The "withholding" income tax deductible at the source has been discussed for years but this is the first time the Administration actually has espoused it.

The Treasury program envisions a procedure whereby every employer would be required to ascertain the normal personal exemptions of each employe, then deduct the tax from each salary payment.

For example: An employe makes $50 a week. His personal income tax exemption as a married man would be $1500, or roughly $28.85 a week. That would leave $21.15 of his weekly salary subject to taxes. If the tax was set at 10 per cent, the employer would deduct $2.11 each week and eventually turn it over to the Treasury, probably quarterly.

Self-Employers Must Report

Self-employers, such as farmers and small-business operators, would be required to submit periodical reports and accompanying tax payments.

At the end of the year, the employe would have the right to claim further deductions for such things as contributions and interest, and to seek a rebate from the Treasury if he feels his tax deductions had been improper.

In computing normal income taxes, the employe would be permitted to deduct the total which was held out from pay envelopes from his net taxable income. In other words, if a person computed his income with all deductions and found that he had $1,000 subject to normal taxes, he could deduct from that $1000—before figuring those normal taxes—the total which had already been withheld from his pay.

mer Senator Rush D. Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia; Charles A. Lindbergh, Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), of New York; the Social Justice Organization of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana; the America First Committee, and other antiintervention-ist sources.

The names from these sources, Maloney said, were assembled into a master list of persons to whom propaganda was mailed, some of it under Congressional frank.

Maloney said that it was strongly suspected that the list was "used for a serious and sinister purpose" besides the distribution of Scribner's Commentator, which itself has been widely accused of being under the domination of Nazi sympathizers.

Maloney pointed out that the magazine makes no effort to appeal to the public generally, is not sold on the news stands, but is mailed only to those whom it is believed might be influenced by its anti-interventionist policy.

When Special Prosecutor Edward J. Hickey, jr., members of the grand jury and Prosecutor Maloney questioned Miss Feagin, Maloney continued, her memory proved "consistently bad."

"I can't recall," was her favorite response, said the prosecutor, although she was questioned about circumstances she acknowledged were extremely unusual and happened recently.

After three days of such testimony, said Maloney, Miss Feagin admitted yesterday that she did not come to Washington alone, but was accompanied by Eggleston and Stewart, with whom she discussed what happened in the grand jury room.

This happened Monday and Tuesday, but Miss Feagin told the grand jury she could not remember what was said.

"We now feel that there has been an effort to obstruct this investigation," Maloney concluded, calling Official Reporter F. L. Connor to the witness stand.

Connor read this transcript of Miss Feagin's testimony. She told the grand jury that two weeks ago Kable and Co., an Illinois firm, prepared a duplicate of the master mailing list and that she gave this to a Scribner's writer named Ralph Townsend. She said she could not recall what Townsend or Eggleston said about why this unusual step was being taken.

Eggleston and Stewart were highly interested when she was summoned by the grand jury, Miss Feagin testified, and came here and stopped at the same hotel she did. First she said the executives did this because they wanted to be witnesses, too. Later she said they made no effort to contact the prosecutors or Foreman John S. Gorrell of the grand jury. Then she added that testimony "wasn't their purpose in coming here. Their purpose was to be here when I was here."

While her testimony was read, the tall brunette listened tensely, resting her chin on her hand. Her previous smiles were supplanted by an angry frown. She stammered nervously when Justice Morris called her to the bar and asked whether she wished to consult a lawyer.

Justice Postpones Action

Miss Feagin first asked for Attorney Nicholas Chiascione, whom she had spoken to previously. Since Chiascione was not available, Miss Feagin spoke to William E. Leahy, with whom Chiascione is associated. Leahy was in a nearby courtroom trying an antitrust case.

As the conference dragged on, Justice Morris announced that he would postpone action until 10 a. m. today to give time for more leisurely consultation, so that when Miss Feagin goes back to the grand jury room she will have "the calm and composure which the grand jury is entitled to expect of a witness.

One German agent, Frank B. Burch, Akron, Ohio, lawyer, pleaded guilty to failing to register with the State Department. Another, George Sylvester Viereck, is awaiting trial for incomplete registration with the State Department. Also indicted, on two charges of perjury, was George Hill, office of Representative Hamilton Fish.

Roosevelt Given Plan for New Donovan Offices

Tentative plans for a new Federal building to house the offices of the Coordinator of Information were placed before President Roosevelt yesterday by W. E. Reynolds, Commissioner of Public Buildings, and Thomas Early, executive assistant in the COI.

Early told White House reporters a model had been submitted to the President.

The information agency, which is headed by Col. William Donovan, now has office space in the Apex Building and in a temporary building at Twenty-fifth and E Streets Northwest.

U. S. Charges SWP Urged Revolution

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, Nov. 5.—The Government charged today in trial here of 28 persons on charges of seditious conspiracy, that the Socialist Workers Party told its workers back in March, 1939, how Hitler could be defeated but that the plan involved overthrow of governments in democracies.

Government prosecutors introduced in the trial an article in the Socialist Appeal, national SWP organ, saying that in fighting Hitler the main enemy is at home—"the imperialistic countries of England, the United States and France.

"Your first job is get rid of these bosses and their governments in your own country," the article said.

"You must free yourself and take over the factories, the mines and resources of your country for yourselves and administer them through your own workers' government and not a bosses' government," the article said.

The Government introduced another article from the Socialist Appeal of March 3, 1939, written by a Bill Morgan. The writer quoted Police Commissioner Valentine, of New York as saying he had enough policemen to prevent a revolution.

Then Morgan added "Yeh! Well he ain't seen nothing yet—just wait until the workers are organized into workers' defense guards . . . for a substantial discussion with the fat boys in Nazi uniforms."

Morris Plan Association Reelects Stout as Head

Richard H. Stout, 2831 Twenty-eighth Street Northwest, yesterday was reelected president of the Morris Plan Bankers Association at the organization's annual convention at Sea Island, Ga., the Associated Press reported. Presidency of the association is a full-time job.

Willard G. Barker, president of the Morris Plan Bank here, was named to the association's board of governors.

BUICK BUILDS FOR DEFENSE

Our assignment: Building Pratt & Whitney valve-in-head aircraft engines for defense use.

MAYBE it's a little hard to picture this trim Buick as it will look on that unknown day when you come to turn it in.

There may be scars in its fenders, and use-stains on its upholstery—but the thing that matters is it'll still be going great guns.

You can count on that husky valve-in-head straight-eight to be ticking off the miles with the satisfying extra efficiency it now boasts.

You can rely on Compound Carburetion† to hold your gas-costs down, squeezing every last power-packed mile out of the fuel you burn.

There won't be any loss of easy comfort in those all-coil springs, or any need for care to keep them gentle.

As for the drive—well, there's just nothing to go wrong with a simple steel shaft encased in a stout torque tube!

Tires? You may be through the second or third set before you're finished with any car you buy now—but those Buick broadrim wheels will see to it you get the top mileage each can give.

As for such things as connecting rods and bearings—Buick rods are extra strong, while tests show that our oil-cushioned bearings last twice as long as others under the same load and service.

So go right ahead! Buy this Buick on its last mile instead of its first. That's the smart way to buy these times.

Of this you can be sure: No other car's going to offer greater surety of long, pleasurable, dependable, service—so if you can get a Buick now, better grab it!

†Available at slight extra cost on Buick SPECIAL models, standard on all other Series.

No other car has ALL THIS FOR YOU IN 'FORTY-TWO

You get FIREBALL STRAIGHT-EIGHT VALVE-IN-HEAD ENGINE, for more power and range.

You get COMPOUND CARBURETION (standard on most models), for top economy.

You get OIL-CUSHIONED CRANKSHAFT PINS AND JOURNALS, for much longer bearing life.

You get STURDI-LITE CONNECTING RODS, for greater strength.

You get STEPON PARKING BRAKE, for ease and convenience.

You get BROADRIM WHEELS, for improved ride and handling.

You get FULLY ADJUSTABLE STEERING POST, for extra comfort.

You get BODY BY FISHER, featuring back seats up to 52 inches wide.

You get WEATHERWARDEN venti-heater (standard on LIMITED models, accessory on other Series), for conditioned fresh air all year.

Collateral Forfeit Urged For Speeders

By Howard F. Wentworth
Post Staff Writer

A system to relieve Traffic Court congestion and free policemen for actual enforcement work—under which drivers accused of speeding below 50 miles an hour would forfeit collateral—was proposed to the Commissioners yesterday by the Police Court judges.

Meeting in the office of Commissioner John Russell Young with other enforcement and traffic-control officials, the judges pointed out that 95 per cent of all arrested speeders plead "guilty" and the testimony of officers is not necessary.

No specific action on the suggestion was taken after Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech indicated that special legislation would be necessary to change present compulsory court appearances of accused speeders.

Policemen's Time Wasted

It was pointed out that policemen assigned to traffic work are now forced to spend as much as half a day in court waiting to testify against a speeding defendant and then have the motorist enter a guilty plea and receive a fine without a word of testimony heard.

The judges, it was reported, also questioned wording of the law pertaining to parking within 20 feet of a building line or 50 feet from an intersection. One judge went so far as to say he "defied anyone to explain what it means," it was reported.

Right-of-Way Rule Assailed

The regulation governing right of ways between vehicles at intersections also came in for a verbal lashing from the jurists, it was announced following the meeting.

All those present at the round-table discussion vetoed repeated proposals for establishment of a magistrate system here. They said it was impracticable.

Also sitting in on the conference was Police Supt. Edward J. Kelly; Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways; Inspector Arthur E. Miller, traffic supervisor; Vernon E. West, principal assistant corporation counsel, and Walter Bramhall, chief clerk of Police Court.

Police said the car which struck the woman was driven by Norman E. Pyles, 32, of Rockville, a member of the Rockville Volunteer Fire Department.

In Washington yesterday a coroner's jury hled for the action of Police Court under negligent homicide the driver of an automobile which fatally injured a 13-year-old boy last Thursday.

Charles J. Divirgilio, 28, of Marshalltown, Del., was deemed negligent in the operation of his car at the inquest into the death of Allen Kennedy, 13, 2434 Franklin Street Northeast, whose body remained at the Morgue 20 hours before it was identified.

It was testified that Divirgilio's automobile skidded and struck the boy at Eastern Avenue and Bladensburg Road Northeast. Force to the collision indicated the car was speeding, it was said.

of the guests were believed to be transients.

Three men from Roanoke—P. G. Patram, Lowell McKinley, and Harry McKinley—raced down a blazing staircase to the street from their second floor room, and Patram suffered burns. They said they were awakened by the screams of other guests.

Hundreds of Alexandrians thronged to the scene, and Military Police from Fort Belvoir, on regular patrol in the city, lent a hand to the regular police and firemen.

The Monticello Hotel is one of the oldest buildings on King Street. It was gutted by fire last year, and only recently had been remodeled.

For more than an hour the fire threatened to spread to two adjacent three-story structures, one of which is a new office building; the other, the Wheatley funeral home, from which much of the apparatus was removed before the blaze was placed under control.

Last summer a general alarm fire in Alexandria's waterfront section threatened the Naval Torpedo Plant after destroying several buildings. Marines attached to the plant joined the fire-fighting forces.

Police Judges Confer With Commissioners

NEW COURT SYSTEM PROPOSED—Police Court judges yesterday conferred with District Commissioners on the proposal of a system to relieve traffic court congestions and free policemen for actual enforcement work. Contract Bridge

That masters can upon occasion muddle hands, is indicated in these two examples from "The American Contract Bridge League Bulletin." Hands from the national masters' team game, they were submitted to two champions (names withheld) who both found the correct play on the first hand but failed on the second.

♠ A K 6 4
♡ J 9 5 3
◇ A Q 7

SOUTH
♡ Q 8 7 6 4 2
♣ 7 5 4

East	South	West	North
3 ◇	Pass	Pass	3 NT
Pass	4 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

The diamond ten is opened. How do you plan the play of the hand?

Now for the second problem, the one on which the champions failed:

♠ Q 7 5 3
♡ A 10 8 6 4
◇ A 5

♠ A K 9 6

SOUTH

The bidding; both sides vulnerable:

West	North	East	South
1 ♣	Dble	Pass	2 ♡
2 ♠	3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

West opens the spade king. Dummy plays small; East plays the deuce, and declarer the eight. How do you continue the defense? The answers follow:

1. Both declarers went up with the diamond ace, and both went into the same huddle that you did. The next play was the spade ace, followed by the spade king, and then a third round of spades, ruffing the closed hand. A small trump was led up to dummy. The extra precaution of playing the hand this way was rewarded when it was discovered that West held the three trumps and a doubleton diamond. If a trump is led from the dummy immediately West will win, return the second diamond, and then must cash his third trump, the ten, for the setting trick.

2. This is not an open-and-shut hand because West must decide which king declarer holds. If he has the club king West must shift to a diamond. If, on the other hand, declarer holds the diamond king and possibly the queen and jack, which was the actual case, West must shift to the club ace, and thus four tricks are cashed before declarer gets the lead. In this particular hand the suit-preference discard works beautifully. The club shift is demanded by the spade deuce.

Auto Inspection Stations Checked

Baltimore, Nov. 5 (AP).—The State is checking its own inspection stations—1,385 garages and filling stations—just to make sure they really test the more than 500,000 Maryland automobiles which must obtain safety stickers before December 15.

Elmer Free, in charge of the annual inspection by the commissioner of motor vehicles, said today two State inspectors were touring the various authorized stations.

In addition, he said, the commissioner's office was interviewing motorists who already have obtained their stickers, asking them if all required tests were made. Police throughout the State have been asked to watch for cars, obviously unsafe, which have obtained the new stickers.

BLUE-WATER BLITZ!

Fastest fighter afloat, her speed's a Navy secret ...no secret, though, that Camel outspeeds all cigarettes in popularity with Navy men

ALL OF A SUDDEN three propellers tear the water behind her into tattered white lace, and from an easy, silent glide she roars into battle speed as fast, almost, as you can blink. She's the Navy's new darling . . . and what a girl! All dressed up with four torpedo tubes and four machine guns. She's a thunderbolt. Fast as lightning . . . and she hits harder.

YOU'VE GOT TO BE GOOD to serve on her crew. Over 4,000 horse-power running "all-out" means that she leaps from wave-top to wave-top—her crew lashed to their stations. No wonder, after a thrilling session on this blue-water blitz the first words you hear from the men are: "Boy, a cigarette, quick!" (And that means Camel—favorite of Navy men.)

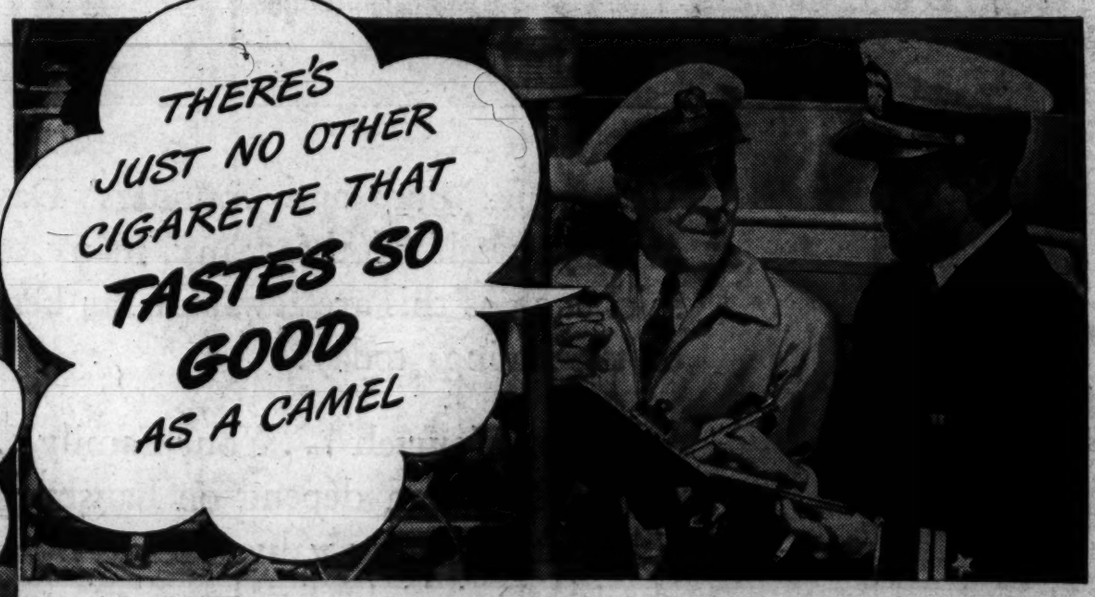
IRWIN CHASE speaking. He's chief of the naval division, Electric Boat Co., one of the outfits making Uncle Sam's new P T boats. Many's the midnight Camel he smoked over the blue-prints of these blue-water blitzes. And after a session on that fresh air battle-bridge (he's in the action pictures at the top of the page, too), "There's just nothing like a Camel," he declares.



IT'S AS TRUE as the sextant's reading of the sun at high noon . . . this fact: Camels are the favorite of modern America. Active America. Busy, up-and-doing America. Take a man like Irwin Chase (above), Elco's naval architect. Take the men in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard. Their favorite cigarette is Camel.*

The extra coolness, extra flavor, extra mildness, and 28% less nicotine in the smoke of Camel's slower-burning costlier tobaccos all add up to that "extra something" that Camel fans say just no other cigarette seems to give them. Try a pleasure cruise on Irwin Chase's smoking chart—make your next cigarette a slower-burning Camel. Gas 'War' Seen If D. C. Tax Is Increased

Harry R. Wainwright, representing District gasoline dealers, yesterday warned a Senate District Subcommittee that local dealers may be faced with a gasoline war against stations in nearby Virginia and Maryland if the House-passed 2-cent increase in the local gasoline tax becomes law.

"Low operating costs in suburban areas may enable dealers there to undersell local dealers," he told the subcommittee which is holding hearings on the gas tax increase and the off-street parking bill.

He advocated a 1-cent increase in the tax.

The subcommittee under the chairmanship of Senator Burton (Republican), of Ohio, also heard opposition to the 2 cent gasoline tax from representatives of several District organizations.

B. Y. K. Howat, representing the Washington Board of Trade, proposed that parking be allowed on the Mall and in park areas where it is now prohibited. He expressed the organization's opposition to any move which would ban parking on downtown streets.

The Board of Trade also went on record in opposition to an all-night parking ban because it is "impractical" at present; favored an extension of the use of parking meters; favored a survey of Government-owned land to determine where Federal workers might park their automobiles.

E. D. Merrill, president of Capital Transit, recommended general traffic improvements, including:

1. Approval of the principle of the Whitehurst highway improvement plan.
2. Installation of a coordinated traffic light control system.
3. Elimination of double parking.
4. The addition of more police to the District force to aid the traffic light system in directing traffic.

George E. Kneipp, manager of the District branch of the Keystone Automobile Club, opposed any increase in the gasoline tax. He declared that the more important aspects of the Whitehurst program could be financed under the existing tax.

"The citizens' tax burden in 1942 will reach unprecedented heights," he declared. "The Federal tax on gasoline has been increased. Further taxation has been imposed on automobiles and accessories."

The hearings will continue at 9:30 a. m. today in Room 301 of the Senate Office Building. Scheduled to testify are Harry Wender, representing the Federation of Citizens Associations, and Sidney Katz, representing the Industrial Union Council (C. I. O.).

Gas Dealers Seek Early Closing Rule

The Retail Gasoline Dealers Corporation voted last night to seek a mandatory Governmental order closing all service stations on the Eastern Seaboard at 7 o'clock each night.

Two hundred station dealers meeting in the new Interior Building authorized the organization's research director, H. R. Wainwright, to seek the order from "the properly constituted Government authority."

No one was precisely clear as to what this authority would be. It would be some defense agency, it was agreed, possibly the OPM.

Issuance of the order would return Eastern Seaboard service stations to the status they held under the recently repealed order of Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes, except that under the new plan, closing at 7 p. m. would presumably be compulsory and violators subject to prosecution.

Most retail gasoline dealers in Washington are now closing at 7 p. m. anyhow, but those who are closing feel rather unkindly toward the 40 or so dealers Wainwright estimates are keeping their stations open after that hour.

Funeral Is Set Tomorrow for Mrs. Deahl

Funeral services for Mrs. Phebe Jane Stoutenbough Deahl, 78, lifelong resident of Alexandria, who died unexpectedly at her home, 107 West Walnut Street, Alexandria, late Tuesday, will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 at Grace Episcopal Church. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Robert C. Masterton, rector of the church, and burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

She leaves two daughters, Mrs. James M. Duncan, jr., wife of the Alexandria fire chief, and Mrs. Robert Griffith Turner, Battle Creek, Mich.; one son, Lieut. Col. Charles J. Deahl, jr., Camp Walters, Tex., and nine grandchildren.

'Missing' Actress Expected Home

ANA LISA DOBAT, 27, former star of German films, who left her Hollywood home Monday after leaving a note to her husband, Harold Daniels, film writer-director, is expected to return today. Daniels said yesterday he talked by telephone to his wife, who received American citizenship papers nine months ago. She had walked 45 miles to Grand Canyon from Williams, Ariz., after taking a train from Hollywood, Daniels said. He wired her $25 with which to come home

Reformation Ideals Urged By Dr. Maier

The twentieth century needs a restatement and reemphasis of the Reformation principles, Dr. Walter A. Maier, distinguished Lutheran theologian, declared here last night.

DR. MAIER

He spoke before 350 laymen and clergy of six branches of Lutheranism at a testimonial dinner given in his honor by Washington area Lutherans at Hotel 2400.

Dr. Maier said the Bible must be restored to its proper place in the churches and in the homes; there must be a more practical appreciation of home life and family solidarity, and a return to Reformation ideals of Christian training for America's youth.

"Particularly," continued Dr. Maier, "must we harken back to the Reformation refusal to permit the state to control the conscience and religious conviction of the individual."

Lutherans in America, he said, total state" that restricts Christian-total state" that restricts Christianity and retards the churches' work."

Dr. Maier insisted that we must return to the Reformation teaching concerning the issue of war and peace, stressing that while Martin Luther and his coreformers were not pacifists, neither were they militarists who glorified in the shedding of blood.

At the close of his address, broadcast over Station WOL, Dr. Maier praised the fraternal spirit of the dinner and said that while most Lutherans were praying for union, he warned that such action must be based on complete doctrinal agreement.

Dr. Maier was introduced by William S. Knudsen, codirector of OPM, and he praised that Government leader for his contribution toward furthering the work of "The Lutheran Hour," now broadcast over 300 stations. Knudsen is a member of Epiphany Lutheran Church of Detroit.

Chaplain H. H. Heuer, assistant in the Chief of Chaplains' Office, described the Lutheran service center project for service men.

Representatives of the United, American, Missouri, Augustana, Danish and Norwegian Lutheran Synods attended the banquet. Representative W. J. Boehne, of Indiana, introduced members of the House and Senate present.

Four former students of Dr. Maier at Concordia Lutheran Seminary in St. Louis came from South Carolina and Georgia for the function. The youth choir of Luther Place Memorial Church sang.

D. C. Commission Will Trim Police Accident Prevention Unit, Relieve All Men Over 64; Action Based on Committee Study

The Commissioners yesterday approved a general "house cleaning" of the Metropolitan Police Department to include reorganization of the Accident Prevention Unit and ousting of all policemen over 64.

Action by the city officials was based on recommendations of a special municipal investigating committee submitted last August.

All changes, it was announced, will become effective immediately except in cases where special orders by Police Superintendent Edward J. Kelly are necessary.

Maj. Kelly was instructed to review his A. P. U. setup and transmit reorganization suggestions. The Commissioners have long been of the opinion that the accident investigation group should be pared down and placed in command of a qualified captain.

In ruling that no police officer be retained in service beyond the age of 64, the Commissioners rejected a proposal that no officer who has not reached the grade of inspector be kept after 60. This was done, it was explained, in order to make easier the selection of a future police chief.

Under the new order, precinct commanders are given the authority to discipline officers for minor offenses and levy fines not to exceed $25 without Trial Board action. The accused policemen are granted the privilege of appealing to the Trial Board.

Regardless of length of service, all policemen below the rank of captain must attend the police school at least once a week at regularly assigned periods.

In all future promotions, the Commissioners ordered, seniority shall count first when men are equally qualified otherwise.

Police officials were instructed to confer with Civil Service authorities to map details of examination requirements for special detectives to be added to the force at $3600 a year and report back to the commissioners.

The commissioners' special "efficiency committee," which drafted the recommendations included Assistant Engineer Commissioner B. C. Snow, chairman; Maj. Kelly, Inspector Harvey Callahan, assistant superintendent of police; Inspector Richard Mansfield, chief of detectives; Budget Officer Walter Fowler and Maj. James Lusby, disbursing officer for the District.

Ten Due to Retire Under New Order

Two lieutenants, an acting sergeant and seven privates are due for immediate retirement from the Metropolitan Police Department under the retirement plan approved yesterday.

Highest ranking officers affected by the ruling are Lieuts. William H. Carlin, commander of the Harbor Precinct, and John T. Wittstatt, Tenth Precinct, 65 and 66, respectively.

The acting sergeant is John W. Kite, liaison officer at Police Court, who is 68. Also 68 is Private Frank M. Howard, Harbor Precinct, the oldest man in point of service in the department. He has been a policeman for 45 years.

Others affected are Privates J. W. Clinkscales, 64, Fifth Precinct; William D. Cousins, 65, Twelfth Precinct; Norris W. Jones, 65, and William W. McGregor, 65, Tenth Precinct; Herbert B. Rector, 64, Second Precinct, and Thomas S. Delany, 66, driver of the Police Court van.

Labor Queries War Building Accident Rate

A committee of building trades labor leaders are seeking to confer with Army officials to discover what steps are being taken to reduce the "alarming accident rate" on the rush construction job of the War Department's projected giant Arlington building, it was learned last night.

The action was voted yesterday at the regular meeting of the executive committee of the Building Trades Council which also directed the group to discover whether the building actually was located in Virginia or the District of Columbia. Important questions of unemployment and accident compensation and travel-time pay hinge on this determination.

John Locher, secretary of the Building Trades Council and member of the special committee appointed yesterday, said he understands the accident rate has been unusually high because of the rush nature of the job and failure of the War Department to enforce adequately its own safety hules.

The Trades Unionist, edited by Fred S. Walker, member of the special committee and the D. C. Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board, described employment on the building as "most hazardous" in this area at the present time.

Although specific figures were not available, the Trades Unionist said there were several deaths and many injuries, including broken legs and broken backs.

"Quartermaster Corps regulations contain some very fine safety rules, but we don't know what steps are being taken to enforce them," Locher said.

G. W. U.'s Sociology Students

By Earl J. Wilson
Post Staff Writer

George Washington University has one of its students in the District Jail, another teaching broom-making, and another cutting out doll dresses, each as part of his college education.

In fact, nearly 100 G. W. U. sociology students are spending part of their time each week in 28 social agencies under a program begun two years ago by Dr. Carl D. Wells, professor of sociology.

"It gives warmth," Dr. Wells says, "to the things the students read in their text books."

At the beginning of their course in sociology students are given a choice between working 30 hours at one of the social agencies during the semester, and writing a 3000-word term paper.

Many take the chance to prepare themselves further for their chosen profession, and stay with the agency long after the assignment is over, Dr. Well says.

A chemistry student working at the Self-Help Exchange, 2529 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, two years ago developed a type of face cream which has been manufactured there ever since..

Two girls, both premedical students, now are working in the clinics at Emergency Hospital and the Episcopal Ear, Eye, Nose and Throat Hospital.

The student working for the Bureau of Rehabilitation in the District jail hopes to become a criminologist. Meanwhile he is receiving free room and board at the jail and receiving class credit in return for interviewing prisoners and procuring elementary case histories.

Some young men are doing probation work under the United States Probation Office with juvenile wards. These pupils go out and develop a "big brother" relationship with delinquents and try to establish them in a better environment.

At Americanization classes in the Webster School, where aliens study for their first naturalization papers, students are helping to teach such necessary things as how to make change and how to get from one section of the city to another.

Others work in Friendship House, Georgetown Children's House, Lutheran Inner Mission, Temple Center and like agencies. For a number of hours each week they read stories to the children, teach dancing, lead games, make doll dresses, take the youngsters on hikes and help out in the day nursery. Last year, several students performed valuable work by helping blind students in other schools with their reading. One boy is helping youngsters in elementary school with their homework.

A toy lending library, established by the Mortar Board Society of G. W. U. several years ago in Friendship House, gets help from students who help recondition the toys and supervise lending them to children. At the Y. M. C. A. two girls are working as librarians, and at a local school, several are helping with a dietetic study of the children receiving free lunches.

Self-Help Exchange, an organization where unemployed persons may work and receive "script" to exchange for the products of other workers, is popular with the students. Here they teach the applicants various jobs, cooking, baking, the manufacture of brooms and sewing.

Other students form cooperative buying clubs, organizing groups of underprivileged people so they may save by buying their needs wholesale. The purpose of the program, says Dr. Wells, "is to train citizens in the knowledge of the way in which they can help their fellow citizens," and he adds, "it seems to do this."

George Washington University has long been a pioneer in the field of sociology. Lester F. Ward, known as the "father of sociology," author of a dozen classical books on the subject, had four degrees conferred upon him by G. W. U. Later from 1885 until 1889 he taught the subject there. Today a society, founded in 1936 by Dr. Wells, commemorates Dr. Ward.

2. A CLEAN SWEEP IN SOCIOLOGY is the aim of Emmett Skinner (left). He instructs Self-Help Exchange workers in making brooms.

3. FOND OF CHILDREN, Betsy Ericson, another G. W. U. sociology student, works in the day nursery at Temple Center, Tenth and N Streets Northwest.

4. IT'S WORTH 3000 WORDS to Barbara Thurman (right) to aid the cooking class at Georgetown Children's House. She chose to work 30 hours at the social agency instead of writing a 3000-word term paper.

One Film Now Makes Two Photos

By Howard W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 5.—A secret material developed here recently makes an entirely new kind of photograph which is formed partly of light rays themselves.

The new photos can do things never done before. Two can be developed on the same piece of film, one on top of the other. Three-dimensional pictures, both stills and movies, are practicable.

This new film is a secret for military reasons. It is wholly an American discovery, and there is nothing like it elsewhere.

How the new material makes pictures is told in the Journal of the Optical Society of America by Edwin H. Land, of the Polaroid Corporation, Cambridge.

He started by figuring out mathematically that two pictures could be made in the same place on a film if he could sort out and separate the motions made by light rays.

One motion is straight ahead. The other is a sway, of each ray, from side to side, called the vibration. Each ray has its own individual sway. The variety of these sways is unlimited.

It was these swaying motions that Land sought to separate. His new material does this. It is able to change the random sway and to make all rays, or some of them, sway in the same direction in unison.

Photographs are first taken on ordinary film by standard cameras. They are transferred by regular photographic processes to the secret film.

When one photo is printed on top of the other, the right eye will see one of them and the left eye the other one if viewed through special viewing spectacles. To make this possible, one photo is developed on the front side of the film, the other on the back. The film is transparent. Being formed of light rays swaying at right angles to each other, the two photos do not interfere in the slightest.

The practical possibilities are tremendous. One is to make three-dimensional motion pictures which can be shown without any change in the present equipment of the theaters.

Three-dimensional still pictures are made in the same way. One wartime possibility is to use a pair of such pictures to detect changes in enemy lines. If a photo taken on one day is overlaid by one taken later of the same scene, the glasses will show clearly any change made between pictures.

This super-position principle was used during the World War, but with other materials. Astronomers used it later to discover the new planet Pluto.

SOMETHING NEW IN PHOTOGRAPHY—By a new method, it is possible to photograph two subjects on the same film. Here, the new process is used to picture President Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie. To the naked eye, they are a blur, but through the glasses lying on the photo each is clearly definable

An Anniversary Is Celebrated

There are doubtless many ways of celebrating an anniversary and the boy with the huge blue eyes and the smile worth at least a couple of million dollars was celebrating this one by making a cedar dagger as a gift to a good lady friend by the name of Mrs. Snow.

"I have a table at home I made, too, and a boat and some ashtrays and stools," said Raymond Sanford, yesterday rubbing sandpaper on the cedar and smiling that remarkable smile again.

"I made them all here. You see, I've been coming here nine years."

That meant Raymond was 5-years-old when he started going to the Barney Neighborhood house, 470 N Street Southwest, where yesterday the fortieth anniversary of the settlement was being observed. There was an "open house" and a number of grown-ups were walking around looking studiously at handicraft displays, dance classes and so on.

Other grown-ups, including Mrs. Wallace F. Snow, assistant resident, were setting tables for the big anniversary dinner last night.

Raymond has the energy of 10 beavers and among other things can hold a harmonica between his lips and play "Turkey in the Straw" like all get-out. His energy is indeed so terrific that some people believe if his interests hadn't been directed along lines of making wooden daggers, tables and such he might be turning over the garbage pails of the people in the next block.

Since Raymond is so adept at making usable items from two-by-four wood someone thought yesterday afternoon he might intend to be a carpenter when he gets big.

"Nah," said Raymond continuing to sandpaper the wood, "I don't think I'll be a carpenter. Hard telling what I'll be. I'm kinda figuring on being a jockey. I'm trying to keep my weight down. I run up and down a field in the hot sun every day keeping it down."

The anniversary dinner was held last night. Speakers included Mme. Laura L. Dreyfuss-Barney, after whose mother the house was named; Harry S. Wender, who as a boy used to go to the settlement and is now president of the Southwest Citizens Association; Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, wife of the former minister to Czecho-Slovakia; George E. Fleming, settlement treasurer, and Miss Margaret Bell Merrill, head resident.

Mrs. George C. Thorpe, president of the board of trustees, was toastmistress.

By time for the big anniversary dinner the blue-eyed boy with the smile worth a minimum of two million dollars had finished his cedar dagger for his good lady friend.

Last Rites Set Tomorrow for Miss Bealle

Funeral services for Miss Frances Emily Bealle, who saw President Lincoln escape death by an enemy bullet, will be conducted tomorrow at 2 p. m. from the Wright funeral home, 1337 Tenth Street Northwest.

Miss Bealle died suddenly Tuesday at the home of her nephew, Morris A. Bealle, 1323 Tewkesbury Place Northwest, after having seemingly recovered from a slight illness.

Born in Prince Georges County, Md., on September 16, 1856, Miss Bealle spent her early childhood with her grandmother on a farm located near Fort Stevens, near what is now Brightwood, D. C.

It was here that she witnessed what she claimed as the most memorable incident of her life—the sight of President Lincoln being shot at by Confederate soldiers attacking Fort Stevens during the later stages of the Civil War.

Her story, accurately collaborating historical data of the battle, reveals that the Confederates attacked Fort Stevens in the hopes of gaining entry to Washington. Miss Bealle and several other small children were playing in a road near the fort as Gen. Early massed his soldiers on a nearby hill.

During a lull in the barrage Lincoln stood up in the open and attained the distinction of being the only President of the United States ever to experience actual combat fire during his term in office.

According to Miss Bealle's story, the President had his hat shot off and narrowly escaped death as a Confederate Minie ball killed a Union surgeon standing beside him.

Miss Bealle leaves two nephews and two nieces—Charles R. Bealle, of Kenilworth, Md.; Morris A. Bealle, of Washington; Mrs. Jeanette Bealle Scott, of Takoma Park, Md., and Mrs. Annie E. Buckley, of Washington.

Interment will be in the Bealle family plot in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Hankin Likely To Take PUC Post Monday

Gregory Hankin, confirmed by the Senate Tuesday as a member of the Public Utilities Commission, probably will not take over his new duties "before next Monday," according to William A. Roberts, his attorney, last night.

Although nearly a dozen vital issues have been pending before the PUC since it became inactive last February with the death of Chairman Riley Elgen, Hankin cannot be sworn in until the President signs his confirmation certificate, it was explained.

Among more important matters awaiting attention of the PUC is a petition for increased taxicab rates. A public hearing—the only one set—is scheduled for November 13.

Hearings recently were completed before Engineer Commissioner Charles W. Kutz, sole PUC member, on Capital Transit Co. proposals to convert a number of two-man street cars to one-man operation. Decision was deferred pending a quorum PUC membership.

Other important cases include:

A Capital Transit Co. request for a straight 10-cent cash fare on its Takoma express bus line; establishment of a cross-town bus route connecting Westmoreland Circle and Bladensburg Road Northeast (for which a hearing also has been held); demands by upper Sixteenth Street citizens for express bus service and improved connections.

New Drug Has Amazing Potency

Boston, Nov. 5 (AP).—Almost miraculous healing by a new drug discovered in the soil was reported here today to the American College of Surgeons.

The drug is gramicidin, and its potency is from 1,000 to 100,000 times greater than sulfanilamide. It was literally unearthed at the Rockefeller Institute by Dr. Rene Dubose.

Half a dozen of the Nation's greatest medical institutions now are experimenting with it. Gramicidin has cured skin diseases, ulcers, wound infections and infections inside chests. Its limitations and dangers, however, are still largely unknown.

Mr. LaGuardia

Well, there were evidently not quite enough cabbage heads, bums, dopes and goniffs in the five boroughs of New York City to defeat Mayor LaGuardia for a third term. But there were enough of them—plus the others who honestly disagreed with the mayor on various points, and some who may have been disgusted by the vituperation to which he descended in the later stages of his campaign—to make it New York's closest municipal election since early in this century. To be sure, this is not to say that Mr. LaGuardia had not fully earned reelection on the basis of his remarkable record. Or that his defeat by a coalition of local machine bosses would not have done crushing injury to the cause of enlightened municipal government everywhere. But there is very little doubt that if the mayor had been content to let his case with the electorate rest on his achievements during his two terms, and had refrained from senseless personal abuse of his opponents, his plurality would have been considerably larger than it was. We know it is the American tradition (in normal times and up to a certain point) to be tolerant of campaign billingsgate. But a more unpropitious moment than the present for bandying epithets could scarce have been chosen. And Mr. LaGuardia's epithets had not even the merit of being apt.

Our foreign policy was not, openly at least, an issue in the New York election, since Mr. O'Dwyer had declared himself a supporter of the President. Moreover, the President and Mr. O'Dwyer are nominally members of the same political party. All the same Mr. LaGuardia is an international figure, and his antagonism to the Nazis is of such long standing and is so widely known that his defeat would almost certainly have impaired the Roosevelt prestige abroad. As it is, his reelection has been greeted in London, where even now the complexities of American party politics are none too well understood, "with a deep sense of gratitude." Thus the moral seems to be that New York and the Nation should likewise be grateful—grateful that this honest, g i f t e d, intelligent, dynamic warm-hearted man has been given continued opportunities of great public service. We should be grateful, too, that among all these great qualities Mr. LaGuardia's one great defect was not quite enough to destroy him.

Making Americans

It is a pity that during the last century when thousands of refugees were finding a haven in this country, nobody thought to keep a progressive record, a sort of clinical chart, of their absorption into the American scene. Such an undertaking would have presented enormous difficulties, of course. But even a sketchy record, revised, say every five or ten years, would surely have revealed a fascinating overall picture of the assimilative process which is democracy's unique asset. To be sure, we have had many distinguished personal accounts of the process—Jacob A. Riis' "The Making of An American," for example. But objective, broadscale contemporary studies of sociological value have been almost wholly lacking.

Nevertheless, it appears that we may have some such record covering the Americanization of refugees from Hitler-dominated lands. The Committee for Selected Social Studies has recently completed a survey of these refugees, under the auspices of Columbia University. And its findings refute, among other things, the uninformed but rather common charge that most refugees either have to be supported or, if they find employment, take jobs away from American citizens. According to the committee secretary, who appeared the other evening on Mrs. Roosevelt's weekly radio program, only 3 per cent of the refugees are dependent on sponsors, relatives, or welfare agencies. We have no way of knowing how wide a sampling the surveyors made—some 150,000 refugees entered the United States to establish residence during the past [illegible] years—but the percentage estimate [illegible] incredibly small.

[illegible] there is apparently no questioning the fact that refugee enterprises in New York, where nearly half the refugees have settled, employ approximately 9000 persons, two-thirds of whom are Americans. This is a novel twist to the relationship customarily ascribed to citizen and immigrant. And it may be that presently, when the world is once again at peace, many refugee entrepreneurs will return to their homelands. But many will also stay, adding their increment of talent to America's heritage, just as their predecessors did. Upon this group—if it can be distinguished—the committee should periodically turn the spotlight of inquiry. For in a sense it is merely another unit of the mass organisms out of which, by accretion, the Nation has grown.

Warmongering

It is strange that those who would face the fact that war is lapping both our Atlantic and our Pacific coasts and who would consequently scrap the nonsense of neutrality are branded as warmongers. It is stranger still that such an accusation should be made in the light of the fresh news from Japan. Japan is putting a gun up to Uncle Sam's head in the form of a seven-point program: the United States must agree—or else!

The seven-point program in itself is the coolest piece of impertinence with which any self-respecting nation could be confronted. It is painful evidence of the contempt which our Janus-faced foreign policy has aroused in little Japan. But in the form of a gun this seven-point program becomes a challenge to our national unity. The program, of course, is not official. It appears in the Japan Times-Advertiser, but, since this paper has now become an official organ, we are justified in regarding the program as official. It is published as a kind of send-off for Saburo Kurusu, former Arbassador to Germany, who is coming to Washington on a special mission. The mission is aimed at expediting the "negotiations" with the United States before the Diet meets on November 15. On that date judging from all accounts, the Diet may hear from Premier Tojo that the Land of the Rising Sun has decided to face a conflict with the United States in case the United States refuses to "come to terms." Doubtless Mr. Kurusu, who is heralded as the agent of showdown, carries in his satchel something like the seven-point program as a kind of ultimatum.

The terms, in general, would validate all Japan's conquests and pretensions since the Japanese militarists took their unhappy nation on the warpath. We must stop all military and economic aid to China. Indeed, we must end even our friendship with Chungking, and advise the generalissimo to make peace with Japan. In the peace-making process we must not interfere with our counsel. That would mean that we must desert the country which has been holding for five long years a Japanese juggernaut bent upon kicking the United States out of the Pacific.

The program, however, does not stop there. We must quit building defenses in the Pacific, even to protect the Philippines and Hawaii. There must be an end to the economic restrictions which we have imposed upon our trade with Japan, partly in an effort to restrain Japanese expansion, partly because we must conserve our resources for our Atlantic defense. We must immediately unfreeze all Japanese assets in America. There must be an abandonment of those economic relations we have established with the British and the Dutch East Indies for the insurance of materials from Indonesia needed in our defense effort. We must recognize Manchukuo. In short, we must agree to Japan's assumption of the lordship of the Pacific which she euphemistically calls her very own "co-prosperity sphere."

This is the program that Mr. Kurusu as the agent of this showdown expects the United States to swallow. It is accompanied by threats which are increasing in violence as the day of the fateful session in the Diet approaches. Yet the American isolationists leveled the charge of warmongering at those Americans who wish only to take off our false face and our shackles and put our country in a posture of positive defense. The charge should be returned to the accusers. With Germany avowedly engaged in trying to control the Atlantic, with Japan on the same quest in the Pacific, we are faced with a "stand and deliver" menace on both our coasts. Surely any appearance of disunity at this time will do nothing but egg on the warmakers in both oceans. In common sense our plain duty while clearing the Atlantic is to display in the Pacific a solid national front which would arm our diplomacy in the coming tussle. The firmness of the State Department can gather reality only from the national will.

Let the Senate think beyond old habits, past words, mere personalities. It should not be difficult to imagine all Japanese eyes now riveted on its discussions, or the consequences of those discussions. If the bill to scrap the Neutrality Act fails, even if it passes by only a small majority, the jingoes of Japan will be enboldened to carry out their threats. The strain between Japan and America, as the Japanese themselves say, has never been more severe. It is severe enough to call for a vote for the comprehensive revision of the Neutrality Act so decisive as to leave the Japanese under no illusions as to American unity. This is the truest way of keeping the peace in the Pacific. Irresolution over the issue of keeping the shabby remains of a statute that mocks the facts of our perilous international life is the surest road to war, and those who would retain any vital part of the statute are the real warmongers.

Price Control

In the national interest the President must take a decisive stand against the amended price-control bill reported by the House Banking Committee. The original Administration bill was a thoroughly unsatisfactory measure. But the new bill is far worse, and would turn a measure for control of living costs into one for increasing them. If the House wished to insure inflation, this is the means to do it.

Just to show what the new measure would mean in fomenting inflation, we will go into the bill statistically. It provides that ceiling prices may not be established for agricultural commodities below the highest of the following levels: (1) the price prevailing on October 1, 1941 (instead of end of July as originally proposed); (2) 110 per cent of parity; (3) the average price prevailing from 1919 to 1929. Take the second alternative. This is also the ceiling set in the Administration bill. The 110 per cent of parity proviso would effectually tie the hands of the Price Administrator as regards many commodities. For example, the farm price of wheat, which was 91 cents per bushel on October 15, would hit 110 per cent of parity at $1.34 per bushel. Corn, selling on the farm at about 65 cents per bushel in mid-October, would have to rise to 97.5 cents to reach 110 per cent of parity. Furthermore, these farm ceiling prices do not include distributive costs and profits that would be included in market prices. As a matter of fact, quite a number of farm products have already risen far beyond any of the ceilings—notably wool, and various meat products. Under the House bill these commodities could be kept from soaring still higher, but it showed the market prices could not be reduced by administrative decree below prevailing October 1 levels, however high. In some cases the alternative 1919-29 average-price ceiling (inserted by amendment) is higher than 110 per cent of parity, notably for such staple articles of diet as potatoes and sugar. For example, the ten-year average for cotton would establish a minimum ceiling price of 21.47 cents per pound—quite a boost from the already inflated mid-October farm price of 16.55 cents.

It may be argued that there is no reason to fear that prices will get out of bounds so long as the Administration holds vast stores of cotton and other commodities which could be sold to check undue advances. But mindful of that possibility, the price controllers amended the bill in committee to eliminate a provision specifically empowering the President to buy and sell commodities as a means of controlling prices! Moreover, the farm bloc has another handy weapon for sure-fire price boosting in a bill raising mandatory loans on basic crops from 85 per cent to 100 per cent of parity. That bill, reported by the House Agriculture Committee, would give a further lift to prices of wheat, corn and other food and feed crops. Then for good measure the House Banking Committee has eliminated a provision for licensing businesses that is desired by the Administration as a weapon in reserve to enforce price edicts.

Clearly if we are to have any system of price control worthy of the name, the measure now under consideration will have to be extensively revamped to cover farm products as well as finished goods. Neither the new bill nor the Administration bill serves this purpose. Neither would give the country protection against inflation. If nothing is done, by way of amendment, the country will find its defense efforts seriously impeded by officially approved farm profiteering at the expense of the great body of industrial workers. The President has a great opportunity to declare the paramountcy of the national interest over the selfishness of the special interests which are bent upon bringing on financial ruin.

THE LAST REFUGE

(Many of the refugee children who came to the United States had sought refuge in one or more countries, only to be driven out by the oncoming tide of war).

The tide moves up along the land.
Take your young sister by the hand
And travel towards the mountain road.
The rising sea may be content
In the low valleys and the fields
Where the red clover spills its scent.
Take your young sister, who believes
That the high mountain near the sky
Will stand as it has stood before
Safe from the sea's oncoming tide.
Hold her small hand, but do not turn
To the familiar land again.
High in the mountain stars will burn
When you have reached that lonely place
Where you will wait to hear the wind
Speak as it spoke a year ago
To the quiet face and tranquil mind.
Build a small fire upon the stone
Where nothing green may ever grow.
Lean with your sister to the flame,

Letters To The Editor

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, letters should be held to 300 words. Letters are subject to condensation.

Simple Traffic Changes

In place of correcting some of the simple mistakes which didn't come to the surface until the recent traffic increase, officials do nothing but talk of the millions needed for overhead and subways and what have you. Spending millions seems to be their greatest desire.

The cost of living has increased considerably of late, and still has chances of increasing much more. Under these circumstances one would think our traffic directors and engineers would try a course of conservative economy. Since National defense will secure all our surplus cash for another few years at least, I've got a hunch that if the money for these large projects was to be raised by drawing on the salaries of everyone who would use the roadways, in proportion to their earning power, you would see efficiency of the means at hand emblazoned in gold letters on every intersection, and hear a hushed silence about spending millions.

As an example of some of the foolish spending in the District of Columbia, thousands of dollars were spent in remodeling and adding a few feet to the width of Sixth Street Northwest. This would give one the idea they were trying to help the traffic situation. Well and good. But if this were the case tell me why they placed obstacles in the center of the street (namely safety islands) taking one full traffic lane. Was it because they thought the pedestrians weren't getting sufficient exercise, and should step up and down on the safety zone to keep their figures or was it a blind to cause the public to think they were helping the traffic situation, when in reality they were jamming traffic worse than before.

As an example of the inefficiency of our traffic directors, you will find the simple traffic aid of painted lanes entirely neglected. By watching traffic on a busy street, you will notice how little of the available space is actually utilized, notice the lost space between the cars on their right and left. On a street having sufficient space for three cars traveling abreast, you will find only one or two lanes of traffic at the most, as drivers will never utilize all the space on a street lacking painted lanes.

A few simple inexpensive improvements and changes would work wonders as I see it.

Moral Leadership

While many people will agree with Mr. Holt L. Marchant, whose letter was published in this column on November 1, most persons, because they dislike being unpopular, will hesitate to speak their sentiments. Mr. Marchant is correct in saying that we lack moral leadership, and that the clergy have failed to set the right standards. They preach one thing and practice something else.

With all their preaching about the apostolic doctrine, we fail to see ministers treading in the footsteps of St. Paul, who, after a day's hard work, trudged wearily down the Appian Way, rejoicing in the knowledge that he had done what was right. And unlike Niemoeller, the clergy in America, and particularly those in Washington, never will be put in jail because they dared to denounce local graft and corruption. They are very vociferous in telling what is taking place abroad, but then that is another story. Converting the clergy will, in my opinion, go a long way toward improving both the morals and the morale of most people. We need a Gandhi in this country. And Kagawa, who keeps only $10 a week for himself and his family (all else goes to charity), should bring shame upon some of our ministers who live sumptuously at the expense of those less fortunate.

Our War Effort

Having read the various letters advocating that we declare war on Germany immediately, I find it my duty to point out important facts which these correspondents have evidently missed.

Are we blind to the menace of a victorious Stalin? Do we realize that the Communist Party of our country is in constant touch with Moscow, that Soviet agents are constantly at work "converting" American labor?

To go to war now would plunge our already debt-burdened country into such a depression that our present standard of living would become only a memory. Our impovished laboring class would become the easy prey of Communist propaganda.

What, then, will happen to our middle class, the backbone of any democracy? In Russia they were placed before a firing squad or sent to Siberia. With Stalin controlling American labor, for what may our middle class hope?

This week three organizations have dared to try to prevent Charles Lindbergh from speaking in New York. Have we come to this? A far-sighted patriot, who is trying to save our country from disaster, is to be denied free speech . . . while the money of American taxpayers is being poured into the coffers of the Soviet! C. S.

Real Peace

There should be "peace on earth toward men of good will." That is a suggestion or a command that we should follow with enthusiasm. But when there are men of vast power who have no "good will" of any kind, whose all-out purpose is to enslave mankind, and do it in the most brutal manner conceivable, then our duty is to fight these men of evil will, banish them from the earth, bring sanity and reason to climax the effort, so that real peace may come and men of good will everywhere will be able to make the world a decent place in which to live. Buying Defense Bonds

You wonder why defense bond sales are lagging. Just how convenient is it for the hard-working person to buy them. It is convenient for defense stamps, but not bonds.

The long hours the banks stay open should be shortened. I would suggest that if daylight savings time ever comes here, that the banks should stay open from 11 to 1 and take off an hour for lunch.

Why not have places in different localities and hours to meet that of the working man so that he would have a better opportunity to purchase them. Incidentally, I purchase a $50 bond every month as I am only a block and a half away. Lots of workers are not that close. What's your idea? SUBSCRIBER.

War Zones

The United States-to-Iceland route is strictly an American route. The waters between the two points are west of Iceland and not by any stretch of the imagination in the European war zone. The Nazis call it a war zone. Mr. Lindbergh repeated that on October 30 at Madison Square Garden.

Why should Mr. Lindbergh recognize the German "war zone?"

Baby Pegler

Squire Pegler is getting into the habit of using some pretty tricky journalistic sleight of hand.

Already peevish, to begin with, Pegler seems to brood himself into such a high state of agitation that he sees things which aren't there, like Baby Snooks, whose story about being chased by four elephants was whittled down by a skeptical daddy to, factually, one small dog.

A fact is a fact; and it is a low-down trick even by the Squire's standards, if you overhear an exasperated mother sigh, "Sometimes I just want to commit murder," to rush around telling the neighbors that you just saw Mrs. Zilch strangling her family, one by one, with a piece of clothesline.

On Wednesday Squire Pegler said John L. Lewis was able to "contribute or lend $500,000 toward the election of President Roosevelt." Contribute or lend. The bankers who handle his reputed $150,000 a year could tell him the difference.

About a month ago the Squire pulled off another version of this literary Hindu rope trick which I saved, because in 25 years I had not seen its equal.

He was taking the hide off a labor thug named Umbrella Mike Boyle, which is all right with me, but he worked himself up to this climax:

"He (Boyle) once raised all the bridges over the Chicago River and left them up, completely blockading these vital public works, the property of the whole people, or threatened to do so, I disremember which . . . (Italics mine)."

Yoo-hoo! Baby Snooks! Now tell Daddy—— ROSCOE WRIGHT.

Low 'Bracketeers'

"This pretty poor record" of defense-bond buying "in the lower-income brackets" was not at all unduly stressed in The Post's October 30 editorial, "Save and Then Save." It is altogether likely that the record will become poorer.

The truth is, we lesser-income "bracketeers" long ago got generally and fully persuaded that, however high our best wages, the money's sole use is for spending as each elects to, on himself and his. We must maintain "American living standards" and none but "the rich" can do this, pay income taxes and buy defense savings bonds, too. We need all of our money to buy what we want. With New Deal processes now in fruition, we are wondering how soon the Government will pay our rents, insurance premiums, gas, light bills and automobile down payments, without obligation on our part. It declines to regulate our wages, while preparing to fix limits on prices of all things else; so why should we be expected to buy defense savings stamps?

Of course, were defense savings bonds immediately negotiable, as were Liberty Bonds of yesteryear, many of us might buy them on the installment plan and cash in on delivery, following the last payment. We must have money—for money's sake. This accounts for so many of us maintaining the "clearing-house" game, each expecting to cash in at 600 to 1. Why, we even hate to pay our union dues and assessments. That is the one reason why our labor leaders strive to become "czars" and threaten national welfare with their all-out demands of industry and Government for the closed shop, especially the "checkoff." Most astute aviator at manipulating the "Immelmann turn" must take second place to me when it comes to evading the union dues collector on my payday.

Financing the state is the dual obligation of "the rich" and abstract Government, is the way the bulk of us low-income "bracketeers" see the thing. Pray for us and a social order that got us that way.

The Post Impressionist

Baltimore Morning

Baltimore is unique. For many years off and on I have found it charming, but never more so than now when I have not seen it for a long time, and my observation takes on a rosy nostalgic tinge.

If you have to be poor, Baltimore is the place to be in; if you are rich, there is no city in the world where you can get better value for your money, or more enjoyment of your philanthropy if you have a turn that way. Think of Johns Hopkins and Enoch Pratt, the Hutzlers, the Leverings and hundreds more! They are as integral a part of the pleasantness and comfort of Baltimore as the nicer order of uncles and aunts are in a home. They belong. Of how few philanthropists in other cities can this be said.

On the other hand, of how many cities can it be said that public sentiment keeps flower vendors on the street corners, obstructing stalls in the open markets, beggars at the curbstones, insisting that all of them have their rights. Even dogs are argued over in the columns of the Sunpapers; the chow was only defending her puppies; such a dog should be permitted more than the legal number of bites out of city employes; get out the fire department by all means to find that toy terrier, its little master's heart is breaking.

How many other cities have licensed box-wagon processions, I wonder. Perhaps Richmond, perhaps Charleston, perhaps New Orleans—not one north of Mason and Dixon, you may be sure. The box-wagon procession is a Baltimore institution like step-scrubbing, street cries and the Sunpapers.

When I come back uptown after having taken an unconscionable time to eat a slice of toast and a thimbleful of jam and to drink two half-cups of coffee (the waiter always remembers) in a comfortable spot with plenty of people to look at, I meet the tired businessmen sauntering to their offices in groups of twos and threes (motorists don't count, but they saunter too). I pause now and then to enjoy the rest of the typical morning scene: rows on rows of colored girls, usually bare of legs, on their knees, back to the street, scrubbing steps. "Fifty thousand white marble steps get scrubbed every day in Baltimore." Perhaps that is Carl Sandburg. Perhaps he thought it was poetry. Perhaps it is. Certainly it has rhythm; if you keep walking you will see the same pattern block after block. Somebody will make a mural of it probably.

If it is the right season, there will be old men, bandy-legged and very, very black, cooling the hot pavement with garden hose or polishing brass knockers and key flaps, taking forever to do it, and standing off every other minute to admire their own handiwork.

Then, most picturesque of all, there is the box-wagon procession. Most of these boxes are pushed, pulled, or scooted if it is downhill, by junkmen, mopmen, window washers, whitewashers. The boxes are of all sorts, but each has its little orange and black metal puller or scooter. The Negroes are inclined toward decoration or perhaps it is drama. Their wagons may have locomotive engine bells or a row of dead light bulbs or, perhaps, a fringe of rabbits' skins or fox tails. Now and then the sides are decorated with cutouts of Hallowe'en or Christmas paper, which looks a little queer in mid-July. Sometimes the wagons themselves look queer: an ancient trunk of sorrel horsehide which may have accompanied some young lady of the seventies to boarding school, makes, without the lid, an excellent receptacle for old Sunpapers and discarded straw hats; another is an old-fashioned hooded baby carriage turned around; it is used for carrying housecleaning rags and brushes; still another is a baby's iron crib mounted on wheels taken from wornout lawn mowers. When last I saw that one, it carried a queer freight—a mounted moosehead and a lot of snowshoes, probably collected from some outing club. While Baltimore has its bootblacks and its junk carriers, it will not lack for local color.

Near the corner of Mount Royal and Charles a small boy bootblack has his box decorated with tissue paper and artificial flowers. Another, a middle-aged man, near North Avenue and Charles, has a little nook between a restaurant and a hat store. He is usually pretty busy, but when he is free he reads diligently and proudly from the two books on a stool beside him—a school dictionary and a copy of the International Sunday School Lessons. He is a bootblack on weekdays and a parson on Sundays, and it takes him all week to "git ready fer Sunday."

The box-wagon procession changes somewhat with the season. In the fall you may hear a rattle-rattle under the windows and a mellow voice crying, "Pottin' dut, madam, right out'n de woods." Or "Black wa'nuts. Crack 'em fer ya, madam. I got me a flatiron right heah." Now and then there is a change. A lanky boy may appear with three or four rat traps in his express wagon. He offers to catch rats for you at 20 cents apiece. You note, too, now and then, that the price of step-scrubbing and window-washing has gone up overnight. How come? "Well'm, we-all belongs to a ridin' club, an' we has to have a quarter to ride an howah." "Where do you get your horses? You're too little to ride, anyhow." "We ain' got no horses, 'm (big eyes at the very idea); we rides bikes at a place on Oak Street. All our ladies is payin' us double so we kin ride."

And it hasn't been so long since all our ladies were raising particular Cain because some of their favorite beggars were being ordered off Charles Street and because the flower vendors were told to leave the curbs and because some of the best Lexington Market stalls (the ones they liked the best, anyhow) were obstructing traffic. What, if you please, is traffic in Baltimore?

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Mission Of The Navy

WITH the casualty lists before him, no one has a right to refuse to face squarely the question whether these American men died in the defense of the United States. They were engaged in delivering supplies to the British Isles and to Iceland. If this dangerous mission is not of the utmost importance to the security and independence of this country, then it ought never to have been undertaken and it ought now to be discontinued. But if it is of the utmost importance, it is our duty to leave nothing undone which can support the Navy in its mission.

LIPPMANN

THE CRUX of the question is whether the British Isles, the home base of the British navy, are or are not of vital importance to the defense of America. If they are not, then no matter how much we may hate Hitler or admire the British, it would be clear that the President has exceeded the true intent of his constitutional powers as Commander in Chief, which is that he must act to prevent irreparable injury to the United States. The fundamental question, then, is whether the conquest of Great Britain by submarine and air blockade and then by invasion would cause irreparable injury to the United States. For it is to prevent the conquest of Britain that our Navy is operating in the North Atlantic, and it is in this operation that American ships have been sunk and American lives lost. It was to prevent the conquest of Britain in the summer of 1940 that we dispatched to England arms from our own arsenals. For this same purpose we transferred to Britain 60 destroyers. For this same purpose we passed the Lend-Lease Act.

Was it necessary or was it unnecessary to do these things? If it was necessary, we have been acting in the defense of America. If it was unnecessary, we have been entangling ourselves in a war of which the outcome does not greatly concern us. Thus always we come back to the same fundamental question: Is the preservation of a strong and friendly British power in the British Isles of vital importance to the American people?

LET anyone who wishes to reach a clear judgment on this question study a map of the world. Then let him fix these facts in mind: Pearl Harbor in the Hawaiian Islands is 2091 miles from San Francisco, 2406 miles from Dutch Harbor in Alaska, 4685 miles from Panama, 5161 miles from Peru in South America. We have made in Hawaii what we believe to be the strongest naval base in the world and we have stationed at Hawaii the most powerful fleet in the world. Is there anyone who does not think it of vital importance to the United States that there should exist more than 2000 miles off the coast of California, nearly 3000 miles from Panama, this stronghold of sea power? Is there anyone who would say it was no threat to America if the Japanese were in Hawaii? Would anyone say that it is not necessary, no matter at what cost, to hold Hawaii?

With this in mind let us look at the Atlantic Ocean. It contains many islands. The distance from Newfoundland in North America to Ireland is 1860 miles: the British Isles are nearer to the North American continent than Hawaii is to California. The distance from Iceland to Newfoundland is 1440 miles: Iceland is very much nearer to North America than is Hawaii. Then there are the Azores, 2098 miles from New York to the port of Fayal, about the same distance as from Honolulu to San Francisco. Gibraltar, believe it or not, is actually nearer to Panama than is Hawaii. Dakar is 1500 miles from Brazil, whereas Hawaii is over 5000 miles from the nearest point in South America. From the Cape Verde Islands to northern Brazil the distance is less than from Hawaii to any point in North America.

IF HAWAII is vital to the defense of the United States in the Pacific, on what ground can it be argued that we are not vitally concerned with the question of whether or not Iceland, Ireland, Britain, the Azores, Gibraltar, Dakar, the Cape Verde Islands and other Atlantic islands are in friendly or in hostile hands? If Japan would be dangerous at Hawaii, who will presume to say that Nazi Germany would not be dangerous if installed not on one island but in a semicircle of islands and strong points, all of them nearer than Hawaii?

We have been told that even if Nazi Germany dominates these strategic points in the Atlantic, we can still defend the Western Hemisphere with our Navy and a good air force. It is impossible, we are told, for Germany to cross the Atlantic if we are properly prepared to resist her. Those who say this have overlooked the fact that South America is nearer to Europe and Africa than it is to North America. From Trinidad to the Argentine is about 4000 miles. The distance is less from Dakar to the Argentine. In defending South America it is we, not a victorious Hitler, who would have the longer line of highly vulnerable sea communications. If, as Col. Lindbergh is so fond of telling us, airplanes can defeat navies, then in a war in the South Atlantic for the defense of South America the strategic advantage would be greatly in Hitler's favor.

Operating from the Portuguese and Spanish islands and from French Africa, he could raid our convoys to South America far more readily than we could raid his convoys. If in addition he established Quisling governments at strategic points in South America, it would be far more difficult for us to get to South America in order to defend it than it is, let us say, for the British to get to Egypt. In fact, I doubt whether there is a single American naval officer who thinks South America could be defended if Great Britain were defeated, and Hitler got hold of the Portuguese, Spanish and French colonies.

THIS IS what the shooting in the Atlantic is about, and unless our naval commanders have gone stark, staring mad when they tell us that the Atlantic outposts are as vital to our defense as is the Pacific outpost at Hawaii, the naval war now being fought in the North Atlantic is of the utmost consequence to the defense of America.

Now the men who are waging that war are taking the supreme risk because their responsible commanders are convinced that their mission is of supreme importance. If it is not, Congress should refuse all naval appropriations and compel the President to order the Navy to return to port. If the mission is important, then the time has come to support it by taking whatever measures are necessary to enable the Navy to do its job at the least cost and in the shortest time.

The Navy is better able to judge than are the general public or writers in newspapers or even Congress, whether it is wise or unwise, practicable or impracticable, necessary or unnecessary, to send American ships to Ireland as well as to Iceland, on this course or on that. The question for the people to decide is whether at the sacrifice of neutrality they wish to defend the outposts of the Americas in the Atlantic. But the strategy and tactics of the defense are naval questions which should not be governed by an antiquated Neutrality Act; they should be left to our naval commanders, who are better able to decide than are Senators and Representatives how best to operate our naval power and in what waters and to what ports.

And we may be sure, since their professional reputations and indeed their lives are staked upon it, that they will run no risks which it would not be more dangerous to refuse than to accept.

Norse Keep Chins Up

Nazi Units Recalled

The voracious Battle of Russia has forced Germany to recall the greater part of her troops in Norway, it was disclosed yesterday by Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, Norwegian Minister to the United States.

Minister Morgenstierne, who recently flew back to this country after a five-week visit to the London headquarters of King Haakon and the refugee Norwegian government, said that at one time there were between 300,000 and 400,000 Nazi troops in his homeland.

The number now has been reduced to 100,000, which keeps Norway's three million disarmed people in subjection. Minister Morgenstierne, in discussing this at his press conference, frequently consulted a young Norwegian who recently escaped from Norway. The refugee said that most of the German combat troops had gone, and that those who now constitute the garrison are men around 45 years of age.

Cheered by London Visit

The tall Norwegian envoy, one of the most popular men in Washington's diplomatic corps, said that he had been much cheered by his visit to London. There he got a close-up picture of Norway's war effort. Norway's merchant marine—four million tons of merchant ships manned by 25,000 Norwegian sailors—is playing a vital role, he said, and besides that, Norwegian soldiers and fliers are in training both in Scotland and Canada.

Norwegian volunteers are escaping and making their way to this country and then to London by the hundreds, Morgenstierne said, but he would not discuss the methods they were using to flee.

"That," he said, "was one of the most heartening and inspiring experiences I had in London—to see these young Norwegians placing themselves at the disposal of the government.

"All told the same story: that resistance in Norway was as strong as ever; that 99 per cent of the people were standing up to the Nazis and to the Norwegian traitors. The latest developments, the execution of some of our finest citizens, the taking of our people's food and their blankets, have further strengthened that resistance."

British Quietly Confident

In London, the diplomat said, he found a "quiet, determined assurance." Nobody, he said, doubted the outcome of the war. The feeling was, he added, that there can't be any outcome but victory, because defeat would mean the end of civilization.

What was expected of the United States? the Norwegian Minister was asked.

"We hope for everything and anything that will contribute to the defeat of Hitler and reestablish a free world and save Christian civilization," he said.

"Decidedly," he added, "the length of the war depends very, very much on what the United States does."

Beat Nazis is Sole Aim

"Of course, for us there is just one thing in the world today—to beat Hitler. There is no in-between position. Our whole freedom, the outlook for the civilized world, depends on the crushing of Hitler and his Nazi gang.

"Anything that holds up the defeat of Hitler is against our vital interests. Russia was attacked like the rest of us. Like us, she is fighting in self-defense today We are with her 100 per cent. We feel that she is fighting our battle, the battle of civilization."

Did Minister Morgenstierne mean to imply that Finland, as has been suggested, ought to make peace now with Soviet Russia? He replied indirectly, saying:

"Anything that contributes to Russia holding up the Nazi hordes is of vital interest to us, and anything that interferes with that is fundamentally against our vital interests."

Today's News Sidelight

Iron Mines, Oil Wells Flank Germans' Goal in East Crimea

German bombers, operating ahead of troops advancing through the Crimean Peninsula, already have struck at the ancient town of Kerch, called Russia's "Pompeii," because of the wealth of ancient tombs and relics found there. Kerch guards the west shore of the narrow Strait of Kerch, at one point only four miles wide, which separates the Crimea from the vital north Caucasus region, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"A seaport strategically situated on this busy wateway between the Black Sea and the Sea of Azov, Kerch is also the terminus of one branch of the Crimean railways," continues the bulletin. "Its population is over 66,000. South of the town are a number of good oil wells, while near-by are the iron mines that are Kerch's chief source of wealth. For a long time Kerch ores were thought inferior because of their phosphorus content, but a new technique of extraction and smelting now produces excellent steel from these deposits. A phosphorus fertilizer is obtained as a by-product.

"Iron ore from this region until recently has been shipped across the Sea of Azov to a large metallurgical plant in Mariupol on the Ukraine mainland. Donets coal was brought back on the return trip to fuel Kerch's own big steel mill. Apart from its trade in iron ore and steel, Kerch normally ships asphalt, fish, tobacco, flour, wheat, barley and wool.

"Ancient Greeks from Miletus founded Kerch as the town of Panticapaeum. One royal tomb archaeologists unearthed at Kerch yielded a king's bow and buckler of pure gold. Even the monarch's whip was intertwined with gold. At his queen's feet lay a golden vase. Golden dishes, jewelry, fine leather boots, fragments of engraved boxwood—these and other priceless finds from the Greek mound tombs of Kerch have required special exhibition wings in many European museums.

"The rich ancient relics of Kerch date mostly from the period of the Kingdom of Cimmerian Bosporus which was overthrown by Mithridates, King of Pontus, about 100 B. C. The ancient acropolis hill, over and around which the town of Kerch is spread, is called Mithridates Hill."

Defense Of The Canal

By Joseph Driscoll

U. S. Holds Trump Cards

The last of several articles by a member of the New York Herald Tribune staff who has returned from investigating conditions in Panama.

UNCLE SAM is holding the trump cards in and around the highly strategic Panama Canal these days, as the struggle for power in that part of the world between the Americas and the Axis agents nears a climax.

Trump No. 1 is our naval force, under the direction of the level-headed, clear-thinking Rear Admiral Frank Sadler, commandant of the Fifteenth Naval District. The far-flung responsibilities of the Navy, from Iceland to Honolulu to Singapore, have not been permitted to interfere with the gradual strengthening, in men and ships, of Admiral Sadler's fleet, which is easily capable of meeting and destroying any possible combination of enemy ships which could be brought against it. And any surface raider which dared to approach within shooting distance of the canal would never survive to tell the tale.

Axis merchant ships have been barred from the canal to forestall any Trojan Horse tricks such as, for example, the "accidental" sinking of a ship at a point where it would obstruct passage of other ships. German and Italian shipping through the canal vanished with the outbreak of war, but until recently Japanese merchantmen made use of the short cut through the canal to reach Atlantic ports. They are now barred with the utmost politeness. When their ships approach Panama Bay and request transit schedules so that they may arrange for the canal trip, they are told, with the straightest of faces:

"Sorry, but there are no transit schedules available today."

Today and tomorrow and the day after tomorrow the same little white lie is repeated to the Japanese until they take the hint and depart for their destination by way of Cape Horn. Thus the Japanese are being discouraged from carrying on their shipping with the Americas.

Meanwhile, excavation work is proceeding as a preliminary to construction of the third lock for the Panama Canal which Congress authorized some months ago as a defense measure. Also, work has been speeded up on the first highway across the Isthmus of Panama. Completion of this road, 50 miles long and 40 feet wide, is scheduled for next March 1. Projected years ago, work on the highway had lagged for years due to the expense of construction through jungles and swamps. With the new highway, the widened canal and the old railroad, Panama will possess three means of rapid transportation across the isthmus —four, including the airlines.

TRUMP NO. 2 in the hands of Uncle Sam is the military force under the energetic, air-minded Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, commanding general of the Panama Canal Department and the Carribbean Defense Command. Gen. Andrews has many thousand sun-helmeted troops garrisoned throughout the isthmus—exactly how many is a strict military secret. Even more impressive to the casual onlooker are the hundreds of warplanes that dart in and out of the fleecy clouds over Panama, constantly on the alert for enemy bombers that might attack the vulnerable canal structures from a carrier base or from secret landing fields in South or Central America.

The idea of such attacks may seem far-fetched, but the White House itself has lent credence to reports that the Germans have secret airfields in Colombia, which adjoins Panama on the south and of which Panama was a province up until its secession in 1903. It is a fact apparent to any American visitors that there are suspiciously large numbers of Germans in Colombia today, ostensibly as tourists or commercial visitors. It is a fact also that Germans owned and operated the airways across Colombia until a few years ago, when the Republic of Colombia became suspicious on its own account and began replacing the Germans with North Americans.

Today Colombia operates its own national airways in cooperation with Pan American Airlines. The pilots are North Americans and the planes are Douglases, plus some leftover Heinkels. At Barranquilla, chief seaport of Colombia, Pan American is building a most modern airport with long runways. Colombian acquiescence in President Roosevelt's hemispheric defense program was indicated one day when I was there by the presence of eight United States warplanes, stopping for supplies while en route to the new American base at Trinidad.

TRUMP NO. 3 in the hands of Uncle Sam, supplementing his military and naval forces, is the good will that the United States has been slowly but surely building up in Panama, Colombia, Costa Rica and many another part of Latin America essential to real hemispheric defense.

I have encountered cynics down there who argue that, not only in Panama, but all the way from the Rio Grande to Cape Horn, there is no genuine love for the United States; that there is considerable genuine dislike; and that the doctrine of hemispheric defense is a synthetic one which will hold together only as long as the United States has millions to carry on dollar diplomacy in Latin America, and as long as the United States and Great Britain are able to win the battle of the Atlantic.

On the other hand, I have met Latin Americans who realize that their destiny is inextricably interwoven with that of their good neighbor to the North, and that if all of the Americans—North, South and Central—don't hang together, they may eventually hang separately.

This point of view was expressed to me by Dr. Augusto Boyd, former president of the Republic of Panama, and one of the most intellectual authors of the recent coup d'etat which ousted the pro-Nazi president, Arnulfo Arias, in favor of a pro-American president, Ricardo Adolfo de la Guardia.

"What was the background of the coup?" I asked Dr. Boyd, a distinguished gray-haired man with rugged features, who looks and acts the part of elder statesman.

"Well," he replied, "a group of us who had the welfare of our country at heart were alarmed by the antics of Arnulfo Arias. First of all, he was giving offense to the great United States, a nation we respect and admire unreservedly. And even if we disliked the United States, we would have to cooperate with her to defend the Panama Canal as our interests are tied together there. Whoever attacks the canal attacks us as well as the United States. That situation was recognized in the 1939 treaty between Panama and the United States, which I helped to negotiate, and under which the two republics agreed to collaborate on a common defense in case of an 'international conflagration.'

"We felt that President Arias was violating this treaty of mutual defense by giving aid and comfort to Axis agents who came to Panama on supposedly innocent missions but acted contrariwise."

FORMER President Boyd is well acquainted with the United States. He was graduated in medicine from Columbia University in 1899 and served as an intern on Blackwells Island (now Welfare Island). He went to Europe briefly, returned to New York and practiced medicine there for two years before being summoned back to Panama by his father, Frederico Boyd, a leader of the junta that brought about secession from Colombia. Active in politics since then, Dr. Boyd was Minister to Washington in 1939 when President Arosemena died. President Roosevelt placed an Army flying fortress at the disposal of Dr. Boyd and he flew home to assume the Presidency. Dr. Boyd told me he has nothing but pleasant memories of the United States and of the courtesies received from President Roosevelt, Cordell Hull and Sumner Welles.

Dr. Boyd, who is married to a sister of President de la Guardia, lives and practices medicine in an old house in the downtown section of Panama City, only a few blocks from the Presidencia in which he formerly served and lived, in which his brother-in-law is now serving and in which his wife was born. In the Boyd home, the coup d'etat that exiled President de la Guardia was originally discussed.

Responsibility was disclaimed by Dr. Boyd for the fact that Arnulfo Arias had succeeded him in the Presidency.

"Arias ran for President while I was holding that office but he was not my candidate, although some people thought so," Dr. Boyd explained. "Naturally, I felt a certain responsibility for his official conduct and that was one reason why we had to get rid of him. If people say to me now: 'You put him in office,' then I can say to them: 'Yes, and I put him out, too.'"

BEFORE seeing Dr. Boyd, I had been to the Presidencia to interview his brother-in-law, to whom I put these questions:

"Mr. President, what is the attitude of your new government toward the United States and President Roosevelt's policy of hemispheric defense?

"Mr. President, will Panama ever be used as a sanctuary or operating base for Axis agents or propagandists, be they German or Italian or Japanese?"

President de la Guardia answered as follows:

"The relations of the government of Panama with the United States will be based on the most strict friendship and collaboration between the two countries.

"Panama will be a fervent sustainer of the policy of President Roosevelt in the defense of the American continent.

"Panama could never be a base of operations or a future camp for the propaganda or development of totalitarian governments, be they called German, Italian or whatever other nation of anti-democratic regimes, as it is a country with deep-rooted democratic ideas, and therefore in its soil such exotic ideas could not possibly be developed."

President de la Guardia wrote out this statement in Spanish and signed it for me, to be relayed as a message to the American people. And I have no doubt that he intends to throw his weight to the side of Uncle Sam in whatever struggles there may be for power in Panama and Pan America generally.

Ethiopian Rebirth

By Russell Lundstrom

Planning With Britain

LONDON (Correspondence of the Special News Service).—The British government is working with Haile Selassie to accomplish a rebirth of Ethiopia as the African leader of Africa.

The foreign office, relying heavily upon the amenable King of Kings, believes this can be brought about successfully.

Sober judgment elsewhere in Britain's capital is inclined to agree.

British military commanders, fresh from East Africa, have brought to London assurances that English-Ethiopian collaboration is a happy augury for the postwar future of a land sorely tested.

But all is not sweet concord. In both London and Addis Ababa voices have been raised against "foreign control," however benevolent, of Ethiopia.

In strongly patriotic Ethiopian quarters, British policy regarding Ethiopian affairs is described by some as Indian-giving.

The issue was projected into public and private discussions after the recent meeting of the Inter-Allied War Council. Persons of authority were asked why Ethiopia was not represented on the council. Inspired by the earlier careful political definitions of Anthony Eden, secretary of state for foreign affairs, the reply was that "no one was qualified" to sit for Ethiopia, that until such time as Ethiopia was reinvested with sovereignty it should be assumed that Britain was looking after her interests.

NOT LONG AGO a staunch champion of autonomy in Ethiopia asserted that "the political battle" to restore the nation's old independence appeared to be only beginning.

"At present, attempts are being made," this source said, "to compel the Ethiopian government to agree that in all cases the Emperor and his government will accept the decision of such foreign advisers, not necessarily British, as the British military control or His Majesty's government may decide to appoint.

"This is tantamount to foreign control of Ethiopia and the death of her ancient independence."

On the face if it, however, Haile Selassie looks more to the future than to the past. Broadcasting to his people on the occasion of the Feast of Maskal recently, he said:

"People of Ethiopia, we shall not desist from working for the good administration of our people, but you must all realize that time is necessary to restore a house that has been in ruins for five years."

The celebration of the feast coincided with the disclosure that the Italian garrison at Wolchefit had surrendered and that the warfare in East Africa was practically over.

Thus the way was paved further for something approximating long-range planning of a new Ethiopia, which authorities believe is bound to be essentially different from the old regime of absolutism.

THE AUTOCRACY of the modern Ethiopian empire was established by Emperor Menelik before the turn of this century, and cruel and fearful, according to historians, were the methods he employed to subdue the various native tribes.

Haile Selassie, a nephew of Menelik, had the absolute powers of his predecessors, but in him the Oriental conception of monarchy was qualified by a willingness to apply Western ways.

Consequent changes in political and economic affairs were introduced; yet there scarcely was a forehadowing of democratic intitutions.

Mussolini's invading legions destroyed that empire, forced Haile Selassie to seek refuge in England and took their own brand of modernism to Ethiopia.

Guided by British advisers, and himself enjoying a greater prestige than ever before, Haile Selassie has set out to preserve whatever accomplishments of the Italian conquest may be deemed beneficial.

Despite repeated assertions that Haile Selassie sees eye to eye with the British on the question of Ethiopian policy, that he favors compromise and a cooperation which limits his authority, many of his supporters, it is reported, have grown restive.

Recent information from Addis Ababa said that the Emperor was impatiently awaiting the day when he would be formally proclaimed an independent ruler.

The same reports call attention to similar feelings on the part of British officials in Ethiopia.

Visible Grain Supply

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Visible supply of American grain today showed the following changes from a week ago (in bushels): Wheat decreased, 1,286,000; corn decreased, 444,000; oats decreased, 437,000; rye decreased, 208,000, and barley increased, 116,000.

Fair Enough

How Pegler Missed A Story

THE RECENT TESTIMONY of some of the Hollywood movie magnates in the trial of George Browne and Willie Bioff, the underworld unioneers, has been a source of comfort to me, for it vindicates my conviction that there was a big story in Hollywood in the winter of 1938, even though I did lay an egg on the assignment. The Hollywood assignment was my own idea and it cost a lot of money and paid off in peanuts. I doubt that any newspaper reporter ever did worse and I remember that my revered employer felt the same way about it, for he wired me, after quite a while, to come on back.

PEGLER

There were sharp fumes of larceny in Hollywood about then which could be sniffed in New York when the wind was right, but I suppose I was just naive. First, I looked up Willie Bioff's union in the Hollywood phone book and found several listings all at the same address and, selecting one at random, asked for Mr. Bioff. At that time they were spelling his name Byoff and I knew nothing about him except that he was supposed to have a police record in Chicago which, for a professional unioneer, would be more a citation of merit than an embarrassment. Several times I called Mr. Byoff, and each time the voice at the other end would say, "Naw, he ain't around. Naw, I dunno when he is going to be around. Naw, he don't want to talk to no reporters."

Then I went to Pat Casey, the labor relations man for the industry, and Mr. Casey puzzled me up by giving both Mr. Browne and Mr. Byoff a good reputation. He said they weren't gentlemen, but were pretty good unioneers, nevertheless, who had gouged a few raises out of the magnates for the studio workers, hard hit by the long panic. He said they were tough, but that union agents had to be tough in dealing with these movie capitalists. How Mr. Casey could have been so innocent, he being so smart and so long acquainted with union relations in Hollywood, I just don't know. The best I can say for him is that he was dumb.

ANOTHER DAY I went out to one of the big studios. I wanted to see Mr. Joe Schenck, and the press agent said he would fix it up for me to have a few minutes of that great man's busy day, but time was awasting and he was awasting of it, as I began to notice as the hours passed and my deadline approached. He took me to the commissary for a snack and some airy banter and then he took me around several sets to see the actors in their fascinating make-believe. But I kept nagging him about Mr. Schenck and finally he got me in.

Mr. Schenck seemed to think I had come to get his autograph or ask him the secret of his success, for he would not stay on the subject of union relations or say anything against Browne or Byoff and in about five minutes I was outside again. I recall that now because here Mr. Schenck had a chance to expose Browne and Byoff and get them off his neck, but he acted as though he hardly knew them.

A few days later an interview was arranged with one of the Warner brothers. I forget which one, but remember that he was vague on union relations and showed me about his premises, which held no interest for me, and, finally, sat down and dictated a formal statement which said, in substance, that he wasn't saying anything.

A FAMOUS ACTRESS was a vice president of the Screen Actors and she agreed to give me an audience, but then said she would have to confer with her husband first. I forget her name, honestly, but the husband of the moment was Franchot Tone. I sent word back that if the lady vice president of the union couldn't speak on union relations without being coached, why just skip it and save my time. So I never met the famous actress, Crawford, that was her name.

The story was there all the time. The payoff was operating and a lot of those on the management side were falsifying the books to cover up the graft and paying themselves enormous salaries and bonuses for this betrayal of their stockholders, as they have since admitted in court under oath.

One David Bernstein, for instance, the treasurer and vice president of Loew's, who studied bookkeeping by mail and gets $243,000 a year for his unique services, faked entries on the books. Nick Schenck, Joe's brother, was in on the play and Harry Warner, one of the brothers, testified that it was "good business" to pay the graft which was then concealed in padded expense vouchers or charged up as the cost of bribes to movie critics.

Well, the story is still no more than half told, but when this trial is over there will be further dispatches, you may be sure, about the business morals of the men in the movie industry.

Women Get Suggestions On Traffic Solution

The value of a separate traffic court and judge in order to obtain more uniform jurisdiction in traffic cases was emphasized by Burton Marsh, of the American Automobile Association, yesterday in a discussion of the seven-point program designed to make fundamental corrections in the District's traffic situation.

He spoke at the season's first meeting of the women's safety committee of the District division, A. A. A., at the Sulgrave Club.

Mr. Marsh, director of the safety and traffic engineering department of A. A. A. emphasized the importance of better enforcement to be obtained by providing a greater police force and an appropriation for motorization of a larger number of men.

Ticket Fixing On Down Grade

He commented on the improvement of the situation in ticket fixing. He said there is still much to be done in correction of violations occurring under the protection of diplomatic immunity.

Mr. Marsh emphasized the need of more thorough traffic education, both of the public and in the District school system.

Mrs. George C. Thorpe, chairman of the committee, announced that plans are being made for the formation of an A. A. A. motor corps under the committee's sponsorship.

Course to Cover Broad Field

Approximately 50 hours in training will include classes in first aid, night driving, black-out driving, map reading, chemical warfare protection and car maintenance.

Mrs. Thorpe called on Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the District division of the A. A. A., to elaborate on plans for the proposed corps.

The group would answer calls for transportation in services related to home defense.

Soroptimists Hear Dr. Coffey

Prevention of communicable disease as a defense measure was stressed by Dr. E. R. Coffey, assistant surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service, at the luncheon of the Soroptimist Club yesterday at the Willard Hotel.

Guests at the luncheon included Mrs. Mae Bowman, Mrs. Hazel Bayne, Miss Sue White and Mrs. Geneveive Huss.

Relief Society Holds Luncheon

Underwood and Underwood.

Philip Klutznick, who recently came to Washington as a consultant in defense housing, spoke yesterday at the tenth annual donor luncheon of the Washington Ladies' Auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society of Denver, at the Mayflower Hotel. With him at the speaker's table were Mrs. Nathan N. Wallack, left, president of the auxiliary, and Mrs. Maurice L. Bernstein, first vice president and chairman of the luncheon

Janet Richards To Talk Tuesday on Authors She's Met

As a respite from war talk, Miss Janet Richards will depart from her usual review of current events at her annual lecture for the Mary Washington chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Washington Club. Instead, she will speak on "Famous Authors I have Met."

Miss Richards will give brief reminiscences of Walt Whitman, Henry James, W. D. Howells, Bernard Shaw and many others. She will include also a group of Washington biographers and poets.

Chevy Chase Garden Club Will Meet on Monday

The Chevy Chase (D. C.) Garden Club will meet with Mrs. Maurice Collins, 5618 Nevada Avenue Northwest, Monday at 1 p. m. The following will assist the hostess: Mrs. D. G. Davis, Miss Mary Ann Davis, Mrs. George L. Hart and Mrs. William Myers.

Mrs. Lewis Pendleton, program chairman, has arranged to have Mrs. Neal McCormack talk on "Flower Arrangement in the Home."

During the last month the chairman for the Home for the Incurables, with aid of club members, has rearranged the flower beds and planted the fall flowers and bulbs at the home, assuring blooms for the shut-ins by spring.

Erie College Club To Fete New President

Lake Erie College Club of Washington will entertain at tea Saturday afternoon in honor of Dr. Helen D. Bragdon, new president of the college, who was inducted last week at a ceremony at the college in Painesville, Ohio.

The tea, at 2 p. m., will be given at the home of Miss Betsy Frost, 1945 Calvert Street Northwest. Dr. Bragdon was formerly dean of women at Hood College, Frederick, Md.

Jewish Group Hears Talk On Defense

The importance of women's role in defense work was stressed by Philip Klutznick, speaker at the tenth annual donor luncheon of the Washington Ladies' Auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society of Denver yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel. Mr. Klutznick is a former president of A. Z. A.

The luncheon drew an attendance of 968 persons. Mrs. Nathan N. Wallack, president, was in charge. Mrs. Charles Goldsmith, third vice president, gave the opening prayer.

Mrs. Maurice L. Bernstein, first vice president and general chairman of the luncheon, made a report on its contribution to the work of the society.

The musical program was by Milton Schwartz, violinist; Miss Phyllis Schwartz, vocal soloist, accompanied by Miss Betty Baum at the piano.

Olga Jones Speaks On Newspapers at Sorority Dinner

Miss Olga Jonees, editor in chief, U. S. Office of Education, spoke on "Looking into the Newspaper World" at the dinner meeting of Alpha and Beta chapters of Delta Kappa Gamma, educational sorority, at the Dodge Hotel last night. She discussed how a newspaper functions in a community.

Bolivian Sculptress Speaks Tomorrow

Senorita Marina DelPrado, of Bolivia, will make a talk on her country and on her work as a sculptress at the meeting of the National M. Eleanor Brackenridge Club at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Alice Mason, 4912 W Street Northwest.

Mrs. Mabel Howard will give a talk on the Dominican Republic. She will also give a brief review of "The Poems of the Little Girl in Heaven" by Fabio Fiallo. Copies of this book were presented to the club by Miss Minerva Bernardino.

Pi Phi Junior Alumnae Will 'Swing It' Monday

The junior group of the Washington Alumnae Club of Pi Beta Phi will hold a "sweater swing" dance at the Sligo Cabin in Sligo Park Saturday at 9 o'clock. Mrs. E. Maine Shafer is in charge of the arrangements.

The junior group was organized three years ago for the purpose of interesting girls recently out of school in the Alumnae Club. A girl may remain in the junior group for ten years from the date of her initiation, at which time she is invited to join the senior group of Washington Alumnae Club.

Chevy Chase Juniors To Entertain at Tea

The Junior Woman's Club of Chevy Chase, Md., will give a tea for members and prospective members at 4 p. m. Sunday at the home of Miss Elizabeth Dougherty, membership chairman.

Others on the committee assisting her are Miss Marion Smither, Miss Elizabeth Whiele and Miss Ruth White.

Washington Club Backs Defense Saving

Enthusiastic indorsement was given by formal resolution to the national defense saving program at the luncheon of the Washington Club yesterday at the clubhouse. In support of this action, the organization has already begun buying defense bonds.

Reports were received from members of the board of governors of the club. Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor reported on the civilian defense program of the United Women's Organizations, of which the club is a member, and Mrs. William R. Smedberg reported on the accomplishments of the club in Red Cross work. She made an appeal that those present immediately undertake to make 50 kit bags and 12 sleeveless sweaters for prompt shipment to Iceland.

Mrs. Whitman Cross, president of the club, presided.

Other members of the governing board were presented by Mrs. Frank Bunker to speak on various phases of the defense savings program.

Mrs. Smedberg and Mrs. Paul Brockett discussed "Liberty and Woman's Job in Preserving It." Mrs. William Aspinwall, Mrs. C. Willard Hayes, and Mrs. W. E. Safford spoke on "America as Mlle. Eve Curie Sees It."

Mrs. James Cumming and Mrs. William F. Willoughby spoke on "Some Thoughts on Saving for Defense."

"Defense Savings Stamps" was the subject of a talk by Mrs. Douglas P. Birnie. Mrs. Birnie urged the use of stamps as gifts to children and as awards for good school reports. Mrs. Albert Atwood took as her subject, "Inflation."

The various types of Defense Savings Bonds were described by Miss Grace Burton and Mrs. George C. Shaw.

Mrs. Ruby Smith Stahl was in charge of the musical numbers.

Loyal Legion Dames To Give Silver Tea

A silver tea and musical program for the benefit of the scholarship fund of the District Society, Dames of the Loyal Legion, will be given at the home of Mrs. Frank Bartlett Steele this afternoon.

Mrs. Jerome Wilber, president, and other officers will assist the hostess. Mrs. Wilhelmina S. Walter, soprano, and Miss Grace Purvis, violinist, will present the musical program at 4 p. m. Before the social hour, the society will meet to discuss plans for its annual card party November 14, also for the benefit of the scholarship fund.

Beta Sigma Phi Meeting

The D. C. Council of Beta Sigma Phi will meet tomorrow night at the Town House, Nineteenth and F Streets Northwest; Mrs. William K. Philips, formerly on the faculty at the University of Maryland, and now educational director of Eta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, of Baltimore, will be guest speaker. Mrs. Harold H. Burton, D. C. sponsor of the sorority, will also be a guest.

D. C. Zontians To Participate In Celebration

The local Zonta Club will join in the celebration of Zonta Week, November 8-15, marking the twenty-second anniversary of Zonta International.

"How Can My Service Club Justify Its Existence in a Democracy?" is the theme around which programs during the celebration will center.

Mrs. Ethel Johnson Hess, president of the local club, will entertain at a tea Sunday afternoon at her home on Locust Road, in honor of new members.

They are Eleanor Durrett, Virginia B. Elliman, Carol W. Franklin, Elizabeth Glenn, Kathryn G. Heath, Lenora Logan, Mary Mason, Bertha M. Muth, Evelyn E. Smith.

Miss Emma T. Hahn, Miss Estelle Foster and Mrs. Nan Street, charter members of the local club, will have charge of the program at the luncheon at 1 p. m. next Wednesday at the Y. M. C. A. The program will feature a history of the local club.

As a finale for the week's observance, the local club, together with the Frederick, Md., and Annapolis clubs, will attend the dinner of the Hagerstown club Saturday, November 15, in Hagerstown.

Mrs. May Moyers McElroy, of Washington, president of Zonta International, in a Zonta Week message said that for the 22 years of the organization's history, it had been doing public service and welfare work, much of which is now incorporated into its defense program. Scholarships for youth, citizenship projects, aid to the handicapped have been among its activities.

Zonta clubs throughout the United States and Canada are doing a great deal of war relief work, Mrs. McElroy said. They donated a station wagon for the use of the Women's Auxiliary territorial services in London and an additional $3000 was provided for the purchase of comforts for these volunteer workers. This joint effort for the women of Britain will be continued by North American Zontians this year.

Most clubs have groups that sew and knit for the Red Cross and bundles for Britain; others are taking special courses in nursing and nutrition.

Another Zonta project which is contributing to the defense effort is the annual scholarship award of $500 to a young woman for graduate work in some branch of aeronautics. The first recipient of this scholarship, Miss Rose Elizabeth Lunn, did her graduate work at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is now participating in the development of wing flutter and vibrations research in the Curtiss-Wright Co. The second recipient, Miss Mildred W. Boyden, is taking advanced work in meteorology at the University of Chicago, along with young Air Corps officers. This work is designed to fit her for weather forecasting for commercial or defense aviation or for teaching meteorology in ground schools.

Dinner Monday Will Precede Latin Lecture

The sponsors of the series of lectures on "Current Events in Latin America" to be given by Dr. Edwin Ryan announced yesterday the plans for a dinner to be held at the Hotel Washington, Monday, preceding the lecture that evening.

Honor guests will include Dr. Ernest Chiraboga, new Ecuadorian Minister to Guatemala, and Senora de Chiraboga; Senora de Munilla, wife of the military and air attache of Cuba; Senora de Aguar, Miss Minerva Bernardino, vice chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women.

The hospitality committee composed of Mrs. Frank H. Buck, Mrs. Daniel E. Barbey, Mrs. Harold M. Biesemeier, Mrs. William B. Sims and Mrs. Helen Montfort Moodie are making reservations for the dinner which will be at 6:45.

Presidents and representatives of the women's clubs which are interested in the series will act as hostesses that evening:

Zonta Club, Miss Sarah Carrick and Miss Florence Thompson; American Association of University Women, Mrs. Clyde M. Hadley and Mrs. John Donaldson; Federation of Catholic Alumnae, Miss Christobal Hill; League of American Pen Women, Mrs. H. Lyle Campbell; Puerto Rico American League, Mrs. Mario Julia; Housekeepers' Alliance, Mrs. Frank Shortall; Spanish Club, Department of Agriculture, Miss Lillian Gagnon; Quota Club, Miss Margaret Lund; Political Study Club, Mrs. Edward Campbell Shields; Columbia Women, Miss Sarah Lerch.

A. A. U. W. Unit Meets Monday

The meeting of the College Park branch of the American Association of University Women will be held Monday at 8 p. m. in Anne Arundel Hall on the campus of the University of Maryland.

In observance of National Education Week, the speaker will be Dr. Harold C. Hand, of the College of Education of the university. Dr. Hand was a member of the Prince Georges County School Survey Committee for 1940-41. His topic will be "Effectiveness of High Schools in Meeting the Needs of Youth." Mrs. Charles Prince, chairman of the education study groups, is in charge of the entertainment program.

Mrs. Perry O. Wilkinson, president of the branch, announces the following as committee chairman for the A. A. U. W. on the Prince Georges County Defense Program: Americanization, Mrs. Ernest A. Work of Chinese Women in War Is Discussed

Work of the Chinese women in making supplies for the soldiers and in building morale behind the lines was discussed by Mme. Kien-Wen Yu, wife of the second secretary of the Chinese Embassy, at the dinner of the Randolph-Macon College Alumnae Association last night at the Woman's City Club.

Mme. Yu told how the Chinese women are spinning and weaving, making woolen yarn for army blankets and cloth for soldiers' uniforms.

Mme. Yu's mother, Mrs. L. N. Chang, was graduated at Randolph-Macon.

Wear the Color That Makes You Happy

Mme. Yovin Says Psychic Reaction More Important Than Skin Tones

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

IF YOU have a psychic feeling about a certain color, that may mean it's "your color" even though it appears on the surface that you are not the type for it. This is the theory of Mme. Blanche Yovin, who is writing a new book on the therapy of colors called "Colors, and How They Affect Your Life."

Mme. Yovin, in her scientific survey of color, is seeking personal reactions of individuals to color before finishing her new book.

Seeks Reactions

She is asking such questions as these:

What color motif dominated the happiest moment of your life?

What color motif dominated the most sorrowful moment in your life?

Have you noticed any reactions brought about by any color or combination of colors on your relatives or close friends?

What color makes you happy? Why?

What color makes you sad? Why?

What is your favorite color combination?

Directs Institute

These color reactions are also applied by Mme. Yovin in the building of the new models created by her as director of Originators Institute, a school for training youthful designers at 26 West Fifty-eighth Street, New York. Some of these models were shown last week in the Fashion Forecast show at the Shoreham Hotel which Mme. Yovin gave for the National Library for the Blind.

According to Mme. Yovin, it is not so much a matter of what colors you can wear, but rather your own feeling toward them. "There is no color," she says, "that a woman can't wear provided it is tempered in the right way and suits her personality." She emphasizes, however, that the wearer must respond to the best in a color if she is to wear it successfully.

Important in Wartime

Mme. Yovin believes that color is very important, especially in wartime. If a woman is depressed, she says, color is a sure means of cheering her. In this connection, the color expert stresses that a woman decide what she wants color to do for her, and select it accordingly. As a guide she offers these suggestions:

Analyze your feeling. Do you want to be boosted up or quieted?

Select colors your friends enjoy. (If your boy friend doesn't like a certain color, wait a while and build him up to that color before wearing it.)

If you know persons like a particular color, give them their fill of it first. (They will eventually come around to your color.)

"Decide what feeling you want to create in other persons," says Mme. Yovin. "If you want someone to have tender feelings toward you, wear pink." She explained that purple, lavender or violet shades are transcendent colors, inspiring lofty thoughts in others. Green is the color of nature which vivifies and gives life. Red is a startling color which gives one a jolt or a lift.

Gold Radiates Cheer

Gold is the color of the sunlight which radiates cheer and warmth. White reveals to you what other people are thinking—when they wear white. Black projects your own personality to others and intensifies your thoughts—good or bad.

In the world of Mme. Yovin, color therapy is the coming science in the world. She believes we will be using color some day just as we use electricity.

CHINESE HUE—If your spirits need a "lift," try a bright colored dress (such as the one above) as Mme. Yovin, color expert, suggests. This date dirndl is a new orange shade of Forstman woolen called "Mah Jong"—inspired by a color found in an antique Chinese tapestry. Made with a set-in belt, it is trimmed with massive jeweled buttons and embroidered button holes marching down the front of the bodice.

Buying Ahead With Wisdom Presents Problem to Housewife

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

If we could close our eyes and thoughts to the months ahead and look only at the present, we'd see a pretty rosy picture—on the surface at least. For people are spending money . . . which is a healthy condition and would delight the stores if they knew where they'd be able to get more merchandise when their present stocks are exhausted.

Some say it's because everybody's trying to stock up for the lean days ahead—others say it's the defense money trinkling down. Probably it's both—for lots of luxuries are being bought by the bunch who feel they'd better do a little grabbing and hoarding while they can. But on the other hand, staples and simple necessities are selling like hot cakes, too—to those who haven't had any money to spend for so long that they need almost everything.

Well—we don't pretend to understand what's happening in this mad world today. We can only take each day as it comes and make what we can of it . . . that includes answering some more-than-usually interesting letters from our readers.

Mrs. L. B. B. writes: "For our living room, we just bought a solid-colored mauve rug with a self-tone design woven through it. We are having the furniture recovered but don't know what colors would be best for the mauve rug. All that comes into my mind is light green. I would like the three pieces in different colors. Both sofa and chairs are quite large. The walls are figured with background of very light gray, deeper shades of gray and a touch of tan and a little rose. There's an arch between living and dining rooms. The walls and rug are the same in both rooms. What would you suggest for furniture covers and curtains?"

For your sofa, your idea of green is all right, though I think a light gray would be smarter—especially if you use one of the new flat-weave mohair fabrics that won't show soil and is easy to clean. Then for the two chairs, you might select a flowered material with a gray ground and with mauve in the floral design—have two round cushions for the gray sofa in this same floral material. The draperies we'd have in light gray taffeta interestingly draped.

Saving Electricity

Cutting down on electric light bills is not only an aid to the family budget but is a service in the interest of national defense, since electric power priorities have been invoked. The Consumer Division of the Office of Price Administration makes these suggestions for cutting electric bills:

Turn out lights when they are not needed.

Watch the basement light which sometimes burns all night.

Use your refrigerator efficiently.

Conserve on hot water if you have an electric water heater.

Keep the thermostat on your electric water heater between 135 and 140 degrees, no higher.

Use electric stoves efficiently and carefully.

Keep the radio on only when you are listening to it.

Turn off the electric fan when it is not badly needed.

Use very small bulbs for any urgently needed night lights.

Use all other electric appliances sparingly and efficiently: your electric mixer, toaster, small heater, washing machine, vacuum cleaner and iron.

Bicycle and 'Shanks Ponies' Aid Woman To Lose 60 Pounds

By Ida Jean Kain

THERE'S nothing that makes you want to go on with your diet like hearing about someone else who has finished what you are starting. She is apt to be so delighted with the final outcome that you can't do anything but take heart and get your second wind.

You feel more hopeful when a finished reducer writes that: "In June of 1940 I purchased a bicycle. At that time I weighed 190 pounds for my height of 5 feet 2 inches. At least, that is what I thought my height was.

Bought Bicycle

"So, determined to lose, I purchased a bicycle, and gave up entirely the use of a car or a trolley. When I wanted to go anywhere I rode my wheel or walked. Concurrently, I made my dietary changes strictly according to the calorie method, and the system of protective food allowances—vitamins, minerals and proteins—garnered from your daily articles.

"But, of course, your readers are mainly interested in results. Over a period of 10 months I effected considerable changes for the better. My size 42 dress diminished to a 14, with new measurements as follows: Bust, 34 inches; waist, 28 inches; hips, 35 inches. At the same time I brought my weight from 190 pounds to 130 pounds—and, oddly enough, discovered that my actual height was 5 feet 3! Perhaps the relief from sagging overweight is the explanation!"

That is one story of weight reduction. Here's another:

"I weighed 235 pounds and am now down to 185. But I have the use of an electric bicycle and now after working like a fool for six weeks, I am only hardened up. I measure the same." And the answer to that is: Fewer calories and more specific exercise. There's no exercise yet invented that can cancel the number it is possible to get in the course of a single meal, or in one between-meal course.

Lost 21 pounds

As a final note, someone writes: "I have been on your diet for five weeks and have lost 21 pounds. I find it easier if I keep track of all meals and the number of calories consumed at each. So I have a small notebook in which these ar elisted daily. This idea helped me. Perhaps it will help someone else."

How well you make out with your diet and your exercises depends on you. You may not have to watch your calories so scrupulously, but you may have to watch your calisthenics more than intimated. The whole business is up to you.

Planning Formal Wedding, Girl Asks Polite Way Of Informing Guests She Wants No Gifts; She Lives in Well-Furnished House, That Will Be Hers

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am engaged to be married, although the engagement has not yet been announced. My mother has been dead for a number of years and I have been keeping house for my father. I shall continue to do so after my marriage, and as I am an only child I will inherit the completely furnished house.

My fiance and I would like to have a large wedding, as we have a large family connection and many intimate friends. However, our problem is that we do not want any wedding presents—not only because gift-giving might prove burdensome to some of our friends; but also it would be wasteful in any case, as we have everything we need for housekeeping. Is there any polite way of asking wedding guests not to give us gifts? Sincerely, BRIDE-TO-BE.

DEAR B. T. B.: Since you want a "large wedding"—by which I suppose you mean a "formal wedding," with church ceremony, trailing veil, bridesmaids, ushers, scores and maybe hundreds of guests, and other such appurtenances of bridal pomp and pageantry—and yet want "no gifts," you are embarking upon an undertaking that involves an unique combination of orthodox and heterodox procedure.

The issuance of engraved cards of invitation to the wedding, and perhaps to a reception afterward, is part and parcel of genteel and customary preparation for such an event. And the receipt of such a card is supposed to automatically inspire the (theoretically) pleased recipient to go out and buy a gift for the bride-to-be. However, many invited guests might think it unseemly for a bride to imply that she assumed a gift would be automatically forthcoming from them, unless she makes known her wishes to the contrary. And that is the delicate dilemma which your preference creates for you.

But since you don't want gifts; have neither a place for, nor any need of them, and hence would consider them a waste of money and a nuisance all around; and since, furthermore, these are times when persons having money to spend above and beyond the needs of themselves and their nearest and dearest, should invest it in a multiplicity of worthy humanitarian causes—it seems to me no well-bred, intelligent person could quarrel with the sentiment dictating the message (or its mode of delivery) if you were to ingenuously inscribe, in pen and ink, on a lower corner of your engraved wedding invitations, the following polite supplication: "No present, please." M. H.

Tells How She Adapted To Cold-Hearted Husband

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am writing my experiences for the benefit of "Disillusioned"—the young wife who asks how to adjust to marriage, now that her once ardently devoted husband no longer pays her any complimentary or even affectionate attention. At the age of 18, I eloped with a boy of 19. We had had so much fun going places together that we thought it would be even more fun to spend our whole life together.

After 14 months' marriage, our daughter was born. I grew up, then. But my husband did not. He still thought that "playing around" was the best part in life. Things went from bad to worse until a girl came to tell me that he was the father of her expected child. I asked him about it and he said it was possible. So I divorced him. I was through, so I thought, with men and marriage.

But five years later, I married again. This time I used my head. The man was steady, sober, very serious minded. We started marriage on a modest income; but he told me his one ambition in life was to "make big money," and that he would do it. He adopted my daughter; and in the first year of marriage we had a son. During the second year of marriage, I came to realize he had spoken truthfully when he said his one aim in life was to make money. All his efforts were concentrated on that objective. Everything else was secondary.

During this year, another man came into the picture. He was a bachelor and an old friend of my husband's. When he told me he loved me and asked me to get a divorce and marry him, I told him not to come to our house again. But he gradually got into the habit of being around all the time. I will not go into details concerning this period of my life, except to say that I found with him all the tenderness and love I was denied in my marriage; and because of his real and companionable love of my children, I found new joy and pleasure in them. I had the feeling that I was one man's reason for living; not just a shadowy figure in the background of my husband's life.

As was inevitable, the relationship developed to a point where a final decision had to be made. I took my children and went to the West Coast to visit my mother—determined to think things out. At the end of three months, I telephoned the bachelor and told him I never would see him again. And then I came back to my husband. I had made up my mind to have more children—so that there could be no turning back. At the end of another year we had twin sons. Two years later, a daughter was born to us. And today, my husband is enjoying the material success that he wanted. We have a beautiful home in Washington and another at the beach. Each of us drives a luxurious car. We have a staff of efficient servants. I find joy in my children, play lots of bridge, and fill in my spare time by working for charity. And yet, I am very lonely much of the time.

Judging from my own experiences, I should say that "Disillusioned" never will be able to change her husband. I spent years trying to change mine—before realizing it couldn't be done. If "Disillusioned" is unable to adjust to her marriage on existing terms, she should abandon the relationship and start again. But if she can live with her husband just as he is, I would recommend the course that I have embraced. She should have as many children as health and finances will permit, and build her life around them. Children both give and absorb an amazing amount of love. And she can always find socially constructive outlets for her time and energy.

She will be lonely, of course, and often she will feel that her life lacks purpose. But when such moods come she can take pride in her woman's job well done. Of course, there is no way of knowing what my life would have been like if I had divorced my second husband and married a third time. But I can truthfully say that I am glad I stuck to my bargain. And it is possible that "Disillusioned" can echo that sentiment, in years to come, if she decides to bear with her husband, "for better or worse," and purposefully refrains from mourning the loss of sentimental companionship."

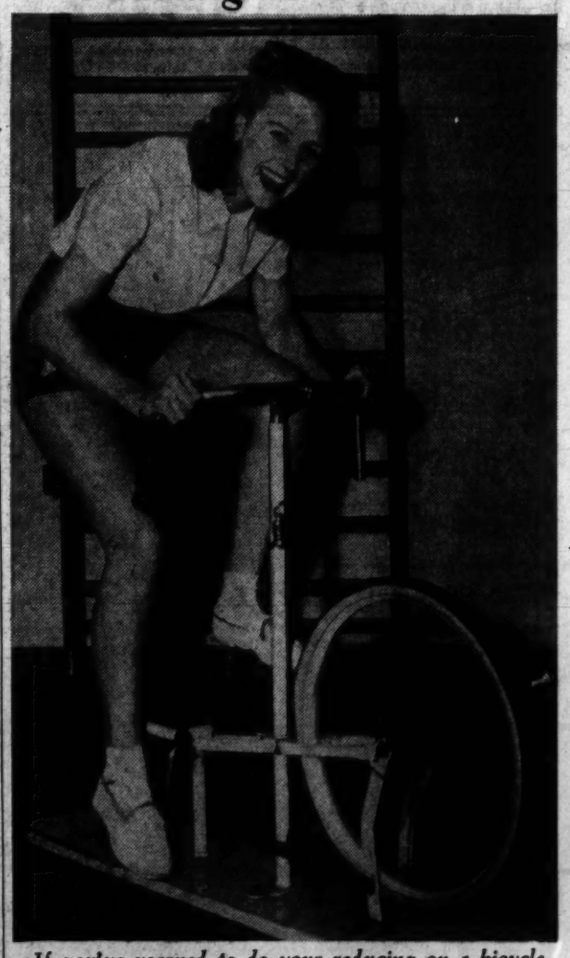
Pedaling to Slimness



If you've yearned to do your reducing on a bicycle, yet couldn't balance yourself for the ride, try the stationary kind. Maris Wrixon, Hollywood star, above, demonstrates the effectiveness of the bicycle-exerciser, and Ida Jean Kain in her column today explains its reducing powers. Posture counts 75 per cent in "byke" exercising; the wrong position cancels the benefits.

Jane Shows How Army Girls Dress

Hollywood, Calif.—Jane Wyman will present visual evidence of what the well-dressed daughter of an Army officer should wear in a new Army picture. As the daughter of "Colonel" Donald MacBride, Jane wears clothes of both military and nonmilitary design, but even those that are copied from her screen father's uniforms are soft and feminine looking. One very smart tailored dress in a beige gabardine, that Milo Anderson calls a "wet sand" shade, has dropped epaulettes of jet tassel fringe, ball jet buttons and a narrow jet belt.

For an informal dance in the Recreation Hall, Jane, as belle of the ball, is wearing a shirtmaker frock in poudre blue crepe "striped" with silver hairline bugle beads to resemble men's shirting.

Prepare for Future By Home Study Of Shorthand

YES, JOBS are easier to find! But "Still Unemployed" writes us: "Though my friends are all getting good office jobs, I never seem to click.

Even today getting a job is a matter of what you can do. Can you take shorthand, for instance? I you can't, why not teach yourself and so get on the preferred list of skilled workers?

The theory of Pitman shorthand is really simple. Instead of writing out words the letter-by-letter way you just put down symbols for the sounds in them.

Much speedier, of course, and really not hard. For though there are thousands of words in our language there aren't many different sounds, so you won't have many symbols to learn.

If you practice regularly every day, with someone to dictate to you after you know the shapes of the symbols, you'll soon be writing the sounds almost without thinking.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "Pitman Shorthand Self-Taught," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of the booklet.

Sokolowskis Return To Washington to Live

Former Counselor of Polish Embassy Will Represent Goulet Art Galleries

By Hope Ridings Miller

"Am I happy to be back? Why, I'd rather be in Washington than anywhere else in the world!"

Mme. Sokolowska—Bee to her friends—wife of the former counselor of the Polish Embassy here was speaking. She and her husband have just come down from New York to spend the winter here and are at the Claridge Hotel.

Hope Ridings Miller

Ever since they got back to America a few months after the seige of Warsaw, they have been trying to find a way to come to Washington to live. No longer connected with the diplomatic corps, Wladyslaw Sokolowski has had to look about for another job, and now he and his attractive wife are doing contact work for the famous Felix Goulet art galleries. Shortly after they returned to this country—after a harrowing escape from a Warsaw suburb, by way of Romania and Bulgaria, and finally Italy, where they got a steamer to America—the Sokolowskis came to Washington to visit at the Polish Embassy. That was a couple of years ago, but even then they hoped to get back to Washington to live . . . and here they are.

Already renewing acquaintances with many Washingtonians, Mme. Sokolowska attended a luncheon at the Sulgrave Club yesterday. You'll be seeing her about the town at many a party from now on, for she and her husband number their friends by the dozens.

Mr. Sokolowski, incidentally, is but one of many former diplomats who have settled in Washington recently with the hope of making it a permanent home.

Fitch-Walker Wedding Expected Soon

Whispers and drumbeats: Don't be surprised if Rahel Davies Walker and Col. Burdette Fitch walk down that wedding aisle within the next few days. The marriage is not only definitely decided—but soon, so my special spy tells me. It may happen any time now. . . . That "pretty young girl" Senator Barbour has been seen dining with lately is not his fiancee, but his daughter, Elysabeth, who recently came down from Sarah Lawrence to spend a few days and went dining frequently with her father. . . . And the fact that Senator Barbour's former wife is moving into a house in Georgetown (1404 Thirty-fifth) for which she has taken a lease for a year should slow up the rumors that she is planning to become Mrs. Duncan Herridge any time soon. . . . She'll move in today after having spent some time around the corner at 3608 N Street with her sister, Mrs. Sidney Carrere Lee. The latter, incidentally, will have as her guest this weekend another sister, Mrs. Frederick K. Barbour, of New York, who will arrive on Saturday. Yes, Barbour's the name. You see two of the Carrere sisters married brothers. . . . After a short visit with Mrs. Courtlandt Barnes (Katrina McCormick), Mrs. Paul Palmer returned to New York yesterday. She's the former Evelyn Lewisohn, a niece of Mrs. Martin Vogel. Incidentally, both the present Mrs. Palmer and her predecessor (Gretta Palmer), are active workers in the New York Chapter of the America First Committee.

Here and There—About the Town:

Making quite a hit in Capital society are Mr. and Mrs. John Cabot, who recently came here from Guatemala where he served as secretary of our legation for some time. The Cabots have purchased the home at 2339 S Street and will give a dinner there tomorrow evening. . . . Mr. and Mme. Hugo Gouthier, of the Brazilian Embassy, will be "at home" this afternoon from 6 to 8 o'clock, and Justice William O. Douglas will be host at a stag dinner tonight. . . . The Egyptian Minister and Mme. Hassan have cards out for a dinner November 25. . . . James H. R. Cromwell, who gathered in a small company for dinner Tuesday night, will entertain at a similar party November 15. . . . Off to Aiken, S. C., has gone Mrs. Dwight Davis to spend some time at her cottage there. . . . The John R. McLeans, who have been at the Biltmore in New York for a few days, are expected to be present at Evalyn Walsh McLean's dinner Sunday night . . . and due back at Friendship any time now are the honeymooning Robert Reynoldses. . . . A popular diplomatic couple hope to celebrate with much fanfare their silver wedding anniversary shortly after Christmas, but their plans are not yet ready for announcement—and won't be, until shortly before the date rolls around. Even then the party itself, if any, will depend on where war clouds are hovering.

Berles Give Supper Party

Entertaining at an after-concert supper party, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Adolph Berle feted Albert Spalding, soloist at the National Symphony Orchestra concert last night and Mrs. Spalding. The Spaldings and the Berles have been great friends for a number of years. Both families have summer homes at Great Barrington, Mass. The foremost American violinist and his wife are house guests of Stephen Morris of the State Department.

Among those at the Berles' home on Cathedral Avenue for supper were the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins, the Attorney General and Mrs. Francis Biddle, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller, the Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggman, the Swedish Minister and Mme. Bostrom, Dr. and Mrs. Hans Kindler, Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper, and many members of the State Department.

Headed by Crown Princess Martha, of Norway, a distinguished audience turned out for the symphony at Constitution Hall, at which Mr. Spaulding was the star performer. Others who attended included Gen. and Mrs. Edwin M. Watson, Miss Mabel Boardman, Mrs. James Clement Dunn, Mrs. George Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. David Karrick, Mrs. Frederick A. Keep, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. William H. Pouch, Maj. and Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Countess Szechenyi, and Mrs. Ralph Worthington.

Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin entertained at a box party last night. Among their guests were Lady Chalkley, wife of the Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy, Mrs. Patrick Hurley and Miss Ruth Hurley.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Chilean Ambassador, Senora de Michels and their daughter, Senorita Cristina Michels, returned last night from New York, where they have been staying at the Waldorf-Astoria since last Friday.

The Minister of the Union of South Africa and Mrs. Close entertained at a dinner last night in the Legation in honor of the British Minister, Sir Ronald Campbell. Among the guests were the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones. Covers were laid for 24.

Baron Denis de Bourgoing, naval attache to the French Embassy, and Baroness de Bourgoing are at Essex House in New York.

Dr. Alexander Herrera-Arango and Dr. Fernando de LaRiva, of Havana, special representatives of the National Association of Exporters and Imposters of Cuba, have arrived in Washington, where they will spend two or three weeks at the Shoreham. Dr. Herrara-Arango is the brother of Dr. Raoul Herrera-Arango, secretary to the Cuban Embassy.

The Officers' Club, 1400 New Hampshire Avenue, will be the scene of a tea Sunday afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock at which Mr. and Mrs. William M. Temple will be hosts.

Mrs. Winslow B. Van Devanter is in New York at the Hotel Weylin.

Mrs. Frederic William Wile has taken an apartment at 2445 Fifteenth Street, having recently sold her house here.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Blumenfeld have left for Miami Beach, Fla., where they will remain through the winter.

Miss Imogen Hostetler and John W. Thompson, who are to be married Saturday, will be honor guests tomorrow night at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Minier Hostetler in the Pall Mall room of the Hotel Raleigh.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Seaton have had as their guests for several days Mr. and Mrs. B. A. La Doux, of Spirit Lake, Iowa. Mr. and Mrs. La Doux are now en route home via stops in Atlantic City and Philadelphia.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. John F. Whiteley are here from Santa Monica, Calif., and are guests at the Martinique.

Jan Masaryk Arives Here

Jan Masaryk, the Foreign Minister with the Czecho-Slovak government in London, arrived last night from New York where he has been attending the International Labor Conference to continue similar meetings in the Capital.

Other Czech delegates to the same conference who are also in Washington are Jaromir Necas, Richard Morawetz, Josef Kosima and Josef Belina. With Mr. Masaryk they will be honored at a dinner at the legation tomorrow night gvien by the Minister and Mme. Hurban. A small reception will follow the dinner.

Last night Mr. Masaryk addressed a dinner at the Army-Navy Town Club given by the Republican Club.

Mr. Masaryk is the son of the late Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk, first president of Czecho-Slovakia, who died in 1937. Often called "the George Washington" of his country the elder Masaryk was married to an American and it is said that his visit to the United States had a powerful influence on him. On October 14, 1918, Masaryk, in Prague for a conference with President Woodrow Wilson, isued a declaration of independence for Czecho-Slovakia.

Miss Bryan Plans Trip Here for Friend's Wedding

Debutante-to-be Miss Anne Bryan is coming down to Washington Saturday from Smith College especially to see how Peggy Lansdowne, the first of her really old and close friends to be married, looks as a bride. She must return the following day to her freshman studies.

Her debut date has not been definitely set yet, but will be in the spring, rather than at Christmas time, and is contingent, of course, on that "if" which is the bugaboo of Army and Navy families. So "if" her parents, Commander and Mrs. Hamilton Bryan, are still in their Twenty-ninth Street home by that time, she will make her bow then.

Though she will not be able to get away at Thanksgiving, Miss Bryan is coming home for the Christmas holidays, when there will be many dinners, parties and debuts of her friends to keep her more than busy.

Friend Fetes Mrs. Doyle

Complimenting Mrs. John Doyle, of Madison, Wis., Mrs. Francis Cabell Brown gathered in a number of friends for luncheon yesterday at Pierre's Restaurant. Mrs. Doyle, who arrived here a short time ago is the guest of her brother, Leo Crowley, of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, at the Mayflower Hotel. She will leave Washington tomorrow.

An unusual centerpiece, fashioned with "love apples," arranged in an intricate pattern on tall pins, and flanked with autumn leaves and Chinese figurines, decorated the table. Botany prints served as placecards, and covers were laid for 16.

Guests were Mrs. Josiah Bailey, Mrs. Carter Glass, Mrs. Frank Buck, Mrs. Thomas F. Ford, Mrs. Justin Miller, Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. Edmund Pendleton, Mrs. Daniel E. Barbey and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Henry Barbey, who is visiting here from the West Coast; Mrs. J. Goodwin Locke, Mrs. May Thompson Evans, Mrs. James F. Twohy, Mrs. Walter Wyatt and Mrs. James E. Markham.

Journalists From Rio Honored At Delightful Dusk Party

By Carolyn Bell

"I came here just a year ago—and take it from me there is twice as much entertaining now as there was then" and there you have it from an old hand at the game—an Argentine diplomat. Whether parties are official or not is beside the point, there are parties. Yesterday afternoon the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins gathered in a group after 6 o'clock in honor of a trio of journalists up from Rio de Janeiro.

As guests entered the foyer they no doubt noticed the familiar sculpturings of Maria Martins (their hostess), for many of them were placed about the marble floor which is, covered with a tremendous white bear rug.

In the salon at the head of the stairway Mme. Martins, brilliant in a butter yellow crepe dinner dress and an orchid, introduced the honor guests. Also sharing honors at the party were Carlos Guinle, Brazilian industrialist, and his pretty wife. She wore a brown crepe frock. Horacio de Carvalho, who is associated with Diario Carioco, one of Rio's important papers, was accompanied by his chic wife. Others in the group were Aloysio Sallez, of the A Noticia, and Walter Quadros. The latter two edit A Sombra, a Brazilian magazine. These three journalists, incidentally, are the ones who recently delivered a personal message of felicitations to President Roosevelt and, according to one Brazilian, "it was the first thing the Brazilian papers have ever been known to agree on."

Mrs. C. Mathews Dick Attends Party

"Those hats are beginning to flourish again," said one discerning gentleman as he gazed about the room at the ladies' chapeaux . . . towering with egrets . . . swathed in tulle and feathers . . . or draped dramatically with jersey. However, Mrs. C. Matthews Dick, noted for chic was simplicity itself. Her dull gold suit had a tiny collar of black and she wore a simple off the face black hat and tiny gold earrings. She chatted with a group including Mrs. James Lawrence Houghteling and Stewart MacDonald.

A bouquet of waxy Easter lilies centered the table where all manner of sweets—including a few Brazilian dainties — vied with canapes. At one end champagne, with a bit of Brazilian fruit to add fillip, was dispensed along with whiskey. The smiling Ambassador, Carlos Martins, made the rounds greeting his guests while his wife remained in the receiving line.

Finnish Minister And Wife There

Mme. Ertegun and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin talked about—of all things!—cooking and getting women back to the kitchen. Mme. Konder, wife of the Minister Counselor, conversed vivaciously with a group. She wore a brown ensemble and her tilted hat was swathed in veiling. One of the prettiest hats there was worn by Mme. Gouthier. Miss Beatrice Phillips was there as were Mrs. Frederick Livesey, on the lookout for her husband she had promised to meet at the party, and Mrs. Paul Daniel, whose husband was not far away.

In deep conversation with the Finnish Minister and Mme. Procope was Eugene Meyer. Senora de Espil, wife of the Ambassador of Argentina, was there looking very pretty. Others there were the First Secretary of the Argentine Embassy and Senora de Pardo, who wore a fur wrap over her ensemble; the First Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy and Mme. de Alencastro-Guimaraes.

Just back from a vacation to Florida and points South, Mr. and Mrs. "Larry" Duggan were being greeted on all sides. Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, who accompanied her husband, wore one of those ultra-new cloche hats—and very becomingly. Hatless, of course, was Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, who had two pink carnations tucked in the neckline of her black frock. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brayman, he the former head of the Gridiron Club, were there, as were Mr. and Mrs. George Renchard and Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Walmsley, she wearing a yellow flower on the side of her close-fitting hat.

A late arrival was the pink-cheeked French Ambassador, Gaston Henri-Haye. Chatting in Portuguese with Mme. Hasslocher was Senora de Pittalugua, whose husband, the Naval Attache of the Uruguay Embassy, was not far away. Senora de Pittalugua wore a white dinner gown edged in gold. Mme. Hasslocher wore a smart black hat with a lovely white egret perched on one side. Also dressed in dinner clothes was Mme. Georges-Picot, who wore an heirloom gold necklace to accent her pencil-slim Schiaparelli model. Mr. and Mrs. Drew Pearson were there, as were Mr. and Mrs. William MacCracken, Mrs. William Burden, Mrs. James Sappington, pretty in bright read, and many, many others.

Mrs. Atherton Guest of Wilsons

Mrs. Frederick Atherton, who recently rented her home on Massachusetts Avenue to Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Hurley, is now the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Orme Wilson.

She soon expects to establish headquarters at the Sulgrave Club, where she will stay before leaving the Capital to send the rest of the winter season in warmer climes.

Mrs. Mack Entertains for Mme. Ertegun

Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador, found herself being an honor guest from luncheon yesterday until long after teatime. In other words, she was feted at two parties given by Mrs. J. J. Mack at her home on Forest Lane. Seven guests were there for luncheon and a larger number came in later for tea. The two parties included several diplomatic and official hostesses, as well as several residential Washingtonians.

Autumn blossoms decorated the spacious rooms of the Mack home for both events, and a bouquet of chrysanthemums from the hostess' own garden centered the luncheon table. Guests there Mme. Hurban, wife of the Czecho-Slovak Minister, who is working hours on end at the Czech bazaar this week; Mrs. Robert Brennan, wife of the Irish Minister, who was being congratulated on all sides in her new role as grandmother; Mrs. Claude Pepper, Mme. Hadjeb-Davallou, wife of the Iranian First Secretary; Mrs. Clarence Lee Miller and Mrs. George Belic, daughter-in-law of the hostess.

Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone headed the guest list for the tea. Others there were Mme. Bianchi, wife of the Portuguese Minister; Mme. Bilmanis, wife of the Latvian Minister; Mme. Hassan, wife of the Egyptian Minister; Mrs. Scott Lucas, Mrs. A. C. Pickens, Mrs. Charles McNary, Mrs. Leo Pasvolsky, Mrs. George T. Marye and her house guest, Miss Flora Doyle; Mrs. Bissett Norment and Mrs. Walter Trent.

Miss Stirling Will Make Bow At St. Cecelia Ball

Besides her Washington bow, Miss Margheritta Stirling will curtsy at the famous St. Cecelia Ball in Charleston, S. C., January 8. While in Charleston she will be the guest of her uncle and aunt, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Edward Tillman.

Miss Stirling, who is now busily engaged with her studies at George Washington University, will be presented to society at 2118 Massachusetts Avenue on Christmas Day. Hosts at the party will be her parents, Dr. and Mrs. William Calhoun Stirling.

Rep. and Mrs. Curtis Entertain at Dinner

Representative and Mrs. Carl T. Curtis, of Nebraska, entertained at dinner last evening in their home in Yorktowne Village.

Parties, Gifts Galore Herald Miss Lansdowne's Marriage

Many parties, many, many gifts and a thousand and one prewedding details are making the few days left before Peggy Lansdowne's marriage Saturday to John Conway Hunt busy ones for the bride-elect.

Wedding presents, so many Miss Lansdowne can't quite keep track of them by herself, have been arriving at Maj. and Mrs. John Caswell's Twenty-fourth Street home these days—among them even a set of bathroom scales from a very practical-minded donor. From "somewhere in Europe" came a check for the bridal couple, but from exactly where or exactly whom, nobody seems to know. All the way from the Argentine came another gift, and again the giver remains anonymous. But the bathroom scales hail from right here in Washington.

With a bride-like thrill in her pleasing voice, Miss Lansdowne summed it all up when she said yesterday, "Well, there are really so many, loads of glass . . . and loads of china . . . and loads of silver . . ."

Tonight's party—there's been one almost every day for the past two weeks—is to be one of Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin's beer and wienie affairs at the Shoreham for members of the bridal party. Sharing honors with Miss Lansdowne and Mr. Hunt will be Miss Lana Jelke and Miss Carryl Casselberry, who will be bridesmaids Saturday. The two young ladies are "neighbors" of Mrs. Goodwin's in Lake Forest, Ill.

Other members of the bridal party are Mrs. F. Moran McConihe, Miss Elizabeth Stewart-Richardson, Miss Laura Blair, Miss Daisy Davidson, Miss Joan Dodd, Miss Kitty Hill, all of Washington; Mrs. Rosamund Price, of Rockville; Henry A. Gardner, jr., of Bethesda; John Ross Caswell, Harland Crowell, jr., J. Monro Hunter, jr., Frederick E. Parks, McCullough Darlington, of Washington; Charles Thomas, of Rockville; Edgar Orme, jr., of Falls Church, and Judson Bolles, of Arlington.

For the day before the wedding—that's tomorrow—is scheduled a cocktail party from 5:30 to 7 for "just the bridal party." Miss Catherine C. Hill will be hostess at her R Street home.

And after the final rehearsals that night, Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, godmother of the bride, has invited the bridal party and out-of-town guests to the Sulgrave Club for buffet supper.

Larsens in D. C. For Brief Stay

Most welcome to their many friends in the Capital will be the news that Col. and Mrs. Henry Larsen arrived in town late last evening and are house guests of Col. and Mrs. A. H. Turnage in Alexandria. The Larsens, who left Washington a little more than a year ago, are stationed in San Diego, Calif. They are here for a brief time, while Col. Larsen is on temporary duty in the office of the Commandant of the Marine Corps.

Already many fetes are being planned in their honor. Among them will be a dinner to be given by Col. and Mrs. Turnage on November 14. At that dinner the Turnages will also honor Brig. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, assistant to the Commandant of the Marine Corps, and Mrs. Vandegrift.

Many in D. C. Plan Trip on New Liner

A number of Washingtonians will leave this weekend for Boston on the new liner S. S. President Polk, when it is delivered to Boston from Newport News, Va., to start its maiden voyage around the world.

Among those who will leave Friday night by river boat for Newport News to embark on the liner will be the Deputy Federal Loan Administrator and Mrs. Will L. Clayton, the Assistant Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Oscar Chapman, Lowell Mellett, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley and Mr. and Mrs. Max O'Rell Truitt.

C. C. Windsors Hosts at Party For Houseguests

Commander and Mrs. Charles C. Windsor entertained at cocktails yesterday afternoon in their Wardman Park apartment in honor of their houseguests, Mme. Maurice Elzear and her daughter, Miss Mary Spunt, who are here from China.

Among the guests who dropped in to greet them were Mme. Elvina Orlicz-Dreszer, Miss May Kemp Slaughter, Mr. and Mrs. Stribling Snodgrass, Mrs. Lucille Everett Buchan, Ernest May, Tilghman Bunch, and Dangerfield Addison. The Windsors will ask a small group in for cocktails this afternoon, taking them on later to dinner.

Society Crowds British Movie's Premiere Here

Last night a large group of Washington society turned out to attend the premiere at the Little Theater of the English film, "The Stars Look Down," the proceeds of which went to the British-American Ambulance Corps.

Among those who entertained at dinners before the performance were Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin and Mr. and and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman. The Tuckerman's dinner honored Mme. Grouitch, their houseguest.

Others who took guests with them to the premiere were Gen. and Mrs. William D. Connor, Mrs. Wayne MacPherson, Miss Lydia Loring, Mrs. French Myers, Capt. and Mrs. Donald Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hallett, Col. and Mrs. Brady Ruttencutter and Mrs. George F. Becker.

Parties to Honor Gen., Mrs. Kramer

Many parties are being planned for Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Myron Kramer, now that he has been confirmed in his recently appointed position of Judge Advocate General.

Yesterday the wives of the members of the Judge Advocate General's office honored Mrs. Kramer at a luncheon at the Army-Navy Town Club. Later on, the group is planning a buffet supper in honor of their new chief and his wife.

Double Wedding At St. Stephen's

Now living at the Chastleton are two young couples who were married in a double ceremony at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church November 1. Miss Margaret Jefferson Perry, daughter of Mrs. John R. Perry, of Fredericksburg, Va., became the bride of Stevens Thomas Mason, son of Mrs. John T. Mason and the late Mr. Mason, of Hancock, Md., at the same ceremony in which Miss Bernice Athalene Dillon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Dillon, of Indian Mills, W. Va., exchanged vows with Jack Lawrence Armell, of Front Royal, Va.

Mrs. Perry's mother gave the brides in marriage, and the Rev. Allen F. Parsons officiated. Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Armell became friends last April when they were roommates, both being in nurses training at Episcopal Hospital.

The Pendergraphs On Honeymoon Trip to South

After a honeymoon through the South, Mr. and Mrs. Irving S. Pendergraph will make their home at 419 Rittenhouse Street. They were married October 26 at SS. Constantine and Helen Church with the Rev. Thomas Daniels officiating.

The bride, who is the former Miss Catina H. Mandis, daughter of Mrs. Harry Mandis, was given in marriage by her brother, John Mandis. Her satin bridal gown was egg-shell shade and featured a full-length veil. She carried white roses. Miss Mary Mandis was her maid of honor, wearing Dubonnet velvet and carrying talisman roses.

Paul Virvos, of Fredericksburg, Va., was best man for Mr. Pendergraph. The reception was held at the home of Mrs. Mandis on Rittenhouse Street.

Holladays Return From Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew B. Holladay, whose marriage took place several weeks ago, have returned from their wedding trip to Atlantic City and are now making their home at 300 Emerson Street.

Mrs. Holladay is the former Miss Diana L. Patch. The rectory of St. Paul's Church was the scene of the wedding on September 19. The bride attended Mary Washington College, while Mr. Holladay studied at Georgetown University.

Herbert Louis Godas Are Touring Canada

Upon their return the first of next month from Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Louis Goda, who were married October 26, will make their home at 51 Concord Avenue. Mrs. Goda is the former Miss Lilyan Zellan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob L. Zellan.

The wedding was held at the home of the bride's parents, with Rabbi Aaron Volkman officiating. Mr. Zellan gave his daughter in marriage. She was wearing a traveling suit of green wool with brown accessories and carried a bridal bouquet and her Bible. Mr. Goda is the son of Norman Goda and the late Mrs. Goda.

Mrs. Morrison and Sons To Winter in Capital

Mrs. George Douglas Morrison, wife of Commander Morrison, with their two sons, George and Davis, arrived here recently to spend the winter. Commander Morrison is now on duty aboard the U. S. S. Relief.

En route to Washington, Mrs. Morrison and her sons spent a short time in California, coming on from there by motor. They have recently purchased a home at 6309 Oak Lane, Chevy Chase, Md., and they plan to move there early next week.

Will Be 'Of Age' Tomorrow

Hessler Studio.

Miss Rhoda Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell Armstrong, who will celebrate her eighteenth birthday at a dinner party at the Shoreham tomorrow. Under normal conditions Miss Armstrong would be making an elaborate debut this season, but due to the world crisis, the "of-age" birthday party will also be an informal bow to Capital society, for, being a practical young lady, Miss Armstrong is spending this season in the serious study of secretarial work at a local school

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

Middleburg neighborhood will be overflowing with visitors, and the weekend calendar is crowded with parties, dinners and dances—all centering around the races Saturday. Held for the benefit of Loudoun County Hospital at Leesburg by the Middleburg Hunt Race Association, this is the important sporting event of the week in Virginia, and the beautiful Glenwood course, which is laid out over the estate of Daniel C. Sands, M. F. H. of Middleburg Hunt, is in fine condition after the recent rains.

The largest party perhaps will be a luncheon to be given by Miss Charlotte Haxall Noland and Mr. and Mrs. Sands at Miss Noland's home, The Covert, at 12:30 p. m. before the races. Miss Noland and Mr. Sands are joint masters of the Middleburg Hunt. Judges, officials, stewards and a number of out-of-town guests will be present at the buffet luncheon which will be served at small tables arranged about the house, on the terrace and lawn.

Another luncheon party will be given by Mrs. Amory Perkins, who will entertain about 30 friends at her home Journey's End; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur White will also entertain freinds for luncheon at Chilton, and Col. and Mrs. John C. Butler have asked some of their friends from a distance to come by Kelvedon Farm for a buffet luncheon. Freddy Warburg will be host at a luncheon at Snake Hill.

Entertainment at cocktail parties after the races will be Mr. and Mrs Duncan Read at their home, Dundrillin and Mr. and Mrs. Newell Ward, jr., will have a number of the younger set drop by their home after the races. Christopher Greer has asked a number of friends to come to Old Welbourne for cocktails and to stay on for a buffet supper.

DINNER PARTIES before the dances will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Algernon Davy and Mr. and Mrs. T. Beatty Brown. Miss Nancy Iselin and Miss Barbara Iselin will be hostesses to a number of their friends of the younger set.

At 10 o'clock William H. Lipscomb is giving a dance at his home, Raspberry Plain, near Leesburg. And a hunt ball for the benefit of "The Loudoun-Fauquier Health" will be held in the Middleburg School auditorium, also at 10. Sidney's Orchestra will furnish music for dancing and supper will be served at midnight.

The ballroom will be beautifully decorated for the occasion, and tickets and tables, which are being reserved for six persons, are "going like hot-cakes." Mrs. Jack Skinner is chairman and has a hard working set helping her. Tickets may be secured from her or from the Health Center in Middleburg.

Hotels and boarding houses have had rooms engaged for weeks ahead of these races and are trying to make room for the overflow. Private homes in the village and surrounding countryside will be crowded, too, as many house parties are being planned.

The 21-year-old Middleburg Race Association always held its races' only once a year—in the spring—until nine years ago when it was decided to hold two meetings, one in the spring and another in the fall. As usual, there will be six races on the card this year, two hurdle races, a timber race, a flat race and two over-brush races. One of the latter is the feature race of the day. The Glenwood National Steeplechase, about 3 miles over a grand national course.

The purse is $1500, of which $300 goes to the second horse and $200 to the third. This race has brought out the country's very best brush horses.

Mrs. Wallace, Son Visit Bruggmanns

The Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggmann have as their houseguests in the new Legation on Cathedral Avenue, Mme. Bruggmann's sister-in-law, Mrs. James Wallace, and her son, Jimmy.

Here from Iowa for a few days' visit, Mrs. Wallace plans to spend most of her time viewing monuments and galleries with her 15-year-old son, for this is his first trip to the Capital.

No formal entertaining is being planned for Mrs. Wallace, but informal family gatherings are being arranged which will include the Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, the visitor's brother-in-law and his wife.

Norman T. Andersons To Entertain at Tea

Mr. and Mrs. Norman T. Anderson will entertain at tea Sunday for Miss Elizabeth Rhodes Millard and David Lindsay Crawford, who will be married November 22. Miss Millard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Lewis Millard and niece of Miss Emily Millard, of the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

Assisting Mrs. Anderson will be Mrs. Genevieve Chase, Mrs. Rowland Lyons, Miss Martha H. Lindsay, Miss Julia Minnigerode, Mrs. Thomas Myers and Mrs. Alonzo Jan Peeke, the former Miss Anne Hyde Cochrane.

New Senator From S. C. Widely Feted

Having taken his oath of office at noon, the new Senator from South Carolina, Burnet F. Maybank, was feted at several parties yesterday. Sharing honors with him was Mrs. Maybank, who arrived here recently to see her husband take his oath of office in the Senate.

Entertaining between 5 and 7 o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Peace were hosts at cocktails at the Mayflower yesterday afternoon in honor of the Maybanks. It was a large, but informal, party given by former Senator Peace, who came up here to "fill in" the vacancy created by Alvin Lumkin's death. Mr. and Mrs. Peace will return soon to their home in Greenville, S. C., where he is owner of the Greenville News. Later in the afternoon R. N. Cooper, from South Carolina, was host at a 7 until—party also given at the Mayflower in honor of the Maybanks. Senator Maybank was formerly Governor of South Carolina and at one time Mayor of Charleston.

A number of promient Washingtonians are taking an active interest in the Washington Figure Skating Club, which will inaugurate its 1941-42 season with a short program of skating events at Riverside Stadium on Sunday morning.

J. Douglas Rollow is president of the club; Dr. Raymond Holden is vice president; Dana Parkinson is treasurer and Miss Margaret Loeffler, secretary. Directors include Walter H. Bainbridge, Walter K. Bachrach, Miss Helen Clifford, James Dougall, Dr. F. W. Farrar, Mrs. Melville B. Grosvenor, Ernest Hall, C. L. Parker, Miss Mildred Ramsay, Hugh Warren and Dr. Otto H. Wendt.

An interesting feature of the program for the first session will be the presentation of medals to those who have passed the proficiency test in figure skating and ice dancing, as prescribed by the United States Figure Skating Association. Those who are to receive medalsinclude, for the junior test, Miss Cathleen O'Reilly, Miss Carolyn Wendt and Miss Elizabeth Eisinger; first test, Walter H. Bainbridge, jr., and Miss Helen Grosvenor; second test, Miss Ruth Parkinson; third test, Miss Mary Francis Rollow; bronze dance test, Miss Ruth Parkinson, Miss Elizabeth Hinrichs, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Le Roy Parker, David Speck, Dr. Frederick W. Farrar and Ernest Hall.

All-Woman Jury Convicts Youth on Morals Charge

Watertown, N. Y., Nov. 5 (AP).—An all-woman jury, one of the first in the Nation, today convicted Arthur Bullis, 19, on a morals charge after deliberating one hour.

The defendant, charged with attempting to corrupt the morals of a 7-year-old girl, will be sentenced later. The jury was drawn yesterday after defense counsel expressed belief of an all-woman panel was preferable to a mixed jury.

SPAB Vetoes Texas Pipeline

The Supply Priorities and Allocations Board yesterday put a final veto on the Texas-East Coast pipeline projected by Petroleum Coordinator Ickes on the ground that the 660,000 tons of ingot steel necessary was more valuable for other devense and civilian purposes.

In mid-September SPAB ruled against priorities for steel plate with which the line was originally to have been built. It left open the question of using seamless steel tubing. Yesterday, however, it also refused priority ratings for this material.

Pointing out that it recognized the "vital importance" of getting oil to the Atlantic Coast, SPAB implied that there were other possible methods besides the pipeline and indicated that it would even prefer further gasoline rationing for pleasure cars to the diversion of "large quantities of critical materials."

Dutch Indies Bars Plane Gas to Timor

Batavia, The Netherlands East Indies, Nov. 5 (AP).—Export of high octane (airplane) gasoline to Portuguese Timor was prohibited today.

Officials said the action was aimed against the possibility of the accumulation in Dilly, capital and port of the Portuguese possession in the Malay Archipelago, of an abnormal fuel supply which might eventually benefit the Japanese. They alleged that Japanese capital had filtered into a Portuguese firm handling gasoline in Dilly.

Kentucky to Form Engineer School For Negroes

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 5 (AP).—The recent demand of a young Negro for admission to the University of Kentucky Civil Engineering School resulted today in a decision to establish such a course at Kentucky State College for Negroes here.

The State board of education executive committee adopted a resolution authorizing a two-year course to be given at the local institution effective immediately and declared:

"It is the desire of the State board of education that the work offered in this two-year curriculum be comparable in every respect to that offered for the same two years at the University of Kentucky."

Charles Eubanks, of Louisville, has a suit pending in Federal Court demanding admission to the University engineering course. It was based on the United States Supreme Court's ruling in a Missouri case that States must provide equal educational opportunities for whites and Negroes.

Kentucky's 1904 act prohibiting joint education of the races was upheld by the United States Supreme Court and forced Berea College, Berea, Ky., to cease admitting Negro students.

Rotary Presents Tablet to Boys Club

Speedup for Defense

Justice David A. Pine in District Court yesterday agreed to speed up a divorce case, because the plaintiff, William H. Carter, an accountant, of the 1200 block of K Street Northwest, told the court that he is scheduled to leave Monday for Trinidad for work on a U. S. base there.

Carter is suing Mrs. Margaret E. Carter.

Judge Catches Evidence

A Redskin end couldn't have done a better job of spearing a forward pass than did Judge George D. Neilson in Police Court yesterday. He made a one-hand catch of a 6-inch dime store football—robes and all—when it was tossed to him by five "boys" on trial for playing in the street. Neilson dismissed charges after a lecture on the dangers "to yourselves and motorists."

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Minimum Pay Bill Is Frowned Upon

The Administration has sat down on a bill introduced by Representative John E. Sheridan, Pennsylvania Democrat, which would establish a $1500 minimum salary for Federal employes and which would give pay raises to all employes earning $3100 and less. Responding to a request for a report on the bill by Chairman Ramspeck of the House Civil Service Committee, President Harry B. Mitchell of the Civil Service Commission wrote that "we believe the bill in its present form does not meet the requirements of good pay legislation."

The Budget Bureau, the President's administrative arm, riddled the measure when it reported that the proposed legislation "was not in accord with the program of the President. The Sheridan bill is being actively supported by the United Federal Workers of America, the C. I. O. union.

In his report, Mitchell estimated that the bill would cost more than $100,000,000 just to establish a $1500 minimum wage for Federal workers. In January, 1937, he said, there were 205,361 employes paid less than $1500. Since that time, he estimated, there has been a 75 per cent employe increase.

Mitchell, however, didn't close the door to pay raises for Federal workers. He wrote Ramspeck that "we are entirely in sympathy with the general objective underlying the effort to improve the financial status of the lower paid Government workers."

Rowe to Move

James Rowe, the youngest of the President's six anonymous assistants, is reported to have accepted the position of assistant to Attorney General Francis Biddle, which is the No. 3 job in the Justice Department. Who will be appointed to succeed Rowe is apparently causing the headaches. Ed Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is said to be wangling to put Wayne Coy, the President's liaison with OEM, in the job. Flynn is understood to have his own private candidate for Coy's key defense job.

Another possibility for Rowe's job is Samuel Rosenman, the New York jurist, who made a special study of defense for the President and who is now investigating the various housing agencies. Rosenman, of course, would have to resign his State judgeship. Apparently the President plans to use Rosenman indefinitely on special projects and a suitable spot may be found for him here.

Boys, here's a chance to cash in on your hobby and get excellent training besides. It's hard to believe, but Uncle Sam wants to hire boys who are model plane makers to work in the research laboratories of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics at Langley, Va. The boys must be between the ages of 16 and 25 and they must have had a model plane entered in a formal competition. Application blanks are available at the Civil Service Commission.

Henry Jarrett has resigned as chief of Agriculture's press section to join the staff at the United States News. He has been succeeded by Whitney Tharin, who was on the information staff at Agriculture Adjustment Administration . . . Paul Sifton is another newsman who has quit the Government "service to reenter the active writing field. Paul was former deputy administrator of Wage and Hour and more recently assistant administrator of the Consumers Counsel Section of the Bituminous Coal Division. His piece in The Post Impressionist column a few weeks ago inspired Jerome Kern to compose a patriotic song for the Treasury Department.

The Board of Review at Federal Trade heard its first case yesterday. It involved William E. Walter, an accountant and economist, who appealed his "high good" efficiency rating. Incidentally, Walter was the first FTC employe assigned to make reports to the defense agencies. He made reports to OPM and OPA on World War 1 price and cost studies . . . National Lawyers Guild pulled a boner when it intended to request the House Appropriations Committee to recommend funds for the Board of Legal Examiners. It addressed the letter to Robert L. Doughton as chairman of the committee instead of Representative Clarence Cannon, the regl chairman.

Spalding Is Symphony Soloist

By Ray C. B. Brown

Hans Kindler conducts the National Symphony Orchestra on Wednesday night in Constitution Hall. Soloist: Albert Spalding. Program: Prelude and Fugue in D minor (Handel-Kindler), Violin Concerto in A major, K. V. 219 (Mozart), Czech Rhapsody (Weinberger), Violin Concerto (Barberi, Symphony No. 1 in E minor (Sibelius).

Having begun the National Symphony Orchestra's eleventh season on Sunday with the premiere of a new American work and the first local performance of a new American work and the first local performance of a novelty, Hans Kindler maintained that excellent standard of program-making last evening by presenting another premiere of a piece by an adopted American and the initial hearing in Washington of Samuel Barber's fine violin concerto. More than that, he added for good measure his own impressive transcription of a Handel prelude and fugue. With Albert Spalding as soloist in two concertos and a splendid performance of Sibelius' first symphony, the concert as a whole had a quality both exciting and deeply satisfying.

BROWN

Jaromir Weinberger placed at least one leaf in Dr. Kindler's wreath of laurel by writing at his suggestion, and for him alone, a prelude to the "Czech Rhapsody" which was played for the first time anywhere. Those who have heard excerpts from Weinberger's "Svanda Dudak" (and who hasn't?) know with what verve he writes in his folk idiom, and how cleverly he orchestrates his melodies. In his new rhapsody he has utilized three Czech folk tunes, two in polka rhythm and between them a wistful theme of charming lyricism, and the combination results in music of immediate popular appeal. The instrumentation is brilliant and the harmonic texture glows with color, while the polka tunes are treated with irresistible jollity.

In contrast to this facile manipulation of melodies inherently attractive, Samuel Barber's violin concerto is a work of genuine inspiration and originality. The force and sincerity of the thematic ideas, the momentum of their emotion and the integrity of the form in which they are expressed are what one would expect from the composer of the "Adagio for Strings." Only a greatly gifted writer can create music so charged with significance and so profoundly stimulating to the imagination of the listener.

Mr. Barber was fortunte in having Albert Spalding as the eloquent exponent of the solo part, as well as in the sympathy of Dr. Kindler's reading, and his handclasps with them both when he came on the stage to acknowledge the applause could not have been perfunctory gestures. In the lyric persuasiveness of tone and in the technical ease of the performance, Mr. Spalding was indeed a friendly coadjutor.

Mr. Spalding also dealt brilliantly and poetically with Mozart's A major concerto, a work which contains some surprising forecasts of harmonic development and structural growth. The more one hears of Mozart's early music, the greater is one's astonishment at the maturity of his musical mind, at the value of the ideas which it projected with the unconsciousness of genius.

Realistic Sex Education Urged in Home

A more realistic approach to sex education in the home was advocated yesterday at the final session of the Parent-Teacher Institute at George Washington University.

Mothers and fathers are shirking their duty when they give "smoke screen" answers to their children's questioning, which encourages them to go to questionable sources for knowledge, said Mrs. Evelyn Bright Buckley, social hygiene chairman of the D. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The school as well as the home must play its part, the more than 100 parents and teachers were told by Ray H. Everett, executive secretary of the D. C. Social Hygiene Society.

Tabooed Subjects

"Educators claim as their major objective 'training for living,'" he said. "Yet the very sources of human life and its reproduction are tabooed subjects here. A few courageous principals are doing notable work, but without official support or approval."

He deprecated the omission of any reference to syphilis or gonorrhea in school books here.

"Had our schools," he said, "given youth the protection of knowledge, Washington might not now be in the unenviable situation of seeing her selectees leading the Nation's large cities in syphilis prevalence."

Parents Rebuked

Dr. Chester W. Holmes, assistant superintendent of schools, forecast the day when "home work" will have to be done in school because of increasing distractions in and about the home—radio, the movies, etc. The antidote, he said, is a lengthened school day.

He administered a rebuke to parents, saying that too many are inclined to ignore health hints which the child brings home from school, and to youngsters generally on the ground that their courtesy leaves much to be desired.

Mrs. P. C. Ellett, president of the District P.-T. A., presided over both days' sessions of the institute, which was sponsored jointly by the P.-T. A. and George Washington University.

School Board Acts to Form Raid Service

10 Officials Named To Administer Civil Defense Section Under New Plan

The Board of Education yesterday moved to establish within the District school system a division of the local Air Raid Warden Service naming 10 officials to function as a permanent central administrative committee on civilian defense.

The action followed a recent talk by Col. Lemuel Bolles, executive director of the District Civilian Defense Area, before a meeting of school administrative officers and was adopted yesterday upon the recommendation of Supt. of Schools Frank W. Ballou, who will head the committee as deputy warden.

School officers were named to supervise such branches as fire, police, medical, maintenance and morale. They will work through the various school principals who will in turn cooperate with the sector warden where the school is located, the zone warden and the community organizations within each respective area.

Enrollment Decreases

In another communication to the board, Dr. Ballou submitted figures on the decrease of enrollment in District public schools, "notwithstanding the striking increase in the whole population," here, saying he had had many inquiries as to the cause of this situation.

Work permits issued during the past 13 months according to the statistical office, Dr. Ballou said, are nearly double that of the preceding 13 months. For 1940-41 work permits were issued in the amount of 7669 and for 1939-40 totaling 2966. Also it was reported that nearly 4000 pupils expected to report to local schools last September did not enroll, he said.

Appropriation Urged

The board moved to request the District Commissioners to seek a deficiency appropriation for $8000 to cover the cost of a course of study in aeronautics in the senior high schools to begin in February.

The following school officials were named as assistant deputy wardens of the Central Civilian Defense Board—Division 1-9: Dr. C. W. Holmes, fire, first assistant; L. J. Cantrell, police, second assistant; A. W. Heinmiller, medical, third assistant; J. J. Crane, maintenance, fourth assistant; and R. L. Haycock, morale, fifth assistant. Divisions 10-13: Dr. G. C. Wilkinson, fire, first assistant; Dr. H. H. Long, police, second assistant; Dr. E. A. Clark, medical, third assistant; J. J. Crane, maintenance, fourth assistant, and A. K. Savoy, morale, fifth assistant.

Mother, Physician And Rescue Crew Save Baby's Life

Quick action by a mother, doctor and rescue crew were credited last night with saving the life of a 3-year-old Washington baby.

Mrs. Rena Klavan, of 5017 Illinois Avenue, gave her baby, Rochelle, a dose of a medicine which the child had taken before with no ill effects, according to police. Suddenly the child began to have spasms.

The mother immediately called her physician, Dr. Sander Lachman, 1916 R Street Northwest. Dr. Lachman got the Fire Department with its oxygen tent to the scene. Rochelle's condition improved after she was placed under the emergency tent. Later in the night she was placed under an oxygen tent belonging to the Ohio Chemical Co., so the Fire Department tent could be left free for other sudden needs.

Robbery Witness Fails to Appear Before Grand Jury

Marilyn Wilson, one of the Government's chief witnesses in the $50,000 Hyattsville bank robbery case, failed to appear before a Baltimore grand jury yesterday, where she was under subpena to testify concerning her friendship with Hilliard Sanders, accused holdup man. It is expected a Federal bench warrant will be issued for her arrest.

The 32-year-old woman, in Sanders' company when he was arrested in Charlotte, N. C., was released from custody last Saturday in a habeas corpus hearing before District Court Justice Matthew McGuire.

Pastor and Wife Observe Silver Wedding

Slow Drivers Also a Peril, Say Citizens

The Friendship Citizens Association is fed up with slow-poke drivers.

Believing that slow drivers can be as big a nuisance as fast ones can be a menace, the association last night adopted a resolution seeking a minimum speed limit on arterial highways.

It also adopted a companion resolution opposed the proposed increase in the District gas tax.

The two resolutions tie in, Leonard L. Tucker, association president, explained, because the association members believe if traffic is speeded up new highways which would be paid for out of the new tax, won't be required.

The association meeting of Janney School, adopted two other resolutions, one opposing rezoning of restricted and semirestricted areas to permit boarding and rooming houses and another seeking further information "with respect to the necessity for increasing water rates." The association is opposed to such an increase.

Oldest Inhabitants

The ghosts of Halloweens of long ago were conjured up from the past last night when the Association of Oldest Inhabitants held its monthly meeting in the Old Union Engine House, Nineteenth and H Streets Northwest, with the members regaling one another with boyhood pranks of their youth.

An old river captain came into Washington one rainy night years ago, related Orrin Davy, and dressed in his slicker and boots strode through the streets. Presently he reached a man getting water in a two-gallon bucket at a pump and asked for a drink. When the captain was given the bucket he poured the water down the inside of his haincoat and asked for more. "Where have you been?" asked the man. "Oh, laying out in the graveyard a coupla years," replied the captain. "He didn't even stop for his bucket," declared Davy.

Senior Vice President John Clagett Proctor who presided at the meeting related a legend he had picked up long ago while traveling in Germany.

One new member was elected at the meeting. He was Maj. George L. Evans. Two resolutions were adopted, one opposing the proposed gas tax increase bill and the other approving in principle the proposed bill authorizing the District Commissioners to acqure, operate and regulate off-street parking facilities.

Four Big Downtown Churches Are Hunting New Pastors

By Robert Tate Allen

Post Church Editor

Four leading downtown Protestant churches are simultaneously seeking new pastors.

The churches and their present pastors are Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and H Streets Northwest, Dr. William S. Abernethy; Epiphany Episcopal, 1317 G Street Northwest, Dr. Ze Barney Phillips; National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle, Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, and Temple Baptist Church, Tenth and N Streets Northwest, the Rev. Randolph Gregory.

Dr. Abernethy, after 20 years' service, presented his resignation last May 6, to be effective December 31. However, he agreed to serve longer, if a successor is not found by that time.

Dean of Cathedral

Dr. Phillips, Chaplain of the United States Senate, announced to his Epiphany congregation last Sunday that he was resigning to accept his election as Dean of Washington Cathedral. He agreed to serve as rector until a successor is obtained. The Epiphany vestry is expected to take action on a new rector at its December meeting.

Dr. Miller preached his farewell sermon as rector last Sunday morning, as he has resigned to become editor of The Christian Evangelist, Disciples of Christ organ published in St. Louis, Mo. The Rev. W. H. Pinkerton, retired local minister, will serve as ad interim pastor.

The Rev. Mr. Gregory has been given a year's leave of absence for Army chaplaincy service, and is now stationed at Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook, N. J. A supply pastor will serve until his return.

In discussing the vacancy situation yesterday with this reporter, several religious leaders agreed that the pulpits would be "big shoes" to fill.

Studying Qualifications

John B. Abrahams said that his Calvary pulpit committee was having no easy time trying to pick Dr. Abernethy's successor. The committeemen have visited Baptist churches throughout the country to study pastors' qualifications. But no decision has yet been reached.

Being pastor of National City Christian Church, too, is no easy task. There is still a building debt of $300,000—having been reduced from $600,000 during the eight-year ministry of Dr. Miller. There is a congregation of 1500 persons. There is both denominational and interdenominational work to do.

The supply pastor coming to Temple Church will find plenty to do outside of his Congregational work. For there is also the Temple Recreation Center, community project started by the Rev. Mr. Gregory several years ago with the cooperation of local religious and civic groups.

Lieut. Joel White's Funeral to Be Tomorrow

Funeral services for Lieut. Joel A. White, 22, of Los Angeles, who was killed in an airplane crash last week during Army maneuvers in South Carolina, have been tentatively set for tomorrow at 10 a. m. in Arlington Cemetery.

Lieut. White spent six years of his boyhood here when his father, now Capt. Joel A. White, of the United States Navy, was stationed in Washington. Their home was in Chevy Chase. Capt. and Mrs. White are expected to arrive here by plane today from Los Angeles to make final arrangements for their son's funeral.

D. C. Doctors Back Medical Examination

Society Indorses Periodic Tests President Proposed To Help Nation

President Roosevelt's suggestion that periodic medical examinations may provide the key to improving the health of the Nation was snapped up last night by the District Medical Society at a three-hour meeting which unanimously approved a plan to provide a standard, low-cost examination.

Under the plan, those able to pay for medical care would be charged $5, with free examinations provided indigents with the cooperation of the Health Security Administration and local medical schools. Those able to pay would be examined by their personal physicians.

The examination would consist of a routine physical check-up, plus a blood and urine analysis. Inclusion of a Wasserman test to determine presence of syphilis is still to be determined. Examinations at least once a year would be urged for adults, with children to be examined with greater frequency.

The plan was prepared by the society's committee on public health headed by Dr. John A. Reed. An appeal to public health and civic groups for cooperation is contemplated with the program to become a permanent part of the society's activity.

Adoption of periodic medical examinations for well individuals has been urged by leading doctors for more than 20 years without success. President Roosevelt mentioned their efforts when he called attention to a "shockingly high" number of potential selectees rejected because of physical defects.

Under the plan, the Health Security Administration would certify indigents for free medical examinations. Then, senior students at medical schools would be asked to perform the examination.

Dr. Reed pointed out that the program must be popularized if it is to succeed. Previous programs have not been attractive to the average self-supporting family, he said.

Theodore Wipdrud, secretary of the society, said the program offered medical men a "real opportunity to lead rather than to be led." He said the cost factor has been an obstacle faced by previous programs because "none want to pay for medical care when they are well."

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Post Celebrities Starred In Short Film Features

TWO SHORT SCREEN SUBJECTS of more than casual interest are about to reveal themselves on local screens. By accidental good luck, we have seen them both this week. One is comprised of the theory, methods and results of the Gallup Poll, captured in celluloid for the first time; the other, "The Highway of Friendship," affording a comprehensive survey of what has been otherwise described as "The Burma Road of the Western Hemisphere."

DON TERRY

In Columbia's picturization of the processes involved in the operation of the Gallup Poll, appearing in Washington exclusively in The Post, the scientific technique employed by the American Institute of Public Opinion in reading 132 million American minds on more than 1000 topics of national interest and importance, with a minimum margin of error, is analyzed with some minuteness. The system is not only described, but shown in action, with representatives of Dr. George Gallup's 1100 field operatives canvassing cross-sections of national life from the metropolitan centers of big business to the rickety shacks of the share-croppers. The statistical procedures by which the mass of public opinion thus obtained is tabulated and interpreted also is gone into some detail, with Dr. Gallup pictured in the supervision of the unique agency of information which he founded in 1935. A view of the film will greatly increase the reader's sense of value of the Gallup columns appearing regularly in this paper.

"Highway of Friendship" is as much a study of engineering skill as it is a monument to Pan-American amity. This Twentieth Century-Fox film takes the form of a motor trip over the intercontinental highway which, when completed, will form an unbroken, 10,000-mile link between the United States, Mexico and the countries of Central and South America as far as the Argentine. The route of the tour ranges from the capitals and principal cities of the countries to our south to the tangles of jungle and mountainous heights the highway must traverse.

"Highway of Friendship" will be given its world premiere in Loew's Capitol Theater tonight with a distinguished audience in attendance. Ambassadors and ministers of the South and Central American republics, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director, and other officials of the Pan-American Union, senators and representatives will be the guests of Carter T. Barron, eastern division manager for Loew's, Inc. Not the least interested of the spectators will be Jack Gordon, production supervisor of all Twentieth Century-Fox short subjects.

Another Post "Short" Here in Person

Don Terry, star of Universal's serial, "Don Winslow of the Navy," based on the comic page strip familiar to readers of The Post and millions of others throughout the country, is a visitor in Washington today as guest of Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's Theater. Terry, former heavyweight boxing champion at Harvard, expressed great interest in the working of the United States Navy during the filming of the picture and so today also is a guest of the Navy Department on an inspection tour of its Washington activities.

'Way back yonder, we stopped by the Pix Theater one Saturday afternoon to review an unheralded film we were confident would be "just another one of those things." All in the line of duty and rubbish like that. We came out rejercing at having been lucky enough to have sat in on one of the most delightful comedies of the season, costarring Margaret Lockwood and a newcomer by the name of Derek Farr. The picture was "Quiet Wedding" and it has been captivating audiences ever since. But even Washington's good luck can't go on forever. Forced out by prior bookings, "Quiet Wedding" is ending its run at the Pix this Friday night. Our tip would be to hustle around there, if you haven't already. Almost 50,000 have. Ask any of them.

Personal-Aside-to-That-Indian Note

The Civic Theater Introduces 'Thunder Rock' to Washington

By Nelson B. Bell

"Thunder Rock," Robert Ardrey's study in isolated and introspective grappling with the problems of present day civilization, last night was presented for the first time in Washington, at the Wardman Park Theater, as the Civic Theater's second offering of the season.

More a mental exercise than an animated stage piece of movement and action, this examination of the imaginative ruminations of a young newspaperman and author, self-exiled in a lonely lighthouse in the northern reaches of Lake Michigan, the better to attack the problems of a disturbed world, expresses itself in terms of phantasy that occasionally are psychologically exciting and always physically static. The drama of "Thunder Rock" lies principally in the mind of the spectator and takes on life, warmth and vigor only as a sympathetic listener reads these qualities into lines that never quite fulfill their dramatic purpose. Mr. Ardrey has turned out more of a library work than a play to be acted.

This former brilliant young writer, Charleston, immures himself in the solitary loneliness of Thunder Rock as lighthouse keeper to escape the confusion of an outer world with which he can no longer cope or sanely report. In his imagination, he brings back to mortal existence the lost captain and passengers of a ship that foundered there in 1840, to whom the beacon stands as a memorial as well as safeguard to the living. From these wraiths of a life that existed almost a century before, he evolves the counsel and the inspiration to abandon his "ivory tower" and undertake again the course of combat, struggle and hope.

Played Without Intermission

Director Leon Askin has staged the work in one continuous act, with time passages indicated by the lowering of the lights, to sustain a mood that is not always tenable and sometimes difficult for both players and audience. The matter of "atmosphere" has been handled extremely well, but it is still by no means a surety that a brief break or two in Mr. Ardrey's abstruse discourse would come amiss. What ordinarily would be three acts now are run off in one in a brief hour and a half.

"Thunder Rock" is not an easy chore for any cast. Its force, on the side of active opposition to the sinister powers that are wrecking the world, reposes wholly in the intelligent and illuminating reading of the Ardrey dialogue. This was rather more than acceptably encompassed by last night's first performance of a play that finds perhaps its most convenient counterpart in Maxwell Anderson's "High Tor," which also and for the same reasons imposed heavy imposts upon its players.

Cort Steen, as Streeter, the aviator harassed by the same perplexities as Charleston; T. Alexander, as the reincarnated Capt. Joshua; Lawrence Beckerman, as Dr. Kurtz, who missed greatness by the narrowest of margins in his generation; Dudley Sadler, as the bewildered Briggs, and Gail Benedict, the symbol of frustrated womanhood, it seemed to me, did most for the effectiveness of the play last evening. Marvin Beers, in the pivotal role of Charleston, permitted the intellectual and spiritual qualities of the character more or less to elude him.

The single setting gives an immediate impression of solidity admirably in keeping with the nature of the phantasy and Mildred Thompson has costumed the piece appropriately and unobtrusively. "Thunder Rock" will be presented at Wardman, Wednesday through Saturday, for three weeks.

BUSTER WILES

one of Hollywood's iron-nerved and most daring stunt men, all done up as a Sioux brave, shows the bona fide redmen how to lend a bit of sensational realism to the Warner Brothers production of "They Died With Their Boots On." Huge PuppetArmy Created for Film

More than 8200 puppets were used in the making of "Gay Knighties," George Pal's fourth Puppetoon for Paramount, starring wooden hero Jim Dandy. Each movement of each mannikin on a miniature stage requires a totally new puppet. The stories are phantasies filmed with music and in Technicolor.

HEDDA HOPPER

Philosophic Star and a Shoat

Hollywood, Nov. 5.

Ran into Thomas Mitchell on "Song of the Island" set, which is an enormous reproduction of a South Sea paradise. It's all make-believe, but the illusion is perfect, with a huge crystal waterfall tumbling in the background and doves preening themselves beside it. Wind rustles the palm leaves, the place is a riot of flowers. And in the foreground, a hundred extras garlanded with posies are shouting over a native feast. But Tommy, casting a sad eye on the whole works, said, "Some remote island is the only place in the world where we can set a happy story these days, Hedda. And even here, every time I look at that roast pig out there I think of hungry people. I'm in favor of starting all over again with the stone age man and see if we can't do better the next time."

THOMAS MITCHELL

Twenty years ago Jack Votion, a young Belgian, veteran of the first World War, arrived in Hollywood with a trunkful of medals and citations, a body full of shrapnel fragments, plenty of guts and very little else. He met Mal St. Clair, then one of our top directors, who gave him extra work in his pictures to help him get started. Votion worked like a fanatic, got onto the prop gang at Paramount, became an assistant director, and later casting director at the same studio. Last week Producer Jack Votion signed Mal St. Clair to direct his next Lum and Abner picture, which, like the first one—"Dreaming Out Loud"—will be released through RKO. They hadn't seen each other for 15 years, and they're both happy about the whole thing.

Two years ago Bob Taylor gave Barbara Stanwyck a complete skiing outfit, but never could get her interested in learning to use it. Well, after she had a few skiing scenes in "You'll Belong to Me," she got so hepped up over the idea that she's going to Sun Valley soon and really learn how to use that 1939 Christmas present.

Betty Grable has a couple more teeth impacted and will have to have them yanked.

Did you know that Albert Dekker has a museum of phoney antiques? He loves to make unusual pieces of furniture. One he calls a "lute bench," which you can recline on while playing the piano, and there's a stand attached for the music. He hurled the thing to antique it. And I'll be darned if he hasn't had an offer for it!

Another of his prize fakes is what he calls a "Yorkshire milking stool," which is a three-legged stool with a hole in the middle for the milk to go through. It stands over the pail, so the cow can't kick it over. Yep, it's just as silly as it sounds.

New York Calling

New York, Nov. 5.

ASCAP: Irving Berlin, who has become the Songwriter Laureate of America, is writing a song for The American Red Cross' Angels of Mercy . . . ADMIRAL TOWERS: Isn't it true that Lieut. Comdr. Anthony L. Danis, who was on the bridge of the U. S. S. Kearny when the vessel was hit by a torpedo, was deafened by the explosion—and will be transferred to his original post, the Meterologic Division of the Navy? . . . BENNETT CERF: Bernard Baruch has written his autobiography, but he hasn't as yet decided whether he wants it published during his lifetime.

IRVING BERLIN

B. G. DE SYLVA: Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels, who were reported to have signed for the London presentation of "Panama Hattie," are negotiating for a weekly sponsored broadcast to America—the first programs were sponsored from London. They plan to present a guest-star every week and assign their salaries to British relief . . . ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT: Here's one for your murder-thriller records: Because there are so many cross-involvements of so many people, in the killings credited to Murder, Inc., Burton Turkus—prosecutor of the lot—keeps a "Control-Sheet of Murders & Murderers" for handy reference, similar to the control system used by public accountants . . . GEORGE W. HILL: Leopold Stokowski is raising tobacco, for sale, in Connecticut.

PAT DICICCO: To avoid publicity whenever she goes out, Gloria Vanderbilt brought from Hollywood a young lady named Shirley Cowan—who is Gloria's double. The naive Gloria expects that the night-club publicists will become so confused, when they see either of them with escorts, that the mistaken identities eventually will kill all publicity . . . FORMER AMBASSADOR POTOCKI: The Federal Government, which twice saved the lives of Poland's Foreign Minister Josef Beck and Gen. Smigly-Rydz, now can't locate them . . . ROSEMARY LANE: George Abbott, who produced your "Best Foot Forward," has been removed to New York Hospital.

GENE BUCK: A few days before the radio chains signed the new agreement of settlement with ASCAP, a group of songwriters, fearful of reduced incomes, discussed their plight with composer Sigmund Romberg. "There's nothing to worry about," Romberg assured them. "ASCAP is going to win this fight—hands up" . . . SECRETARY HAROLD ICKES: Aren't those recently-returned oil tankers—which allegedly solved the gas rationing problem in the East—subject to recall by Britain February 1? . . . LOCAL 802: When the Rustic Cabin, where Teddy Powell's band played each night, burned down last week, all the musical instruments were destroyed. The 26 stations which broadcast Powell's music are obliging him, in the interim—by playing his recordings.

BORO. PRES. CASHMORE: Gertrude Niesen, whose night club billing now reads "Direct from Newport," finally received her first official visitor at the 3-million dollar Newport home she bought at auction. The visitor was Mayor McCauley. "Your taking up residence here is quite alright with me," said the Mayor of the swank colony. "I too am from Brooklyn." . . . MARRIAGE LICENSE BUREAU: That announced-engagement of Tammy Manville and Barbara Bannister, the Smithfield Ham heiress, didn't materialize—because, that day, the newsdealers organized their boycott of New York newspapers. The couple, therefore, was deprived of the publicity they wanted . . . DANNY KAYE: When George Jessel read that the two hit numbers of "Let's Face It" were written by your wife, he sighed: "What a break, having a wife who can write. In my vaudeville-set you're lucky if your wife can read."

COL. FRANK KNOX: Charles Taussig, of the American Molasses Co., who recently presented his yacht to the Navy, soon will be taking a cruise—in behalf of the President. The long-awaited Joint Anglo-American Commission, to supervise the economic and social problems in the Caribbean Islands, will be formed next week. Taussig will be a member of the American dedegation . . . JIM FARLEY: Times have changed. Natalie Bodanya, of the Metropolitan Opera, drove a car into which a United States mail truck crashed. She wrote an indignant letter to the Postmaster General, itemizing $14.80 damages. The check came by return mail. WARNER BROS.: John Garfield, now touring the Army camps in Trinidad and Puerto Rico, via bomber, is trying to convince the War Department to continue that flight, to Mexico and South America.

WILLIAM POWELL: The publishers of "Dark Legend"—the new book based upon a New York matricide case, written by Dr. Frederick Wertham, the noted psychiatrist—suppressed the name of the movie which the young killer saw before he slew his mother. It was "Lawyer Man," which starred you and Joan Blondell . . . DAN SEYMOUR: Recently Mrs. Helm, the White House social secretary, came to the studio where Eleanor Roosevelt broadcasts, and watched you announce the coffee program. "If coffee-drinking makes a person that stout," said Mrs. Helm, when she saw your heftiness, "I won't drink another cup" . . . "Oh, but remember," Mrs. Helm was reminded, "Dan also announces a beer program."

Welsh Mines Movingly Filmed In 'The Stars Look Down'

By Richard L. Coe

Every so often there comes along a picture, a play or book which takes the "long view"—wringing a drop of future hope from a tragedy of the present, from an unfulfilled longing that stretches beyond the confines of the story. Such a film is "The Stars Look Down," which opened its run last night at the Little Theater as a benefit for the British-American Ambulance Corps. A distinguished cast and director make it an absorbing, memorable picture.

"The Stars Look Down" stems from the novel of the Welsh coal fields by Dr. A. J. Cronin, who has written before of his thoughts and experiences as a physician from Harlech to Harley Street. Its film treatment gains immeasurably from its cast and the stunning direction of Carol Reed, who performed similar magic for "Night Train." He has accented his story with telling use of silence, a device which makes a silent crowd one of the most awesome sights seen in recent films. There is little time in this film for the usual bows to the traditional love story. The hero, for instance, has married the wrong girl but, though she isn't worth it, he obviously loves her.

This unpleasant character is played, surprisingly enough, by Margaret Lockwood, who, up to now, has been one of the most admirable of heroines. As the marriage-mad daughter of a boarding-house keeper, Miss Lockwood has a role in vivid contrast to her customary assignments. She simply is unworthy of the boy who hoped to help his fellow miners by studying law and legislating in their behalf.

An Excellent Cast

Admirably acted by Michael Redgrave, this chap calls to mind the lad for whom Miss Barrymore sacrifices so much in "The Corn Is Green." He has escaped from the gray bitterness that is his home, trying to find a way to keep the mine owners from employing veins whose safety is questionable. Though they are outwardly disdainful of his ambition, they hold high hopes for him in their hearts. His mother exemplifies this sense of hope and is sympathetically brought to life by Nancy Price. About the time he leaves the village (after a strike riot for which his father was jailed) another, sharper individual, played with unerring precision by Emlyn Williams, sets out to seek his fortune, too. Nearing the end of his law term—and a highly successful preparation he has made—the lad meets our ambitious heel and falls in love with the girl he had been trifling with. It is a quick courtship and when they are settled down, Parliament and justice seem further from his grasp.

It is here both story and action achieve a breathless, gripping tempo that is not relaxed despite five days' entombment in a mine. It is no uncertain finger Dr. Cronin points at the criminal negligence or intent which assigns men to constant risk of life. Of course, whether such a case as Dr. Cronin has drawn still does exist is completely beyond this observer's ken, but some of the thoughts that will occur to you as you watch it are: How would this drama move those who today work in our own coal mines? What similarities, if any, would John L. Lewis find in this Welsh story and America's mines?

Such, then, is the force of "The Stars Look Down." In a stirring final speech a narrator, presumably the author, voices the belief that the sacrifices and minute progress made by the hero will ultimately result in a world that is better.

"The Stars Look Down" is strong, provocative film fare, taking the "long view" which our chaotic day is finding so vital to its sanity.

Bottled Viper Saves a Rehearsal

Three soldiers of the Royal Australian Air Force carried their own excitement with them in a bottle when they toured Warner Bros.' sound stages. And its contents weren't liquid.

While walking through the back lot set where Betty Davis was murdered in "The Letter," Corporal Bob Gamble and Sergts. Bruce Cullen and Wal Birk saw a small snake. They promptly captured it, stuffed it in a bottle they found, and carried it along with them.

When they arrived on "The Male Animal" set, Olivia de Havilland was about to feign hysterics for a quarrel scene with Henry Fonda. She took one look at what the visiting airmen had in their bottle, and didn't need rehearsing for the scene.

Millions Saved

If all the animals, performers and equipment drawn by Walt Disney's artists for the comic feature 'Dumbo" had been real instead of drawn, the RKO-Radio release would have cost Disney eight and a half million dollars to make.

Employers Aid Ex-Selectees Find Work

Employers have been exceedingly cooperative in reemploying selectees discharged from Army service, District Selective Service headquarters reported last night.

Not a single case has turned up of an "unreasonable' employer who refused to take a selectee back, or to cooperate in giving him temporary employment while he was locating a permanent position, it was said. The Selective Service Act gives selectees the right to avail themselves of the service of the Federal District Attorney's office, but no such appeal for aid has been made in the District as yet.

About 175 former soldiers have reported to the board for reemployment, with 85 getting their old jobs back, 40 getting new jobs and others making temporary arrangements. The remainder was either unemployed originally or lived elsewhere prior to induction into service.

One big problem has been the difficulty former soldiers have experienced in getting on civil service rolls. Many positions in Washington are being given to persons on civil service rolls, but it will take some time before the men get on the appropriate registers and become eligible for Government jobs.

Reports of boom-town conditions in Washington have reached neighboring camps and have encouraged nonresidents to come here instead of returning to their home towns in search of work.

Photographer, Two Others Hurt In Plane Crash

Baltimore, Nov. 5 (AP).—Three Baltimore men, one a photographer for the Sunpapers, were injured today when their airplane crashed into a tree near Logan Field when they were making a forced landing after the motor went dead at about 1200 feet altitude.

Robert F. Kniesche, the photographer, was pilot. He received facial lacerations.

Norwood Barnus, 20, suffered internal injuries and abrasions of arms and legs and William Ridenour a deep laceration over the right eye.

Benjamin Taylorson, 16, who lives near the scene, fell from a horse while galloping to the scene and suffered a broken leg. Hospital attendants said he appeared more seriously hurt than the fliers.

Swank Voters Elect Maid, But She Quits

LORETTA BERNSDORFF

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Nov. 4.—Electors in swank Sewickley Heights Township chose Loretta Bernsdorff, 22, a cook and maid, as their justice of the peace, but she turned down the job today.

Last September write-in voters gave Miss Bernsdorff the nomination in the Republican primary and yesterday she defeated her Democratic opponent, Harris Wachter, 42 to 33, in the general election.

Miss Bernsdorff said, however, she will not take over the office next January. She explained:

"My family is moving next week to another township and so I won't be able to accept the office."

Officials of the county board of elections confirmed her statement, saying that the office to which she was elected would be declared vacant in January if she moved from the township.

Miss Bernsdoff, who works in a Sewickley Heights home, said she hadn't campaigned or paid any attention to yesterday's voting:

"I hadn't thought much about being elected so I am not worrying about being able to take the office. I don't know how I came to be nominated, some people just wrote in my name.

"I don't know whether I would have made a good justice of the peace. I would have liked to try it if I wasn't going to move."

Taylor Speaks Today At Chest Rally

Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Undersecretary of Commerce, will preside today at a precampaign rally of 5000 volunteer Community Chest workers to be held at 3:30 p. m. in the interdepartmental auditorium.

Other speakers will be Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the U. S. Maritime Commission; District Commissioner Guy Mason, Coleman Jennings, president of the Community Chest, and Chest Director Herbert L. Willett, jr. A film will be shown and the U. S. Army Band will play.

WAS DEAF ened

NOW HEARS CLOCK TICK

A. M. Beetchenon, Newark, N. J., writes: "Before using Orotone Ear Drops, I was so deafened that I could not hear the clock tick. After using Orotone, I can now hear the clock tick with both ears." Thousands now hard-of-hearing would hear clearly and distinctly again, and also get relief from buzzing, ringing head noises, clogged up feeling in ears, if impacted wax that blocks ear canals and presses on sensitive eardrums was removed. Try Orotone Ear Drops as directed. They are safe and contain an ingredient especially recommended for this purpose. Month's supply only $1.00.

Real Estate Boards to Fight To Build More Civilian Homes

By Thomas M. Cahill.
Post Real Estate Editor

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 5.—All resources of the National Association of Real Estate Boards were pledged today for continuance of civilian home building during the emergency defense period.

The pledge was voiced by Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president of the organization, which is in convention here. The pledge came after the convention learned that a governmental order stopping all civilian home building is contemplated. Immediate support of Congress and all builders will be sought to keep the way open for ordinary residential construction.

John McC. Mowbray, Baltimore, chairman, committee on priorities, prices and substitute materials, Home Builders Institute, said nobody today knows how many houses are being built in this country, what the inventory of building materials actually is and who holds this inventory. Until accurate information about material supply is available, he said, neither the Government nor the authority is able to speak for the home-building situation.

Recommending a committee to collect this information, he said, "from the basis of accurate facts and figures, home builders may be able to convince governmental agencies concerned that it takes no more of critical materials to build an $8000 house for a defense worker in a city such as Washington than it does to build a $6000 house in a defense area where building costs are lower."

'Business as Usual' Out

Believing emphasis might be better placed on a quantitative limitation of actual critical materials, rather than on limiting price of the home, he asserted: "There will be no more business as usual for home building or anything else and the only way for home builders to save their business is to give adequate support to a committee which can represent them by gathering the facts to present their case at Washington."

A plea for small business enterprise in the modern crisis was made by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, at the convention.

Asserting that little business and that of real estate are essentially local, he insisted we are in as great a need today of an economic constitution as our predecessors in the eighteenth century were in need of a political one, and there should be a national rule protecting not only the rights of little business but those of big business, farmers' workers and every element of society as well, was his opinion.

Moulton Is Speaker

Financial trends were considered by President Harold G. Moulton of Brookings Institution, Washington, D. C., at a meeting of the Institute of Real Estate Management. The speaker said the extremely low interest rates of recent years have been distinctly helpful to business borrowers, and in no field has this help been more important than in real estate. The question now, however, is whether in addition to progressive increases in wage and raw material rapidly rising costs of money may be xepected soon.

Dr. Moulton thought the answer definitely in the negative, explaininging that while interest rates may harden a little during the next year, there appears to be little likelihood of any marked increase, and rates comparable to those of the last war seemed to him wholly out of the question.

He based his conclusion first on the fact that there is still enormous lending power in excess bank reserves and accumulations of idle funds and on the consideration that raising rates by changing reserve requirements, etc., will not be necessary as a means of restricting the production of consumption goods which compete with war requirements.

Priorities, he said, will take care of that much more quickly and effectively and, in any case, the Treasury's enormous borrowing requirements will be of such magnitude that a deliberate stiffening of loan rates is not likely to be agreed upon by the agencies concerned.

Dr. Moulton predicted that rents are very likely to be subjected to Government control in the not distant future, adding acute shortages in certain congested areas necessitate it in the interests of equity and that pressure of rising living costs is everywhere strengthening public resistance to increases.

After noting the effect of prospective increases in taxes, price changes, expectant demands for higher wages, higher relief rates and agricultural raw materials, Dr. Moulton concluded we are now definitely on a spiral of rising prices, rising costs, and again rising prices.

McCarran Favors Rent Control Bill

Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee last night went on record in favor of the House-passed rent control bill which the committee will consider at 11:30 a. m. today.

In a radio address over Station WWDC, Senator McCarran declared:

"The chairman of the committee is resolved that those who seek to live in the City of Washington should have a full measure of security, and that gouging and sharp tricks shall not be allowed to present themselves.

"The youth of the country is giving its life in this day of emergency, and such an emergency is not to be made an excuse for a revelry of rent jumping in places of abode in the Capital City of the Nation."

Of the measure he said, "I am very anxious to put this bill forward as rapidly as possible consistent with good legislation. I am hopeful that with some minor changes the bill as passed by the House will receive the approbation of my committee."

Senator McCarran stated that "Crime in the District must be brought to a minimum. This entails expense, because we must increase our police force."

He forecast early Senate District Committee action on the court merger bill.

Speaking of the recreation bill before his committee, the Senator declared, "I am resolved that all agencies controlling affairs within the District shall take their authority radiating, as it were, from the District Commissioners."

He mentioned another measure, now pending before the House District Committee, which would place the National Airport within the District boundaries.

"That airport belongs to the Capital of the United States," he said.

He praised the work of Renah F. Camalier, Senate District Committee municipal adviser.

Arnold Denies Aim to 'Censor' Advertising

Assurances that the Government has no desire to "censor" advertising but is "trying to maintain the complete freedom of the competitive system" were made yesterday by Assistant Attorney General Thurman W. Arnold, in charge of the antitrust division of the Department of Justice.

In a speech before the Advertising Club of Washington, Arnold declared to attempt supervision of advertising campaigns would be the same as to attempt regulation of the number of salesmen a business firm should have or how much rent it should pay.

"I do not see that advertising has any particular relation to monopoly," he declared. It is a problem of selling. It interferes with a free economy only when it interferes with the freedom of some other business."

Contrary to the opinion held by some groups, Arnold said, the antitrust division has had only a few cases in which advertising figured.

"Consumer groups do not always know the cost of advertising, and usually think it is much higher than it is," he declared. "Even the cost of tobacco advertising, for instance, is very slight—although the general public might not think so."

Mass production and distribution of standardized articles in this country during the last 20 years would have been impossible without large advertising campaigns, Arnold said.

He warned the club members against editorial campaigns attacking work of the antitrust division by saying the division was trying to restrain advertising. Such campaigns, he said, attributed to the division more power than it has—and also results in the division receiving many letters of commendation from the public.

Maj. Block Dies Of Heart Attack In San Francisco

Maj. Emil Herbert Block, of 3700 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, died Tuesday at the Military Hospital, Presidio, San Francisco, from a heart ailment, it was learned here yesterday.

Born in Washington, Maj. Block was graduated from Central High School and Georgetown Law School before entering the Army at the outbreak of the Mexican trouble.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Katherine Block, a son, Lieut. Herbert Block, of the Army Medical Corps, three brothers, Bishop Karl M. Block, of San Francisco, and Theodore and Leonard Block, both of Washington, and two sisters, Mrs. Hunton Palmer, Fairfax, Va., and Paulina Block of this city.

Definite funeral arrangements have not yet been made, but he will be buried in Arlington Cemetery.

Consumers Asked to Sign 'Pledge for Total Defense'

As a feature of National Defense Week, all Americans will be asked to sign—next Wednesday—"The Consumer's Pledge for Total Defense."

The text of the pledge follows:

"As a consumer in the total defense of democracy I will do my part to make my home, my community, and my country ready, efficient and strong.

"I will buy carefully.

"I will take good care of the things I have.

"I will waste nothing."

To highlight the consumer pledge campaign, Wednesday will be designated War Against Waste Day.

The campaign is being worked out jointly by the consumer division of the Office of Price Administration and the Office of Civilian Defense. Details telling how the cards will be distributed and collected will be announced within the next few days, an OPA official declared last night.

Final Stages

Penny Milk Parley Set Tomorrow

The Board of Education's special committee on providing milk for undernourished children will meet tomorrow to adopt a detailed penny half-pint program.

With Chairman Robert L. Haycock presiding, the committee is expected to act favorably upon reports and recommendations of three subcommittees. They are headed by Morris Zeiditch, director of the public assistance division, Department of Public Welfare; Mrs. Lucian Jordan, P.-T. A. health chairman, and Mrs. W. A. Roberts, executive secretary, Council of Social Agencies.

The subcommittees have gathered data on low income areas, milk consumption in the schools and other factors bearing on eligibility requirements. One cent half-pints of milk, for which the District would pay, may be served only in schools where a majority of the pupils are from relief or low income families and a 270 per cent consumption increase must be guaranteed.

The rules are prescribed by the Surplus Marketing Administration, which administers and subsidizes the program.

Plans for obtaining the low-cost milk for parochial schools, nurseries, settlement houses and other juvenile welfare centers also will be discussed at tomorrow's meeting. The subcommittee which has been studying this phase is headed by Mrs. Roberts.

The city-wide program, scheduled to be adopted tomorrow will be submitted to Surplus Marketing Administration officials for informal indorsement before being reported to the Board of Education.

White Council to Meet

Dr. Thomas W. Pumphrey, grand knight of the Edward Douglas White Council, Knights of Columbus, has announced that six candidates will receive the first degree at a meeting tonight in the hall on North Washington Boulevard, Arlington. A party for members will follow the business meeting.

Two more families become home owners!

MANY Washington families are watching The Post classified pages to find a house. For instance, Mr. V. Ward Boswell advertised two homes in the Houses for Sale columns just a short time ago. Any response? Plenty! People were inquiring about the properties all day long. Any sales? You bet! Two homes were sold as a direct result of this single classified ad. Mr. Boswell says, "We find advertising in The Post gets first class prospects!"

Yes, many Washington families today wish to buy a home. But only a certain percentage of them have the money to do so right now. These are the families real estate brokers realize they must reach. They are the people it is easiest to contact through the classified pages of The Washington Post . . . the ones with sufficient cash and credit backing to make home buying a reality! Just read about these quick Post sales:—

SILVER SPRING, MD., corner home sold for $7,590—by Suburban Realty Co.

RIVERDALE, MD., 7-room house sold for $6,500—by J. J. Rowe.

If you have a home you'd like to sell, place an ad in The Post's Houses for Sale columns at once. Post Want ads cost little . . . but do a man-size job of getting results. Simply phone NAtional 4200 today and ask for an ad taker. Ask her to write a descriptive ad for tomorrow's Post.

("Ben Chapman given unconditional release by White Sox after 12 seasons in majors."—News Item.)

And so a pretty good baseball name passes out of the big leagues. Long after better ball players than Ben Chapman are forgotten by baseball's fans and historians, his niche in the game will be secure. At his speciality, stealing bases, he was the champion of an era.

POVICH

No man of his time could terrorize pitcher and catcher as did Chapman. When he stole 61 bases in 1931 he was staging a one-man revival in modern baseball of an art that had seemed to expire with the end of the Cobb-Milan-Collins era. The boy from Alabama, part English, part Irish, part Cherokee, was the scourge of the baselines.

Three years ago George Case came along to challenge Chapman as the fastest man in the big leagues. A match race was scheduled, but it never took place. Case injured his leg in training. Case would probably have beaten Chapman. He was being timed in under 10 seconds flat for the 100 yards with baseball spikes. But a Case-Chapman race at that time wouldn't have been a true test. The Chapman of 1938 admittedly had slowed up two steps on a dash from home to first.

On a 100-yard straightaway, Case might have beaten Chapman on the fastest day Chapman ever knew, and we'd have bet on it, but not much. Others had tried it and failed, others who had been great sprinters in college. Jess Hill, Southern California's winner of the 50-yard dash at the Penn relays, and Carl Reynolds, Texas' best collegiate 100-yard man once hooked up with Chapman in a 100-yard race at Yankee Stadium. They led him for 50 yards but his stretch drive caught them both.

McCarthy Molded His Career

If Case had beaten Chapman on the straightaway, it would have proved little about their base-running talents. Chapman's skill in stealing bases lay not only in his speed, but in the break he got. He took longer leads than Case, which was important, and he could slide into a base better. Case got by with sheer speed. Chapman had a caginess on the bases that Case doesn't own.

But we didn't mean to make this a base-stealing piece. Thinking of Chapman, we were also thinking of Joe McCarthy, the manager who brought Chappie into the big leagues from St. Paul. For years McCarthy's baseball acumen has been doubted by the skeptics. They point to the extensive Yankee farm system, the ready-made players that come to his club from the high minors. Yet it was not McCarthy, who made a big leaguer of Chapman. He came to the Yanks as a third baseman. After a brief and disgusted look at Chapman on third base, McCarthy visioned him only as an outfielder and in that theory he was completely correct. Chappie played a lot of outfield for the Yanks for six years.

He hasn't been the most tractable fellow in baseball, incidentally. Chapman washed himself up with the Yankees in 1937 when he tiffed with McCarthy. The Yankee manager, with a duty to the front office, took cognizance of Chapman's provocative cracks to bleacherites and, after benching him, traded him to Washington in the deal for Jake Powell.

At Cleveland two seasons ago, Chapman was not one of Oscar Vitt's admirers. He pleads innocent of any part in the cry-baby rebellion against Vitt, but admits having a show down with the Cleveland manager during a series in Washington. Chapman was on the bench, and didn't like it. He told Vitt off and openly asked to be traded to Washington.

He Hit .340 but Was Traded

At Boston, Chapman apparently found Manager Joe Cronin to be something less than one of his admirers. Despite the fact that Chappie was hitting .340 for the Red Sox, Cronin traded him to Cleveland. It was the first time in history that a .340 hitter was traded for so little in return.

Boston, incidentally, was Chapman's dream park. It's short left-field fence was tailor-made for his hitting. In Griffith Stadium, where he spent three years, Chappie was continually stumped by the distant left-field wall. Outfielders backed up and took his longest drives. But in Boston he peppered that left-field fence. However, Cronin didn't want him, even as a .340 hitter.

No batter in the league could fall into as dismal a slump as Chapman when he wasn't hitting. His stroke, completely in contrast to the flat-footed stance of Joe DiMaggio, Cecil Travis and other fine hitters, was a sort of swinging lunge at the pitch that depended completely on timing. When Chappie's timing was off, he couldn't beg, borrow or get a loan of a base hit, and when Chappie wasn't getting his hits he was very unhappy indeed and not at all good company.

—With CONSIDINE

THE COSMIC PUNCH IS NOT DEAD—YET

New York, Nov. 5.—If you've been losing sleep, wondering what became of the cosmic punch and the dynamic stance, let us confuse you further by revealing that these two commodities are still percolating and will rear their eccentric heads the next time Lou Nova fights.

CONSIDINE

Speaking of rearing heads, that's what happened to Nova that night against Louis. His cosmic punch was cutting rugged swaths through the night air at the Polo Grounds and getting him nowhere. So he went into the dynamic stance, or squat, took a peek upward to see how Louis was enjoying it and Joe let the house fall on him.

But, like the guy who still drives a 1913 Scripps-Booth, Nova isn't one to give up on a thing in a hurry. We have word from his famed mentor Hut Sut Wolstan Brown, a gaunt gentleman with deep set eyes who picked up his physical training principles from a friend of a friend of the poet laureate of a Tibetian lamasery. Prof. Brown writes, perhaps to the dismay of Nova backers:

"No one should know better than Nova himself the value of my training technique to a boxer. The fact that he will use it 100 per cent in the future, instead of partially as in the Louis fight, speaks for itself.

"Not wanting to disclose his weak points before the fight, I did not give out this information about Lou. These points will be covered when he begins training at my place in Douglaston, N. Y., in December. I know that I can give him the ability to out-balance, out-block and out-punch the great Negro fighters, and this does not seem possible to the other white men in the ring at the present time."

When we read the last part of that sentence an involuntary "you're telling them!" emitted from us. But what the professor means is that Nova has progressed to a point, in the cosmic and balance trade, where he is far ahead of his white contemporaries.

"Joe Louis can be beaten by making his most dangerous punch a liability," Professor Brown announces that he announced at the Museum of Science and Industry in response to what he termed inquiries.

A Revelation by the Good Prof

"But," he adds, with a caution perhaps born the night when Louis hit Nova so hard that it shook Ronald Colman out of the last reel of "Lost Horizon," it is a very special task to develop the proper parrying defense.

"When Nova met me last June," continues Professor Brown in his mimeographed copy of his astral reply to an ephemeral inquiry, "I told him that one thing outweighed all else." Lest Nova think he meant either Abe Simon or Buddy Baer, the professor quickly added, "you must learn to stop the one punch Joe Louis has used to finish all his foes."

We would have liked to have witnessed that historic scene. We can see the slow illumination of Nova's broad, honest face, when this deathless pronouncement took effect on his mind. We can hear him say, "Gad, man, why has no one ever thought of that before!" and we wish we might have seen the jubilation which unquestionably followed when the professor, whose cosmic students up to that point had been three portrait painters, revealed this ingenious way to beat Louis.

"This punch is doubly dangerous because it can be repeated rapidly with either arm and because it carries such great force," the professor further explained to the amazed disciple at his feet, both of them unaware that the shade of Calvin Coolidge was made to wince with envy at those words. "I advised Lou not to try to block this punch with gloves or elbows."

It will be remembered by those who bet on him that Lou followed the master's advice faithfully and blocked the punches with his chin.

Highland Ace Gets Blue in OpenHunters

Pappy, Sky's Double Also Score; Demas Takes Heavyweight Hunters Class

By Anne Hagner

Post Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 5.—Snagging an important piece of every hunter class on the card, horses from the District and Virginia cut a wide swathe in honor winning in the National Horse Show's brilliant opening performance in Madison Square Garden today.

Three Southern-owned entries earner major awards as Springsbury Farm's Highland Ace was awarded the blue in the first class of the day, for lightweight open hunters under saddle. Mrs. E. Douglas Prime's Pappy won the lightweight green hunters and placed second to a dark horse, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Faugh, jr.'s Sky's Double, among the 3-year-old suitables, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Vogel, jr.'s imported Demas took the middle and heavyweight hunters over Mrs. M. E. (Liz) Whitney's The Bear.

Important Victory

The victory is an important one for Demas and almost equally so for The Bear because it gives the two horses 5 to 3 points respectively toward the Hunter Championship.

Mrs. Vogel is the former Peggy Townsend, and, like her husband, is widely known in Washington although their show string spends most of its time competing in the New York area.

Highland Ace's blue ribbon carried special significance because it marked the Garden debut of Sue Bolling, who has been riding Mr. and Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh's mounts for several seasons but has never appeared in the National because Springbury entries have been absent for the past three years.

Pappy, highly touted in the North because of his Virginia 3-year-old championship at Warrenton, was expected to win the lead in class of his division easily until Sky's Double, a Geneseo Valley, N. Y., youngster, upset the dope.

However, the Faugh colt was not entered in the lightweight event over fences and Pappy won the top award after a smooth round with Alex Calvert up. Second was Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hale's Uncle Whiskers, who has won a great deal all over the East this season. Another Virginia hope, Eileen Brent's Ramos from Richmond, was third.

In addition to hunter honors, Southerners likewise made a good accounting in the lone open jumping class of the early session as both Springsbury's Billy Do and Eleanor Moffett's Candolette qualified in the elimination of the difficult handy jumpers outing. Finals will be held Sunday.

Ethel D. Spectacular

Feature of the colorful evening performance, before 10,000 fans, was a spectacular round turned in by the United States Army's representative Ethel D. in the competition for the coveted Bowman Challenge Trophy. With Capt. Franklin Wing up, the quiet-mannered chestnut mare zipped around turns on her haunches to cut seconds off her time and complete the course in 32.6 seconds, three full seconds faster than her closest rival.

The course necessitated one par-

Durocher Balks At N. Y. Uniform

Hollywood, Nov. 5 (AP).—Leo Durocher, of Brooklyn fame, joined the growing ranks of baseball heroes who may—or may not—play a part in the forthcoming motion picture based on the life of Lou Gehrig.

Durocher was given a screen test today for a possible bit in the picture, but he balked at wearing a New York Yankee uniform which the studio had fitted for him.

The usually talkative manager of the "Bums" had no wisecracks for the assembled cameramen, but the general impression was that he'd seen more than enough of the Yankee uniform in the recent World Series.

Whirlaway Eyes Statue of Rival in Money Winning

They took Whirlaway for a walk around Santa Anita Park yesterday—a walk that carried him past the bronze statue of Seabiscuit, and the Calumet colt seemed to sense the drama of this unusual meeting with a life likeness of the horse whose money-winning title he is trying to take away. Whirlaway needs to win $88,070 to beat Seabiscuit's all-time mark of $437,730. Riding Whirlaway is his exercise boy, "Pinky" Browne, and on the white lead pony is Trainer Ben Jones

Texas U. Fans Boom Four as All-Americans

By the Associated Press

Austin, Tex., Nov. 5.—Having the No. 1 team of the Nation gives considerable leeway for boasting by University of Texas football followers.

Now they're claiming four All-America berths for the Longhorn squad. They say these deserve All-America mention:

Jack Crain — Most phenomenal broken field runner in the Southwest if not in the Nation; field general extraordinary, top-notch quick-kicker and fine pass hurler and receiver.

Malcolm Kutner—Crack right end who snags aerials and runs with speed to burn; deadly tackler and blocker and a terror on rushing passers or kickers.

Pete Layden—Half of the Crain-Layden duo; powerhouse line-smasher and ball-lugger; one of the Southwest's best triple-threat fullbacks and no slouch as a broken field artist himself.

Chal Daniel—Dynamic right guard whose all-round finesse and execution are so effective they're unspectacular; big, agile and speedy, he leads the interference, blocks with lethal efficiency, never gets trapped, charges passers and kickers aggressively.

Stumpy, 170-pound, 5-foot-7-inch Crain, the Southwest Conference's leading point-getter with 66, continues to amaze experts with his uncanny ability to outmaneuver would-be tacklers.

Six-feet-two and weighing 190 pounds, Kutner is one of the fastest ends ever to perform for Texas and not only catches passes from all angles but gets loose and runs to touchdowns.

A tremendously fast starter, Layden, 5-feet-11 at 185 pounds, takes advantage of many a momentary opening and shoots at cannonball speed through the line and secondary.

Six feet tall and 200 pounds of dynamite, Daniel leads the interference on offense. After carrying out his original assignment, he bounces up and frequently blocks out another opponent before the play ends.

The fans admit it's difficult to select standouts on a team so smoothly coordinated as the versatile Longhorns. So possibly they have overlooked two or three other prospective All-Americas.

Weather Big Factor In Navy-Irish Game

Middies Would Not Object to Rain; Drills On Pass Defense

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 5—The weatherman's preparing to call his shops for aturday's Navy-Notre Dame gridiron brawl—and both the fighting Irish and the Middies have their fingers crossed.

They figure the outcome of that ball game—one of the Nation's most important—depends a lot on playing conditions at Baltimore's Municipal Stadium.

Unbeaten Notre Dame, fearing Navy's pile-driving ground attack, is hoping for clear weather and a fast field. The unconquered Middies, worried about the South Benders' aerial bombardment, would welcome rain.

Middies on Parade

But the weatherman just isn't dropping any hints. They'll have to wait for his final decision, and those 60,000 fans who're lucky to hold tickets for the colorful, annual fued, are plenty interested in the weather, too.

They want to see a bang-up game but they're also counting on witnessing the parade of 3,110 midshipmen—the largest regiment in academy history—45 minutes before the kickoff at 2 p. m.

Among those who will see the clash are James Forrestal, Undersecretary of the Navy; Ralph A. Bard and A. L. Gates, Assistant Secretaries of the Navy; Admiral H. R. Stark, chief of naval operations; Rear Admiral C. W. Minitz, chief of the Bureau of Navigation; Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the Marine Corps.

Governor to Attend

Maj. Gen. H. C. Pratt, Third Corps Area commanding officer; Rear Admiral Russell Willson, Naval Academy superintendent; Capt. M. S. Tisdale, commandant of midshipmen; Gov. O'Conor, Mayor Howard S. Jackson, of Baltimore, and other State officials.

At its light practice today, Navy concentrated on pass defense to stop the sling-shot tosses of Notre Dame's ace twirler, Sophomore Angelo Bertelli.

Leahy Team Differs From Past Elevens; No Triple Threats

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 5.—On at least two counts it is a peculiar Notre Dame team which Coach Frank Leahy will send against the Navy in the week's outstanding football game at Baltimore Saturday.

It differs from past Notre Dame outfits in that Leahy has broken away from the two-team system which the Irish first made popular. It differs from almost any team you can mention in that it has no triple-threat back, and in that each of the four starting backs is a specialist.

On a wet field against the Army last Saturday Leahy used 12 substitutes, but at only one point did he employ what might, by a stretch of the imagination, be called mass substitution. That came midway of the third quarter, when a 15-yard punt return by Steve Juzwick had given the Irish the ball at midfield. Leahy threw in a complete new backfield, which went 25 yards in five plays before Cadet Johnny Roberts threw an Irish fourth-down run for a loss.

All Are Specialists

As to the backfield specialists, they break down this way:

The quarterbacks are blockers and play-callers, pure and simple; Angelo Bertelli, the sophomore passing specialist, is only a passer, for against Army he carried the ball only two or three times and got nowhere; Steve Juzwik is a "program" halfback who is used into the middle of the line as much as on sweeps, and also is an important pass receiver "Dippy" Evans, the slim-jim fullback, has to knife rather than plunge when he goes into the line, but is fast and shifty and also does a better-than-average job of punting.

The Army game, played on a slick, treacherous field, gave Bertelli little chance to show his passing skill. It did, however, show that Bertelli's protection on pass plays, which in advance was rated something superfine, can be cracked. He was rushed and his receivers covered most of the time, and on one play he was spilled for a 10-yard loss before he could get the ball away.

Navy Line Stronger

Army's line is a sound unit. But it isn't so big as and doesn't have the reputation of the two sets of forwards Maj. Swede Larson has put together at Annapolis. And while Notre Dame held Army scoreless, the Soldiers aren't supposed to pack half the punch contained in a Navy attack, which has carried the Sailors successfully past William and Mary, West Virginia, Lafayette, Cornell and Penn and has been stopped only by an inspired Harvard defense.

Jack Cuddy's Grid Choices This Week

By Jack Cuddy.

United Press Sports Writer.

New York, Nov. 5.—Picking the football winners, we hope:

EAST

Notre Dame over Navy—On speed and passing.

Army over Harvard—Cadets improving every week.

Pennsylvania over Columbia—Slightly more power.

Brown over Holy Cross—Bruins are coming on!

Also Syracuse over Penn State, Dartmouth over Princeton, Temple over Villanova, Fordham over Pittsburgh, Cornell over Yale, Manhattan over Boston U., Boston College over Wake Forest, Missouri over New York U., Georgetown over Maryland, and West Virginia over Kansas.

MIDWEST

Ohio State over Wisconsin—More manpower.

Detroit over Marquette—But anything can happen here.

South Carolina over Kansas State—Staters back in losing column.

SOUTH

Mississippi State over Auburn—More punch.

Mississippi over Louisiana State—Rebels are rolling now.

Also Georgia over Florida, Duke

Army Works In Secret for Harvard Game

By the Associated Press

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Army's football squad drilled behind locked gates today in preparation for the game with Harvard Saturday. Jere Maupin, triple-threat wingback, remained on the disabled list and Sophomore Ralph Hill appeared to be a definite starter.

DARTMOUTH DRILLS

Hanover, N. H.—The Dartmouth Indians scored almost at will against the freshmen today in their most serious practice of the week for Saturday's game with Princton. Walt Anderson ran at blocking back in place of the injured Johnny Krol.

HARVARD SCRIMMAGES

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard regulars scrimmaged the freshmen for 45 minutes today, with Cleo O'Donnel, a back, and George Hibbard, a tackle, going to the sidelines with injuries. Later the varsity lined up against the scrubs, who demonstrated the Army running and passing attack in a dummy scrimmage.

TICE CALLS SIGNALS

Syracuse, N. Y.—Ray Tice called signals for the Syracuse varsity eleven today in place of sophomore Ed Fox, who is injured. Fox was expected to be ready for Saturday's tilt with Penn State at State College, Pa.

RAMS LEAVE TODAY

New York—Coach Jim Crowley sent his Fordham gridders through a long workout today, but still was undecided about his starting quarterback for the game at Pitt Saturday. Claude Pieculewicz replaced Jim Noble in the starting line-up against Purdue and may be at the quarterback post at the opening kickoff again Saturday. The 33-man Fordham squad will leave at 10:30 p. m. tomorrow and arrive in Pittsburgh early Friday.

STRESS AIR DEFENSE

New York—Columbia held its first football scrimmage of the week today, with Coach Lou Little stressing aerial defense for Saturday's important Ivy League struggle with Penn.

Late Goal Helps Hershey Six Tie Springfield, 3-3

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 5 (AP)—The Hershey Bears gained a 3 to 3 tie with Springfield in an American Hockey League match tonight on Left Wing Red Hamill's goal in the final 65 seconds.

Springfield nursed its one-goal margin from midway in the second period until 18:55 minutes of the third when Hamill, camping in front of the Indians' net, took a pass and hooked the puck into the mesh.

Door Closed On Proposed Coast Game

Secretary Knox Lists Reasons in Letter to Myers, Legion Official

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Nov. 5.—Navy Secretary Knox, in a letter made public today, closed the door on one proposed postseason football game for the United States Naval Academy, but whether the decision might be reconsidered if a Rose Bowl invitation were extended remains to be seen.

Harry Myers, American Legion official, originally wrote the Secretary and asked if Navy could be obtained for a proposed postseason engagement with a service team here.

The Secretary's reply, turned over to the Los Angeles Times by Myers, said:

. . . I have taken up with the superintendent of the Naval Academy the question of a post-season football game between the Naval Academy and either the champion Army team of California or an All-Star team made up of men from the various camps and have received the following reply which is quoted for your information:

"The final game of the regular varsity football season is scheduled for Nov. 29, 1941, against the United States Military Academy at Philadelphia, Pa. The present midshipmen of the first class (seniors), due to early graduation, will leave the Naval Academy on Dec. 19, 1941, for duty in the Fleet. As there are several members of the first class on the varsity squad, these players would not be able to compete in the proposed game.

"Due to increased academic demands on all Midshipmen in the present emergnecy, any time lost from the classes or drills is a decided handicap.

"In view of the above, it is recommended that the request contained in the basic letter for the United States Naval Academy to compete in a postseason game at Los Angeles not be approved."

Secretary Knox's letter concluded, "due to the situation as presented by the superintendent of the Naval Academy, I regret to state that it is not possible to comply with your request."

Navy has been mentioned prominently as a possible Rose Bowl participant in the annual New Year's Day game at Pasadena.

Army, Navy Cage Game to Honor Inventor Naismith

By the United Press

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 5.—The Naismith memorial committee announced today that the service classic between the basketball teams of the U. S. Military Academy and the U. S. Naval Academy, at West Point on March 7, 1942, has been designated officially as a golden ball game.

This is another in the long list of regularly home games designated by more than 400 teams as a contest to be played as part of the golden jubilee of basketball. The receipts of all golden ball games go to the Naismith Memorial Fund for the purpose of erecting a temple of basketball at Springfield, the birthplace of the sport in 1891.

Forty-two States and Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Canada, Central and South America have filed entries.

Buddy Lewis Passes Physical For Air Corps Appointment

Nats' Infielder Has 10 Solo Hours, Would Fly Instead of March

By the Associated Press

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 5—J. K. (Buddy) Lewis, star third baseman and outfielder of the Washington Senators, passed his physical examination for appointment as an air corps cadet here today.

"I just decided I might as well b- in the air corps as in the infantry," said Lewis, who said he expected to get a call from his Draft Board this month.

"Anyway, I've got about ten solo hours in the air and I like it," Lewis said. "I've got to stand an educational exam in geometry, arithmetic and French.

"If I get by that, then I'll get the appointment."

Lewis' home is in Lowell, N. C. This spring he was granted two draft deferments on the grounds that he was the sole support of his parents. The deferments were until after the American League baseball season was over.

Lewis attended Wake Forest College before entering professional ball with the Chattanooga, Tenn., club of the Southern Association.

Mrs. Weible Nominated for 2d Term as Women's Golf Head

Mrs. Kramer, Letts Again Assistants

Mrs. Freer, Swingle Take New Positions On Executive Body; Election Dec. 4

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The nominating committee of the District Women's Golf Association yesterday cast a unanimous preference for Mrs. Walter L. Weible as president for a second term and included as vice presidents Mrs. Frank H. Kramer and Mrs. F. Dickinson Letts in the slate for another year.

MRS. WEIBLE

The committee, consisting of representatives of 12 of the 13 member clubs (Belle Haven was absent) met at the home of Chairman Mrs. Theodore Peyser and in replacements for the secretary and treasurer positions nominated Mrs. Gorham Freer and Mrs. E. A. Swingle, respectively.

Mrs. Freer, of Washington Golf and Country Club, succeeds Mrs. H. J. Cooper, Kenwood, resigned, and Mrs. Swingle succeeds Mrs. P. J. Winkler, Congressional.

Although additional nominations are permitted before the annual meeting, December 4, at a club to be named, the above nominations will undoubtedly receive a unanimous vote from the floor.

Favorite Ideas

Mrs. Weible will attempt to carry out three of her favorite ideas in the coming year, she said last night, that of getting a local club to make a bid for the Women's National Championship; having all courses remeasured for correct yardage, and installing a handicapping system for better team play with strokes.

Mrs. Weible, of Kenwood; Mrs. Kramer, former tournament chairman from Manor Country Club, and Mrs. Letts, who captained the champion Chevy Chase team in 1940, all served as officers for the first time in 1940. Mrs. Letts is a former Washington Post Cup champion.

Mrs. Weible will hold the first meeting in mid-January, following the annual meeting and election, a fixture on the first Thursday in December.

The nominating committee dispensed with the business at hand in short order without any opposition for the entire slate, Mrs. Peyser announced. Those attending were: Army and Navy, Mrs. W. F. Sadtler; Argyle, Mrs. Ed Widmayer; Beaver Dam, Mrs. Edgar Heimer; Bannockburn, Mrs. Allen Laing; Chevy Chase, Mrs. Landra Platt; Columbia, Mrs. William Hall; Congressional, Mrs. F. G. Awalt; Indian Spring, Mrs. W. F. Patterson; Kenwood, Mrs. J. C. Dale; Manor, Mrs. W. M. Baker; Washington, Mrs. R. E. Hotze, and Woodmont, Mrs. Peyser.

Mrs. Davy Has a 76

Mrs. Myron Davy, the Middle Atlantic and State medal play champion, played one of her finest rounds of the year yesterday at Kenwood, a 76. Mrs. Davy played the out 9 in 36 strokes, one over men's par, and was back in 40 for the 76. Mrs. W. L. Weible and Mrs. J. W. Godfrey were her playing partners.

12 Remain In Post's Chess Tourney

Twelve players now remain of the 100 who entered The Post's Chess Trophy Tournament, and one will emerge the owner of an ivory chess set costing $250. As the Mundelle Memorial play, forming the third in a series of elimination tourneys, nears its end, ten contestants have qualified for play in the fourth series, while two others remain with a chance to qualify.

Mrs. Elizabeth Proudfoot, P. A. Fischer, C. F. Sieweke, S. Naidel, B. Goldberg, A. J. Healey, S. Hordes, I. D. Soelberg, W. H. Nicholas and M. L. Levy qualified in the order named. E. C. Lloyd may do so by defeating N. Weyl and C. W. Tobey, Jr., may qualify by scoring 1½ points in games against P. A. Fischer and M. C. Schwartz, which games will conclude the current series.

Al Jolson Turns Lady Wrestling Fan

4000 See Armstrong Beat Cardoza

Before 4000 rabid scholastic fans, the undefeated Orange and Black Armstrong High School eleven yesterday at Griffith Stadium met the highly favored Cardozo undefeated gridders in the colored city high school championship series, and maintained their record of long standing, crushing the opposition, 12-6.

A pass, in the first quarter, Day to Francis, good for 20 yards, advanced Armstrong to the Cardozo 20. The oval was rushed by Day and Ross to the Cardozo 10, where Day took it over. Mason's punt from the end zone was returned by Francis to the Cardozo 10, and a beautiful pass, Day to Kenny Freeman, was good for the touchdown.

In the second period Cardozo evened matters. Day's long pass was intercepted by Calvin Harris, and run back to the Armstrong 32. "Windy" Wallace stepped back from this stripe and heaved a desperate pass to "Lanky" Scott, in the end zone for 6 points. The half ended with honors even.

Wallace, late in the third quarter, punted to Day, who ran the punt back 20 yards to the Cardozo 43. A nifty pass, Day to King, advanced Armstrong to the Cardozo 26, and Day repeated the pass, King being stopped on the Cardozo 11. A third pass, Day to "Clod" Ross, was good for the winning touchdown.

The victory made Armstrong the favorite for the Armistice Day game, to be played with Dunbar at the stadium at 1:30 o'clock. Dunbar will have to be conquered if the colored interscholastic city championship is to be settled at that time.

Former G. W. Cage Star at Camp Croft

Spartanburg, S. C., Nov. 5.—It's Private Lou Veltri now and he's stationed here at Camp Croft. Veltri, who was quite a star with the George Washington University basketball team, was one of the first players to answer the call for candidates for the Croft post team.

The entire personnel of the Crusader basketball team will be made up of former college stars, with a quartet of them representing four different New York City colleges. Dutch Newman is out of Long Island University, Bob Richmond came here from Columbia University, Jack Pincus hails from Brooklyn College, while Angelo Monnite was captain of City College of New York last year.

Minnesota Society To Hold Party

The District fans of Minnesota and Nebraska will be guests at a party sponsored by the Minnesota State Society Saturday at Hotel 2400. The festivities will get underway at 2 p. m. with the broadcast of the Minnesota-Nebraska game following at 2:30. Dancing will conclude the afternoon's entertainment.

Mildred Burke To Wrestle Carole Starr

Mildred Burke, holder of the feminine lightweight wrestling championship, will make the twelfth defense of her championship locally tonight at Turner's Arena when she faces Carole Starr, of St. Louis, in one of the double wind-up bouts.

A couple of big guns, among the masculine grapplers—Nanjo Singh, the "Cobra Clutch" King, and Paul Boesch, Long Beach, N. Y., Adonis—will share the spotlight in another of the elimination tournament bouts. Tonight's card also marks the return after a four-year absence of the famous West Coast villains, George (K. O.) Koverly, who will engage Fred Chrome, of the Middle West.

Pat Fraley, the Coast champion, victor via disqualification last week over Singh, will meet Gino Garibaldi, topnotch Eastern grappler, and Babe Caddock will tackle Manurice LaChappelle.

Is Outweighed

Miss Burke will be considerably outweighed tonight, but hopes to make up in cleverness and wrestling experience what she lacks in poundage. In two local matches Miss Starr has won herself a big following. She defeated Celia Blevins, the Oklahoma Indian, and followed with a victory over Elvira Snodgrass.

Singh has already petitioned Promoter Turner for a referee other than Casey Berger, claiming that the airport guard got the wrong slant on his "Cobra Clutch" last week in the bout with Fraley. Berger claims it was a strangle. Singh says it was the customary cobra.

Boesch, long overdue as a regular headliner, won from Big Jim Henry, The Green Hornet, last week.

First match is at 8:30.

Miss Behan's 398 Tops Pin League

Annetta Behan's 398 set was the outstanding individual score in the Ladies' District Duckpin League last night as her rendezvous teammates posted a 1707 set and won three from Spillway, despite Mabelle Hering's 366.

Lucille Young's 380 was second high as Ice Palace won two from Clarendon while Ruth King posted a 377 for Brookland although Arlington was a two to one victor.

Evelyn Windsor starred with a 362 in Arcadia's odd game triumph over Hi-Skor, despite Lorraine Gulli's 371 for the losers. In other matches Julian Young's 354 led Red Circle over Del Ray, two games to one while Lafayette won over Convention Hall and King Pin over Rosslyn by the same margins.

Little Hoyas' 125-Pounders Defeat Saints

Georgetown Prep's 125-pound gridders took their fourth win in 5 starts as they downed St. Albans lightweights, 14 to 0, on the Garrett Park field yesterday.

After 3 scoreless periods the Very Little Hoyas beat their way through the Saints battlements early in the last quarter for their first score. Jim Wills raced 12 yards over tackle for the touchdown following a 50-yard drive, that featured Wills' deceptive running. Wills plunged for the extra point.

Tommy Harrell ended the scoring when he dived over from the three after putting the ball in scoring position with a 30-yard run. Dave Graham scored the point on a line buck.

Proofroom Pinmen Win in Post League

The Proofroom bowlers captured three games from Street Sales yesterday at Lucky Strike to enter a three-way tie for third place in the Washington Post League.

Ellis' 132-365 led Engravers in taking two games from Replates. Engravers lead the league with 10 won, five lost.

The Mailers with "Kid" Hill rolling 362, took the odd game from Lino, although Lino rolled high game of 571.

Clarendon Bowlers Star In League

The Clarendon boys went to town in the Men's District League last night and garnered all the glory as individuals and as a team. Nick Rinaldi, Clarendon ace, came close to setting a new league record but fell eight pins short of Warren Johnson's mark of a month ago, but he totaled 185 to take second high individual game away from Andy Gleeson by two sticks.

The Clarendon team, with Rinaldi's 185-455, Chick Darr's 374, Gene Hargett's 369, and Lee Marcey's 363, won two games in handy fashion from Brookland. Clarendon totaled 717 for their middle effort and Brookland had 685 in the same game, the latter's high for the year. The boys from Virginia also had a set of 1915 to win all the team laurels for the night.

Drop First Game

The Lucky Strike leaders dropped the first game to the tailenders, Peacock's Bethesdans, in what was a partial upset, at least. Convention Hall, rolling 612-638-634, took three in a row from Astor Clarke's Lafayette team with Tony Santini's 142-409 and Dave Singer's 149-388 leading the way.

The biggest upset of the evening, perhaps, was the whitewashing a fighting Penn team gave to the third-place Georgetown boys. Abe Weinberg's 144-401, Ray Roberts' 141-386 and Pete Wells' 152-375 were the blows Penn needed to win. Monk Walker was high for the losers with 366. Arlington won in easy fashion from Hiser's Bethesda, taking three in a row, with Ollie Pacini's 144-365 high.

Wins Odd Game

Hyattsville won the odd game over Hi-Skor with Warren Johnson's 147-415, Howard Ritchie's 148-376, Harry Hilliard's 142-373 and Wally Burton's 365 the main reasons. Lou Pantos topped the Hi-Skor team with 142-375, with Ed Blakeney's 368 next.

Rosslyn, with Billy Stalcup's 148-395 and Brad Mandley's 147-383 topping them, won a sweep over the Ice Palace on which Dave Williams led with 143-374. Spillway won the odd skirmish over King Pin with Joe Harrison leading the way with 156-396. Sam Shreve was high man for the losers with a 367 set. Fred Murphy led his Arcadians to a two-time win over the Del Ray Cavaliers with Murphy himself leading after a 157 game and 392 set. Buck McDonald's 150-384 and Bert Lynn's 152-383 topped the losers.

Billy Rogell Is Elected To Detroit City Council

Tiger Shortstop Of Former Years Spent Day Hunting

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Nov. 5.—Irrepressible William G. Rogell, former shortstop of the Detroit Tigers and an amateur fireman of such renown that his fans call him "Chief," had no public comment today upon his election to the city council, august governing body of the Nation's fourth largest community.

If that seems strange, consider the circumstances:

Billy, not yet enough of an elder statesman to stick around for the votes to be counted, waited just long enough for the polls to open so he could cast his own ballot yesterday. Then he struck out for the hinterland and a bit of pheasant hunting. He hasn't been home since.

Maybe the 36-year-old former slugger whose proudest boast used to be that he "showed Babe Ruth up in his own back yard" by garnering ten hits—including three homers, two triples and a couple of two-baggers—in 17 appearances at the plate in a five-game series with the Yanks in 1932, is studying up on his political science.

Willing to Learn

When he announced his candidacy he admitted freely that he was a "green pea"—knew nothing about affairs of government.

"But I can learn if I'm elected," he would add quickly. "I didn't know much about baseball when I started playing, either, and I got to be a big league player. I figure all these fellows in there on the council now had to learn about government, and if they did it I guess I can."

The voters must have had confidence in him, too, or else his platform—parks "for the kids to play in and stay off the street"—and his plans for a baseball school under the auspices of the playground department, in which he and other "old-timers" would teach, appealed.

He placed fifth in a field of 122 in the nonpartisan municipal primary and was third among the nine successful candidates in the runoff election yesterday.

Rogell attributed his success in the primary to the fact that he never ducked a date in the lettuce league. People appreciated his willingness to speak at banquets when other players were too high-hat, he believes, and he made the appearances an occasion for making friends whose votes counted.

BILL ROGELL

Enjoyed Speaking

So Bill, who went to the Boston Red Sox in 1925 from the Mississippi Valley circuit, played with Jersey City and Toronto in the International loop, with the Detroit Tigers from 1935 to 1940, with Chicago's Cubs in 1940 and bowed out of organized baseball this summer as manager of Lancaster, Pa.'s last-place club in the Interstate loop, is in another league.

But a retired athlete in the political league won't be anything new to Detroit or Michigan. Charles E. (Gus) Dorias, University of Detroit football coach, will have to move over to make room for Rogell at the Detroit city council table.

Grimm Declines Post as Manager Of Big League Club

By the Associated Press

Milwaukee, Nov. 5.—William Veeck, Milwaukee Brewer baseball club president, revealed today that Charley Grimm, the team's manager, had been offered a post as manager of a major league club but had turned it down.

Grimm, who owns stock in the Brewers, has signed to return in 1942.

The Brewer president said he had turned down a big league offer for Catcher Charles George. Milwaukee bought George from the Chicago Cubs last September.

Commissioner Landis Released From Hospital

Petoskey, Mich., Nov. 5 (AP).—Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis was discharged today from Little Traverse Hospital, where he was confined nearly a month with bronchial pneumonia, and left immediately for his home in Chicago.

Dr. Dean C. Burns, the attending physician, said Landis was in good physical condition.

Famed English Horse Papyrus Dies in Stall

By the United Press

London, Nov. 5.—Papyrus, winner of the 1923 English Derby and loser to Zev in the richest match on record, was found dead in his stall today at the age of 21.

After his victory at Epsom Downs, Papyrus was taken to the United States where he met the American champion for an $85,000 purse at Belmont Park. Zev, carrying the colors of the Rancocas Stable, breezed to an easy triumph, running the mile and a half in 2:06 3-5 and finishing 5½ lengths ahead of the English horse.

Papyrus was sired by the famous English stallion Tracery and was owned by B. Irish. Steve Donoghue, England's champion jockey for ten straight years, rode Papyrus in most of his races.

Burger's 195 Game Breaks League Mark

Stringing together ten marks in a row—really 11, for he had a double-header in the tenth box, Johnny Burger turned in a Takoma Duckpin League record last night with a 195 single game to set an all-time league record. Burger's game featured three strikes and seven spares and he finished with a 442 set to aid his Raines Plumbers to the odd game over Takoma Transfer. Malvern Dairies won high team game with a 638, as a 1767 count won set honors for Youngblood Hardware.

SOUTHEAST

Bill Harrison, of Brinkley's, with 163-417—the game second high for the season—topped the Southeast League at Queen Pin with his team winning all three tilts from Lank Woodworking despite Gene McClintic's 154 for the losers. Brinkleys also had team highs with 621-1761, the latter also a second high total. Chat's Liquors took the Quality Shop lads for three in a row, with Charley Renwick supplying the fireworks with 136-383 and former Soldier Harry Brown topping the losers with 138-378.

PENN

Dick Bishop, of Coal Commission, with 149 and Dick Morris, of Survey with 149-381 topped the IDRA League at Penn Recreation with the latter team taking all three games from Construction. The Survey boys won the team highs after a 616 game and 1765 set. Wildlife won three from Fisheries and Bituminous Coal whitewashed Miscellaneous. Reclamation No. 1 took a sweep over Reclamation No. 2.

COLUMBIA:

Don Allen's 135 for Air Corps and Ed Fish's 368 set for Mats Collections topped the War Department Engineers Men's League at Columbia with the former taking two over Fortification as the latter scored a sweep over Maintenance. The Searchlights, with high team game of 596, won the odd tilt from Reproduction and Fish's score aided his boys in winning high set with a 1647 total.

MOUNT RAINIER

Miss Mealy's 136 and a 336 set by Miss Frey, her teammate, sparked the Mount Rainier Ladies' League and enabled their Page Hufty Insurance girls to take team highs with a 545 game and 1522 set and all three tilts from Mount Rainier Novelty as well. Eunice's Beauty Salon and Mount Rainier Hardware won three games, respectively, from Beltsville Gardens and the Democrat Club.

When mountains turn into men . . .

It means more than big-scale sculpture. America is eager to show its respect for great character. Throughout our country, you'll find statues and other types of lasting tributes to great leaders who have made us a great nation . . . reminders of American ideals.

People respect character in products, too

When a product has the character people respect, they are quick to adopt it. The makers of Budweiser have always followed one standard—Budweiser must always be utterly distinctive in taste, pure, good and supreme in quality. That's why people everywhere have agreed that Budweiser is "something more than beer." Their demand has made it the biggest-selling beer in history and built the world's largest brewery.

Terps' Claimed Aerial Superiority Over Hoyas Questioned

Percentages For Passing Misleading

More Passes Thrown By Maryland, But Scoring Advantage Is 1 Touchdown

By Jack Munhall

We read by the papers that die-hard Maryland rooters are clinging to the hope that Maryland's superior passing attack will carry it to an upset victory over Georgetown Saturday at Griffith Stadium.

This is most interesting and quite possible. But as of yesterday we were not convinced that Maryland's passing attack is superior to Georgetown's. It is true that the Terps have amassed roughly 770 yards by air in six games while Georgetown has rolled up about 500 in five games.

It is also true, however, that Maryland throwing about one-third more passes than Georgetown, has produced four touchdowns by the air route, while the Hoyas have made three tallies. Proportionately, Maryland's touchdown per pass average is not as high as Georgetown's. Moreover, the Terps have had an extra game in which to score by passing.

Since Maryland and Georgetown have faced opposition of about the same caliber, some significance can be attached to their passing records. But always one must remember that Maryland figures to complete more passes and to gain more ground by passes than does Georgetown. You don't have to search far for the reason. It is simply that Maryland, because it has no running attack to speak of, is forced to attempt more passes.

Throws Short Passes

From what this observer has seen there is one other big factor to be weighed in the comparison of the passing attacks of the two teams. This is that Maryland throws far more short, flat passes than Georgetown, which usually tosses long balls with but one purpose in mind—that the receiver will go all the way.

Many teams, most of your pro clubs included, allow their opponents to complete short, flat passes since it is almost impossible to prevent them. Their strategy is to allow their rivals to complete this kind of a pass, but to smother the receiver so quickly that he is spilled either for a small gain or for a loss.

In comparing the passing personnel of the two teams, Maryland might be given an edge, for it possesses in Mearle DuVall, Jack Wright, Tommy Mont and Jack Brenner four aerial artists who probably are better than any four Georgetown throwers. But it is extremely doubtful if Georgetown would trade either of its passing aces, Ben Bulvin or Ben Reiges, for any two of that Terrapin quartet.

DuVall and Wright, with two touchdown heaves apiece, have been Maryland's most effective passers. But Bulvin has matched this record and Reiges has connected on one scoring pass and had another called back through no fault of his own or his receiver. Against Temple a Reiges-to-Pavich touchdown throw was nullified by alleged holding in the interior Georgetown line.

So, if you're thinking of taking a "flyer" bet on Maryland to beat Georgetown on the supposition that the Terps have a superior passing attack, better stop and reconsider. It is well always to remember that passing percentages are as misleading as first downs.

You are not credited with a first down when you score. Neither are you given points commensurate with the number of passes you complete. The idea of football is to move the ball across your opponents' goal line, and unless your method of attack produces enough touchdowns for you to win, then it can hardly be labeled successful. To date, Maryland in spite of its fine passing percentage has won but two of six games, and it has scored only 43 points, an average of little more than seven per game. There are your significant facts.

How to Skate—Article II

Control of Four 'Edges' Is Indispensable To Mastering the Art of Figure Skating

Inside Forward Circle Should Be Learned First, Says Instructor

1. Lillian Mae Tribby, women's professional skater at Chevy Chase Ice Palace, demonstrates the "right inside forward circle." Here she shows the correct position of the skater at the start.

2. Just after the start the push-off foot is raised to the rear where it becomes the balance foot. Note that the toe of the balance foot points out and backward and that about one-third of the circle has been inscribed.

3. And now the balance foot is brought forward and is just ahead of the skating foot at the halfway mark of the circle. The balance foot continues its forward arc until...

4. With the circle about two-thirds completed the toe of the balance foot is now pointed forward and out. From this position the balance foot is again brought parallel with the skating foot and from this position the start is made on the left circle which is executed the same, except that the direction is reversed. . . .

In mastering the art of skating in any form control of the four "edges" which are first taught in figure skating is essential. The application of the principles involved is necessary for the accomplished speed skater or hockey player as well as for the figure skater. Turns and pivots which would otherwise be awkwardly done are simple when the skater has mastered the edges and uses them in practical skating.

We will begin today with the first figure, the inside forward as skated to a circle or "eight" form pattern. Although this is contrary to the method used by many, teaching figure skating, I suggest beginning with this edge as it is the most natural for a beginner and the easiest to master. Starting with it tends to encourage rather than discourage an unskilled skater who might otherwise feel the task too difficult.

In skating the start is as important as in any other successful program. For that reason let us observe the stance of the skater in the above illustration. The left foot is turned outward, with the inside edge of the blade firmly gripping the ice in readiness for a strong push off.

Called a Print

The left arm or free arm is leading forward from the body with the hand approximately over the line of direction of the figure to be skated. Technically this figure is called a print. The right arm or skating arm and shoulder are pressed backward and slightly outside the print to be skated. This position distributes the weight of the body evenly over the right skate or skating foot.

The skater's head is slightly turned to the left with eyes focused on the line to be skated. In the illustration the skater is facing the beginner in the first or starting picture.

The skater after taking the proper position next draws the right foot back of the left or push-off foot and at approximately the same time sinks on the left knee for a strong push off as the right foot now comes forward and rests on the ice close to the push-off foot and glides off in the direction of progress with a well bent knee.

Bend Knee Slightly

Now the left foot, which has become the balance foot, is held in back of the skating foot for approximately a third of the circle being skated. It is also carried slightly inside the print. The knee should be slightly bent with the toe pointed outward and down with open balance hip. This position is held for about one-third of the circle after which the balance foot is swung forward from the hip socket and passes close to the skating foot.

See SKATE, Page 29, Column 5.

Arnaud, A. U., Back, Gains In Scoring

The District college individual football scoring race changed but little last weekend, as American University's seven points were the only markers credited to a local team.

Russ Arnaud, former Washington-Lee High School star, who got off to a late start because of injuries, moved up into a tie for second place with his touchdown for A. U. against Randolph-Macon. Arnaud now has two touchdowns for 12 points, as have four others. Teammate Merrill Hoover place-kicked the extra point to increase his lead in this department. He now has five.

The lead of Chris Pavich, crack Georgetown end, remained the same. Pavich has four touchdowns, three as the result of passes and the other on a "steal" of ball and a 32-yard touchdown run.

With Maryland's 20-0 defeat by Rutgers, idle Georgetown regained the team lead on percentage. The Hoyas have won two and lost three. The Terps have the same won and lost record, but have been tied once.

G. W. Engages Furman, Hopes For Victory

George Washington will entrain at 11:59 tonight for Greenville, S. C., to meet Furman Saturday in its first daylight game since opening the season with Hampden-Sydney, and the Colonials hope they'll be able to see victory for a change.

Win or lose, however, George Washington will be showing great improvement if it even scores on Furman, a fellow Southern Conference member. It's been five games and 20 quarters since the Colonials have crossed anybody's goal line—even their own—and naturally the boys are wondering what kind of land lies beyond that double white stripe.

This will be the second time in three years that George Washington has gone to Greenville. The last time they went down to play Clemson and returned with a 26-to-0 shiner.

The George Washington squad will be in improved shape for Furman. Trainer George Lentz reports that Back Babe Nugent and Guard Hank Agusiewicz will be ready. The pair played only a few minutes in each of the last three games.

Green Bay Packers Lead In 1st Downs

By International News Service

Chicago, Nov. 5.—An excellent reason for the leadership of the Green Bay Packers in the Western Division of the National Football League was disclosed in statistics of the play to date released by league officials tonight.

The figures showed that Green Bay leads both divisions in the first downs department with a total of 125, with the Chicago Bears and the Cleveland Rams each recording 86.

In the Eastern Division, Brooklyn has accumulated the most first downs—82, with New York in second place with 67, and Washington third with 62.

Only in the matter of touchdowns, which of course are mighty important, are the Bears with their feared T formation superior to the Packers in the Western Division. To date the Chicago wonder team has scored 32 touchdowns. Green Bay is in second place with 20. In the Eastern Division New York leads the touchdown parade with 18. The Washington Redskins are second with 12.

Green Bay completed 108 passes out of 185 attempts and Cleveland second with 89 completions in 200 attempts. Philadelphia led the Eastern Division with 74 completions in 149 tries followed by Brooklyn with 60 completions in 139 tries.

Statistics show that the Washington Redskins, now leading the league's Eastern Division, may yet become the defensive champions of the year despite the fact the Redskins were beaten 73 to 0 by the Chicago Bears just seven games ago. Washington now stands first in the least number of yards surrendered and second in forward-pass defense. Holding the Pittsburgh Steelers to 74 yards last Sunday, the Redskins brought their average yield per game down to 176.1 against 202.8 yards for the Chicago Bears, whom they play November 15 in Chicago.

Although knocked out of the Western Division lead by the Green Bay packers last Sunday, the Chicago Bears remain second in holding down their opponents' yardage and first against forward passes, allowing only 38.1 per cent completions in six games. Washington's 6-game average is 40.1 per cent.

Kimbrough Undergoes Minor Operation

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Fullback John Kimbrough, of New York's professional football Americans, underwent a minor operation for the removal of a blood clot on his hip in the office of Dr. David Weeks here today. The clot formed after the former All-America star from Texas A. and M. was injured in last Sunday's game with the Milwaukee Chiefs.

Mosconi Assured Tie for Billiard Title

Philadelphia, Nov. 5 (AP).—Defending Champion Willie Mosconi, of Philadelphia, assured himself of a tie for first place in the 1941 world's pocket billiard championship tourney tonight by decisively beating Ralph Greenleaf, of Chicago, 125 to minus 11 in eight innings. Mosconi had a high run of 113.

Seymour, Zimmerman Face Dodgers Sunday

Redskin Rookies Only Available Subs For Backfield; Ky Aldrich Is O. K.

The Redskins will have strictly rookie substitutes for the starting and second backfields Sunday against the Brooklyn Dodgers, unless a pending deal goes through by noon today.

Still seeking a replacement for Bob Hoffman and Wilbur Moore, both out for the season and for Ed Justice, who is coming along nicely, but will hardly be ready for action against the Dodgers. The Redskin office announced last night it may have a roster addition by the time the morning practice is over.

If not it will be up to the once-tried rookies, Lee Gentry, Ken Dow and Al Kreuger, who first saw action last Sunday against the Pittsburgh Steelers, to fill in unless Coach Ray Flaherty breaks up his two-backfield plan and uses several of the backs more than the usual two periods.

Bob Seymour, the former Oklahoma U. back who is one of the most versatile among the Redskin subs, will probably start in Wilbur Moore's place with Frank Filchock, Dick Todd and Cecil Hare.

In place of Justice in the second and fourth period team it will likely be Roy Zimmerman, like Seymour a second-year man from San Jose State. Zimmerman's mates will be Sammy Baugh, Andy Farkas and Ray Hare. That leaves only Gentry, Dow and Kreuger. The original backfield list of 14 is down to 11 in playing condition.

Ky Aldrich reported yesterday that X-rays proved his hand was not broken and although still a little sore he will be in top shape by Sunday. Bill Young and Justice both gave encouraging performances in the morning workout but with their talents needed even more against succeeding games with the Bears, Giants and Packers it is doubtful if they will be used to risk further injury on Sunday.

The Dodgers heard Scout Johnny Michelosen's report in more detail yesterday and the former Pittsburgh gridder on Jock Sutherland's staff reported the Redskins a vastly improved team over the one which beat the Dodgers, 3-0, in the 96-degree heat here.

Brooklyn stories of Michelosen's report quoted him as saying "We'll have to watch Frank Filchock and Dick Todd, two fine ball carriers and Sammy Baugh's passes as well as ever, but that doesn't show up so much because the end play of the Redskins isn't as strong as it used to be."

The Dodgers are reported to have hit a new high in optimism, but that can be true of both sides for the Redskins know they're up against a tough club, but too, think highly of their chances, although there is no show of overconfidence.

Tom Harmon Enlists as Army Aviation Cadet; Passes Exam

Former Michigan University Football Star Was to Be Drafted Into the Army Nov. 19

By the United Press

Detroit, Nov. 5.—Tom Harmon, former Michigan University All-America halfback, enlisted today as an Army aviation cadet rather than be drafted.

He passed a physical examination at Selfridge Field, Mich., and was accepted as "physically and mentally sound" by the Detroit recruiting station.

Capt. Richard Gillespie, who signed Harmon, said his application would have to be approved by the Chief of the Army Air Corps. If the gridiron star is accepted, he said, he would be assigned to an air school for primary training within four to six weeks.

Harmon was to have been drafted into the Army at Gary, Ind., November 19, and was given until November 8 to enlist.

Taking Lessons

Gillespie disclosed that Harmon first obtained application papers for the Air Corps last May before he registered for the draft. He said Harmon conferred with recruiting officials here from time to time on the possibility of his enlistment and walked in today with the announcement that he was ready to join.

Gillespie said Harmon, who has been working as a sports announcer for a Detroit radio station since graduation last June, would be assigned to the 30-weeks primary, basic and advanced training of Army aviation cadets. He has been taking flying lessons at Wayne County Airport and needs only an hour's flying time to qualify for a civilian's license.

Gillespie quoted Flight Surgeon Capt. Byron Gifford at Selfridge as saying Harmon passed the "best physical of any man I've ever had."

Gillespie said Harmon planned to fly to Hollywood, Calif., tonight to confer with motion picture officials on a film he was scheduled to make.

Night Glow, $37.20 Shot, Takes Lady Baltimore Handicap

Rosetown, Favorite, Disappoints

Washington-Owned Filly Scores Over Pomayya by Head; Dark Discovery 3d

By Walter Haight

Post Staff Writer

Pimlico, Baltimore, Md., Nov. 5.—Night Glow, owned by Gustave Ring, Washington and Baltimore builder, sprang a surprise in the fifth running of the Lady Baltimore Handicap, driving to a head decision over the Brookmeade Stable's Pomayya. Six lengths farther up the stretch came Dark Discovery, owned by John A. Bell, jr., to be third in the field of eight. George D Widener's Rosetown, winner last year, was a disappointment in the role of favorite. She failed to reach contention at any time and was beaten off some nine lengths.

Night Glow set a new record for the stake, winning in 1:44 1-5, only a fifth of a second over the track mark for a mile and a sixteenth, shared by Watch Him, Infantry and Tempestuous. Jockey W. Eads rode the winner and his strategy was a major factor in the victory. When Pomayya moved to his mount entering the stretch, Eads continually threw his whip in the face of the Brookmeade filly and she refused to pass the Ring miss.

Pays $37.20 Mutuel

Night Glow paid a $37.20 mutuel and she added $2,705 to her earnings for this year.

Devil's Girl was first to show in front and opened a good lead in the run to the first turn. There was some crowding at the clubhouse bend with Dark Discovery getting the worst of it. Night Glow was closest to the pace with Pomayya third and Rosetown fourth.

Leaving the backstretch, Devil's Girl began to fade and Night Glow forged to the front. Pomayya, however, came up on the outside. Apprentice Nick Coule tried to rouse Rosetown at this stage but the Jamestown filly failed to respond. In the stretch drive, Pomayya and Night Glow battled along but Eads' whip appeared to scare the Brookmeade miss in the closing stages.

Double Pays $242.20

An odds-on favorite and a long shot were the winners in the key races of the daily double which paid $242.20 to a few scattered betters. The Howe Stable's Cash Basis won the first race carrying a mere $3.50 price tag. Jockey Al Schmidl sent price tag. Match Point, $67.30 for $2 shot, completed the double.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CASH BASIS, $3.50, $2.90, $2.60; DUSTY DUNLIN, $12.20, $5.50; INSCOLIAN, $3.50.

CASH BASIS, in the thick of contention from the start, bulled his way through between DUSTY DUNLIN and INSCOLIAN in the stretch drive and won going away. DUSTY DUNLIN broke in a tangle, got through to take a brief lead and came gamely at the close, but was no match for the winner. INSCOLIAN was rushed to get to the front, was slightly bothered when the winner came through and was tiring at the end. MISTING was hard ridden and had no excuses.

SECOND RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1000. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 1:46½. Off at 1:47½. Winner, Mrs. V. P. Noyes' ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MATCH POINT, $67.30, $21.00, $9.40; CANTERBRUN, $8.80, $6.20; WAR POINT, $5.30.

MATCH POINT was rushed to the front early, was rated while setting the pace, responded when shaken up inside the eighth pole and held on gamely. CANTERBRUN, slow to begin, improved his position gradually on the inside and came with good energy in the closing drive. WAR POINT raced forwardly from the beginning, took command in midstretch, but weakened under punishment. DULIE saved ground, moved up menacingly and then faltered.

Daily Double—CASH BASIS and MATCH POINT Paid $242.20.

THIRD RACE—Two miles. Steeplechase. Purse, $1000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won handily; place same. Went to post at 2:12. Off at 2:12. Winner, R. E. McDevitt's ch. g. †Fell.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RED RAIN, $7.10, $5.70, $4.10; GREENWICH TIME, $5.10, $3.90; PATTY, $4.00.

RED RAIN was allowed to race on his own courage for the mile, moved up gamely when asked, took command when FLYING FALCON fell at the thirteenth and drew far out to win with speed in reserve. GREENWICH TIME was well placed from the start, could not resist the winner, but closed with good energy. PATTY was all over the track early, made a poor landing at the ninth fence and failed to rally.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1000. For 2-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:42. Off at 2:42. Winner, R. M. David, Jr.'s b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAPPY NOTE, $7.30, $4.20, $3.30; CAPT. CAUTION, $5.10, $3.80; ONE LINK, $4.90.

HAPPY NOTE assumed command on the inside in the opening furlong, drew out approaching the stretch, but had to be roused to hold CAPT. CAUTION safe in the final test. CAPT. CAUTION was off slowly, worked his way to contention on the outside and hung after looming menacingly in the stretch run. ONE LINK could not keep up early and closed with good energy. BROTHER DEAR was a keen factor to the stretch and then weakened.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1000. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:13½. Off at 3:13. Winner, H. P. Metcalf's b. f. (2), by Track Call—Sun Elolle. Trained by T. Rodrock. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:12⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STAR COPY, $10.00, $6.10, $3.80; BIG DOINGS, $27.90, $11.90; LAST SOU, $2.90.

STAR COPY, on the first flight from the start, wore down ON THE LEVEL to take command and held sway to the end under strong handling. BIG DOINGS, off slowly, came wide for racing room and closed with a bold rush. LAST SOU was hard handled while close up and weakened at the close. EQUIPET could not keep up early and closed some ground. BOLA MOWLEE was last away and closed willingly.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $2500 added. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. The Lady Baltimore Handicap. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:42½. †Wheatley Stable-Ogden Phipps entry.

NIGHT GLOW, closest to DEVIL'S GIRL'S pace from the start, rallied to take command entering the stretch and withstood challenges of POMAYYA to the end. POMAYYE worked his way to the leaders on the outside and shied repeatedly from Eads' whip in the final sixteenth. DARK DISCOVERY could not keep up early and closed gamely. DEVIL'S GIRL set a strong pace for three-quarters and weakened thereafter.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1200. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:11. Off at 4:11½. Winner, Circle M. Ranch Stable's ch. c. (3), by Man o' War—Beautyshan. Trained by W. T. Anderson. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:43⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BATTLE COLORS, $10.30, $4.80, $3.20; BEST SELLER, $3.30, $2.50; KANSAS, $3.50.

BATTLE COLORS, not hurried in the early stages, came to the outside when asked for speed, caught BEST SELLER entering the stretch, and held on gamely in the final test. BEST SELLER took a good lead early, was rated while setting the pace and came again in the stretch run after being headed. KANSAS and HAPPY PILOT were squeezed back while in close quarters after a half.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1000. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 4:42½. Off at 4:43. Winner, J. Y. Christmas' b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROUGH MAN, $8.40, $4.60, $3.70; LEE'S JIMMIE, $4.00, $3.10; GAY BOO, $12.40.

ROUGH MAN, rated in the first flight from the start, responded gamely when asked, wore down LEE'S JIMMIE to take command and drew out in the final stages. LEE'S JIMMIE set a strong pace, could not stay with the winner, but was best of the others. GAY BOO was sluggish early, gained gradually and showed a good effort.

Alhalon Scores at Rockingham

By the Associated Press

Salem, N. H., Nov. 5.—B. Lewin's Alhalon, carrying top weight in its first trip over the Rockingham Park racing strip, headed a field of six across the wire today in the Hilltop Handicap for 3-year-olds and up.

J. Read's Taking Ways was second and Alvin Untermyer's Cockerel third. The time for the 6 furlongs was 1:12.

Alhalon came from behind at the head of the stretch to overcome Taking Ways and Cockerel which had dominated all the running to that point.

The winner paid $12.20, $5.60 and $3.80; Taking Ways returned $4.20 and $3.40 and Cockerel paid $4. The favorite, Espino Gold, was fourth.

Guy Fawkes and Little Suzanne combined to bring off a daily double of $50.40.

Selections at Pimlico

Dear Al:

One of the most remarkable records in 1941 steeplechasing has been recorded here at Pimlico during the first five racing days of the meeting. Billy Jones, one-time ranking amateur jump rider, now trainer for the Montpelier Stable, owned by Mrs. Marion Du Pont Scott, has saddled the winners of every "hedge hopping" event run so far during the Pimlico autumn season, with the exception of opening day and yesterday when he did not have an entry. Besides winning the Battleship Steeplechase on Monday, with Caddie, this same horse won the second day jumping event for Jones. On the third day of the meeting Billy saddled Rouge Dragon for his victory and then he sent out Jacket, who was returned an easy winner. Don McEachern, who trains the famous distance running geldnig, Shot Put, said this morning that his horse, though coming out of his effort in the Exterminator Handicap slightly sore, is galloping soundly now, and he is very hopeful that he will get him to the post for the mile and five eighths of the $10,000 Governor Bowie Handicap to be run on closing day, November 13. Hank Mills, one-time famous jockey who was seen under silks on many occasions at Old Pimlico, is now a rodeo rider, performed at Madison Square Garden. He recently won the bareback bronc riding contest at the big New York show. Haltal, which suffered an ugly gash over the right eye when his head struck the stall gate at the start of the Riggss Handicap, was considered not in serious danger. John J. Fitzgerald, publicity representative of Tropical Park, was an arrival from New York to renew old acquaintances with the men of the Pimlico press box and his many other freinds among the horsemen. He will remain for the remainder of the Maryland season before departing for Miami. Fitzgerald and Friend Russell Oakes will team on publicity for Tropical. Don't forget the Maryland Racing Writers' Association's frolic tonight at the Lord Baltimore Hotel. The leading jockeys, trainers and turf officials will be there. The public is invited at $5 a throw. See you on the rail—both places.—BILL.

First race—SEAWAY likes the distance and opposition that suits. Should take care of this company and I'm going to string along. TRAFFIC RUSH is said to be a good one and is dangerous. ISLE DE PINE is a possible surprise.

Second race—POST HASTE gets my call in this field of maidens. Has shown enough to suspect a victory over this kind. DAMON is a doubtful starter but will be a keen factor if sent postward. BRIAR GAL and DARTING STAR are possibilities.

Third race—DOROTHY POMP is on the reserve list and is fit as hands make horses. A change in track conditions would enhance her chances. LADY INFINITE and BEAUZAR to take care of the place and show.

Fourth race—BOREALE gets in light and seems to have speed enough to down these sprinters. Needs only the right ride. BLUE TWINK can better that last. HAPPY HOME belongs close in this field.

Fifth race—COLCHIS and JAY JAY are a tight fit in this sprint. The first named gets the best of the weights and deserves the call. ABRASION is improving and will be tough to keep out of the money circle.

Sixth race—RINGIE appears headed for a set of brackets in this distance affair. This one has trained well and I see no reason for mistakes. TRUE CALL and ABBE PIERRE for the place and show awards.

Seventh race—ALADDIN'S DREAM deserves a top rating in this mile and a half test. BETTER HALF and FLYING DUKE figure to be close.

Eighth race—MARY SCHULZ seems headed for the chief money in the day's finale. She is fit and ready for the best. POMIVA and WEATHERITE for the other money positions.

Best bet—Boreale.

Bold Chance Wins Churchill Juvenile Race

By the Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 5—Bold Chance, a long-striding son of Chance Sun and Grey Watch, which races for J. A. Kinard, established himself as one of the ranking 2-year-olds of the current Churchill Downs meeting as he raced to a narrow victory in the Shawnee Park handicap, last of the season's 2-year-old stakes.

Given a well-judged ride by Jockey Bobby Vedder, Bold Chance improved his position steadily on the outside, and taking a clear lead in the stretch drive displayed good courage to hold Poet Laureate safe by a half-length. The latter finished strongly under punishment to beat the favorite, Bolus, by two lengths for the place. The latter was spent running the early pace-maker into the ground.

Bold Chance, second choice in the wagering, paid $8.80 for $2. His time for the seven furlongs was 1:25 4-5.

American U., Columbus Are Intracity Rivals; Carmen Pirro to Coach Cards

Football-less Catholic University pops back into the sports news today with announcement of a 19-game basketball schedule for 1941-1942, featured by contests with Navy, Loyola of Baltimore and American University.

The Cardinals, under the first-time coaching of Carmen Pirro, a 1940 graduate, will open their campaign December 8 against Mount St. Mary's, of Emmitsburg, Md., and play four games before the Christmas holidays. Navy will be met January 7 at Annapolis to launch the second half of C. U.'s schedule.

A secondary feature of the Cards' schedule will be a game with Columbus University, the local law school which is widely known in boxing but practically unknown on the court.

Coach Pirro will build his C. U. team around three senior lettermen, Capt. Mike Cherello, Bill Mulvey and Joe LeMarca. Bob Kelcher, a reserve forward last year, is the only other returning senior. There is, however, some promising sophomore material, including Fred Rice, jr., son of one of C. U.'s most successful basketball coaches; Archie Panago, Joe Corrado and Dick Scanlon. These are considered the most impressive rookies, but there are others, among them Ralph O'Brien, Leo Hooks, Steve Limanek, Jack Baltrukonis, Bill Ryan and C. E. Bartram.

December 8, Mount St. Mary's; 12, Gallaudet (at Tech); 15, Loyola (at Baltimore); 17, Maryland State Teachers.
January 7, Navy (at Annapolis); 10, Bridgewater (at Bridgewater); 12, Mount St. Mary's (at Emmitsburg); 15, Johns Hopkins; 16, Loyola; 21, Western Maryland (at Westminster).
February 4, Washington College; 6, Gallaudet; 10, Maryland State Teachers at Towson; 11, Columbus; 13, American U. (at American); 19, Western Maryland; 25, Washington College (at Chestertown); 26, Bridgewater; 26, American.

Henry Ravenel Wins Siamese Cup At Chevy Chase

Henry Ravenel won the Siamese Cup yesterday at Chevy Chase with at 2 and 1 victory over Club Champion Reeve Lewis in the title round of the handicap match play affair.

The Liberty Cup, now in the semi-final round, is the last remaining event on the tournament calendar at the club.

Professional Bob Barnett plans to leave November 19 for his winter position at the Indian Creek Club, just outside Miami, Florida. Carroll Boggs, pro at the Cumberland, Md., club, will go with Barnett as an assistant with possibly one other pro from this section. Boyd Jaeger will remain at Chevy Chase with Bill Hardy.

Michigan State Play Cougars Next Season

By the Associated Press

East Lansing, Nov. 5.—Athletic Director Ralph H. Young today announced an eight-game schedule for the Michigan State College football team in 1942.

Washington State was listed as a new opponent, while two teams faced this season by the Spartans, Missouri and Ohio Wesleyan, will be missing next year.

The schedule includes five home games against Wayne, Marquette, Santa Clara, Purdue and West Virginia, while the University of Michigan, Temple and Washington State College will be played away from home.

Young said the Washington State game, to be played November 7 at Pullman, Wash., would open a three-year series with the Cougars. It marked another step, he said, in arranging a Spartan schedule featuring land grant college foes.

It previously was announced that Penn State and Iowa State, also land grant schools, will be added to the Spartan schedule in 1943.

Young said Missouri, which defeated Michigan State, 19 to 0, last Saturday, would appear on the 1944 schedule.

The 1942 schedule: October 3, Michigan; 10, Wayne; 17, Marquette; 24, Santa Clara; 31, Temple; November 7, Washington State; 14, Purdue; 21, West Virginia.

Contract Not Honored, Says Turner

Commission to Act At Next Meeting; Originally Listed To Fight Sept. 10

Promoter Joe Turner and Matchmaker Gabe Menendez have asked the District Boxing Commission to suspend Harry Bobo, Pittsburgh heavyweight, and Lee Savold, Des Moines heavyweight, for what they term as failure to honor a contract on file with the commission, it was announced yesterday by the local body.

Bobo and Savold were originally scheduled to meet in a 10-round fight at Griffith Stadium September 10, but an injury to Savold caused a postponement. Another injury, this time to Bobo, caused a second postponement. Two weeks ago Turner announced that the fight would be shifted to Riverside Stadium on November 10.

According to Turner and Menendez, Bobo does not intend to fulfill the terms of a contract which is on file at the Boxing Commission offices for him to box Savold. The contract calls for a September 10 date at the ball park.

Manager Gets Letter

The secretary of the commission announced last night that a letter has been sent to Eddie Kapphan, manager of Bobo, requesting him to "put in writing the reasons why this commission should not suspend him in Washington and all States affiliated with the National Boxing Association."

A letter will also be sent to Bill Daly, manager of Savold, on the matter. A ruling on Turner's request for a suspension is expected to be made at the next meeting of the commission.

Turner's next fistic promotion pits Phil Furr, Northeast welterweight, against Wickey Harkins, of Philadelphia, in a 10-rounder at the W Street arena Monday night.

Two preliminary bouts have been signed. In a six-rounder, Ray Landis, protege of Furr, will engage Freddie Fernando, of New York. Horace Jones and Jimmy Hill, both local Negroes, will meet in a four-rounder.

Local Horses Win in Garden

ticularly sharp turn as mounts came down the center of the ring over four consecutive fences and Wing, in his effort to account for spare seconds, made it so suddenly that Ethel D almost fell. She recovered quickly, however, and in two strides was ready for the difficult quadruple in-and-out, which she cleared with apparent ease.

Ten horses of the 38 entered managed to have clean scores but final awards went to Lieut. Col. L. A. Milne's Olympic Don, ridden by Maj. John L. Hines, jr., of West Point, with 35 points.

Wing rode Democrat, another Fort Riley mount to third place with 35.2 second over the Peruvians' Rimac, with 36, and Maj. Charles B. McClelland's Smacko, now being loaned to the United States team while his owner is on maneuvers in South Carolina. With Maj. Henri Luebbermann aboard, Smacko placed fifth after an excellent round.

First in the series of daily knock-down-and-out jumping events wound up with a prolonged thrill for many old Dominion District and Maryland fans that crowded the ringside as Lieut. and Mrs. Fred J. Hughes, jr.'s Hi-Ho was among 14 clean jumpers, numbering among them topflight open mounts of the entire country.

Leaping in typically high flown fashion, Hi-Ho likewise survived the second jumpoff and was going in great style in the final elimination when she knocked down the fourth fence, a big, white single pole. Immediately afterward Mr. and Mrs. Faugh, jr.'s big brown gelding, Judge, was able to get over the fourth and automatically was named winner.

Mrs. Hughes, tied with F. E. McBride's Grand Larceny for second place, decided not to tax her great-hearted little mare any further and flipped a coin for the ribbon, winding up third. Mrs. Elizabeth Correll's Lew Dunbar was fourth.

Baptie Gives More Skating Tips

SKATE, from Page 27.

With the balance foot now parallel with the skating foot at this position of the circle (approximately the middle of the circle), the balance foot continues forward and the toe is again pointed outward and carried inside the line of progress.

Now while the balance foot has been moving forward, the free arm "left" should be well drawn backward but not quite as fast as the balance foot moves forward. The right arm and shoulder are slowly brought forward so that the right arm will be leading the body at the finish in readiness for the start of the next cricle of the left foot, which has now been brought back of the skating foot "right" in readiness for a stride forward for the left inner edge.

The left foot should now be placed close to the right foot for the take-off as the right foot makes a decided turn outward for the push-off. The left circle is then skated in the same way that the right one was, the directions merely changing as to leg and arm positions.

Throughout the whole circle one's back must be well arched to help insure an upright position of the body. The head should also be held upright.

Loan League Names Heads Of Committees

Wilfred H. Blanz, president of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League, has named Edward C. Baltz, secretary of the Perpetual Building Association, as chairman of the committee on relations with the Treasury Department and the Federal Home Loan Bank. Serving with Mr. Baltz are Carl J. Bergmann and Robert E. Buckley.

Other committee appointments announced by President Blanz are:

Law, legislation and taxation committee — C. Clinton James, chairman; Chapin B. Bauman, Arthur G. Bishop and John J. Carmody.

Uniform practice—Clarence E. Kefauver, chairman; William H. Dyer and R. Edward Early.

Entertainment—Martin A. Cook, chairman; Rudolph W. Santelman, J. Hawley Smith and Elmer J. Carlson.

Publicity and advertising—Edward L. McAleer, chairman; R. E. Hotze and E. K. Jones.

The league's executive council has recommended the nomination of Carl J. Bergmann to succeed himself as a director of the United States Building and Loan League.

The Washington delegation to the annual conclave of the building and loan groups at Miami, Fla., December 1-4 will include President Blanz, Martin A. Cook, secretary Enterprise Building Association; Edward A. McAleer, secretary of the Equitable Cooperative, and F. Willson Camp, secretary of District Building. Alternates are Rudolph W. Santelmann, secretary Metropolis Building Association; William H. Dyer, assistant secretary of Perpetual Building and Edward K. Jones, secretary of Intersate.

Most of the Washington men will leave the city November 29 with a majority being accompanied by their wives.

Equitable Assets Gain

Shareholders of the Equitable Cooperative Building Association met yesterday for the annual election of officers and directors and to review the results of the sixty-second year of operation. The report of W. S. Pratt, jr., president, revealed that assets increased over $375,000 during the year, rising to a new high of $8,754,843.

Officers reelected were Mr. Pratt, president; Harry G. Meem, vice president; Edward L. McAleer, secretary, and J. Harold McDowell, assistant secretary. Directors reelected were Ralph P. Barnard, Charles H. Doing, Arthur B. Heaton, Robert L. Lewis, Edward L. McAleer, Harry G. Meem, Theodore W. Noyes, Arthur Peter, Walter S. Pratt, jr., Frank J. Stryker, Wilson L. Townsend, Dr. William Charles White.

Delay Is Foreseen In Proposed Steel Allocation Plan

Cleveland, Nov. 5 (AP).—It probably will be some time before the proposed steel allocations system is worked out and approved by the Supply Priorities and Allocation Board because of complications in details, Daily Metal Trade says today.

"Several key men in the OPM steel section are working on the plan but their names are not being disclosed to the public," the trade publication says. "Also it is reported several of the various OPM sections are anxious to have a 'hand in the pie' inasmuch as it will affect not only defense organization but the general public as well.

"Consquently, it is probable that before the plan is completed all of the OPM higher-ups will have had a chance to make suggestions."

$1 Dividend Voted By Westinghouse

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Directors of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., today declared a dividend of $1 a common share, bringing 1941 payments to $4 compared with $4.75 during all of 1940.

The divendend on common, and one of $1 a share on preferred stock, will be paid on December 5 to stockholders of record November 18.

A. W. Robertson, chairman, told directors that of 534,426 additional common shares offered October 15 to stockholders, 5006,223 had been subscribed and the remaining 28,2003 purchased by underwriters. He estimated receipts from the transaction at $36,658,833.

Robertson said the compnay was preparing for an issue of 20 million dollars in debentures, part of a general financing plan now in progress. The plan was approved October 29 by stockholders who authorized increasing company indebtedness to 50 million dollars at any one time.

Farm Cash Income Placed at 11.2 Billion

By the Associated Press

The Agriculture Department estimated yesterday farmers would receive this year a total cash income of $11,200,000,000, including Government benefit payments, compared with $9,120,000,000 in 1940.

The department had previously forecast the 1941 income at "nearly" 11 billion dollars. The new estimate would be about 400 million dollars above the average for the 1924-1929 period, but about 100 million dollars less than in 1929. An income of 13 billion dollars was forecast for 1942.

Southeast Power Shortage Faces House Inquiry

With evidence before it that fuel shortages in New England have been remedied and that from a transportation standpoint there should be no reason for a petroleum shortage, a House subcommittee made plans yesterday to investigate alleged power shortages in the Southeast.

Chairman Hart (Democrat), New Jersey, of the Merchant Marine Subcommittee, said it seemed advisable to inquire into the situation which caused the Federal Power Commission to order curtailment of the use of electricity in the Carolinas, Georgia and other Southeastern States, and to see if there was any fuel shortage in the Middle Atlantic States.

Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, advised the committee in a letter that "it would appear that, purely from a transportation standpoint, there should not again be reason for a petroleum shortage." He said he was speaking on present conditions, which could change over night.

Land said that 40 tankers being returned by Great Britain should all be returned by the end of November.

Richard Bowditch, director of solid fuels for the Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety, and Robert J. McKechnie, executive secretary of the same group, testified before the committee that New England now had an ample coal supply. Chairman Hart declared that evidence based on August conditions indicated a threatened shortage in the area, but that now it appeared a nearly normal condition had been achieved.

Oil Shipments by Land Begin to Decline

The Office of Defense Petroleum Coordination reported yesterday a 138 per cent increase between May and September in the movement of crude oil by overland facilities, stimulated by efforts to meet the Eastern supply situation due to diversion of American tanker ships to British service.

However, with the promise by the British to return 40 of the 80 to 100 borrowed tankers by November 30, land shipments including rail movements, have begun to decline, the report said.

Secretary of Interior Ickes, the petroleum coordinator, put an end to gasoline restrictions in the East two weeks ago when stocks climbed above last year and arrangements were made to put the returned tanker ships back into service hauling petroleum from ports near producing areas to the Atlantic Seaboard.

The shipments into the 17 seaboard States by pipe line, barge, tank car and tank truck mounted from 1,220,000 barrels in May to 2,917,000 barrels in September, the report said.

Indicative of the decline in overland movement, following arrangements for the return of tankers, the report said 4406 tank cars loaded with oil moved into the East during the week ended October 25 compared with 4396 cars during the previous week.

Church Tickets Ruled Exempt From U. S. Tax

The Treasury ruled yesterday that tickets of admission or other costs of attending religious services are exempt from the Federal admissions tax.

The new tax law which became effective October 1 removed the former exemption on admissions to functions sponsored by religious and educational organizations.

In its ruling yesterday, Treasury indicated that the new law means that church socials or bazaars or other similar functions are subject to the tax, but not religious services.

Price Ceiling Asked on Copper Wire and Cable

Price Administrator Leon Henderson yesterday asked manufacturers of copper wire and cable used as a conductor of electricity to hold their prices down to the October 15 level.

The action was the first of an expected series of price moves in Henderson's recently announced program to stabilize prices on all products made of copper, brass or copper alloys. Heavy defense demands for copper and a resultant serious shortage made the program necessary, Henderson said.

The administrator's letter to manufacturers called attention to the recent conservation order of the Office of Production Management which sharply restricts the use of copper but excepts copper and copper alloys in articles such as electricity conductors.

"We would hope," the letter said, "that the restriction of civilian demand and the assurance of copper supplies for your industries may bring about a situation that will permit somewhat lower prices."

Henderson said the Office of Price Administration would call a meeting soon of members of the copper wire and cable industry to discuss cost and price trends. Some types of copper wire and cable now are selling from 20 to 30 per cent above the level of 1939.

Rails Declared Past Critical Point This Year

The Commerce Department said yesterday that the Nation has passed the critical point in transportation this year.

A department statement noted that weekly carloadings of railroads have been declining slightly since October 18, and predicted that available transportation facilities would be adequate for the remainder of the season.

"The margin between rail capacity and the current traffic volume," the department added, however, "continues definitely narrow. In this connection it is significant to note that while only a minor increase in traffic occurred between the middle of July and the middle of October, the number of available freight cars was cut almost in half, or to a total of about 40,000 cars of all types. The outstanding decline was concentrated in the northern fork of the country, notably in the heavy traffic regions embraced by the Allegheny and Pocohontas districts."

The department said cooperation of shippers in loading cars "more heavily and promptly" has been an imortant factor in helping the railroads get past the peak traffic with available facilities.

Because of the difficulty of constructing additional cars and other railroad equipment, however, the department said "a further search for improved equipment appears indicated."

Some defense officials have been worrying about a bottleneck in transportation ever since the defense program began, but the department statement said that this had been avoided for this year.

Registration Rule Defended By SEC Aide

By the Associated Press

Ganson Purcell, Securities Commission member, sharply disagreed yesterday with statements that issuers of new securities were turning to private sales to save time and money spent by adherence to the registration process under the Securities Act of 1933.

He discussed the subject before the House Interstate Commerce Committee after Representative Wadsworth (Republican), of New York, a committeeman, had said that the "burden of registering has become so great" that the trend has been growing toward private sales.

Purcell said the Commission's rules were not responsible for a trend toward private financing.

Large Saving Alleged

Wadsworth cited as an example 39 new issues, apparently for refunding purposes, of subsidiaries of American Waterworks and Electric Company which cost $1,265,000 to sell privately. He said the company treasurer estimated that the public cost, through the SEC, would have been $2,765,000.

The New Yorker said that the company had made known it turned to private sales because of "large savings in time," monetary economies, relieving its staff of the "burden" of preparing SEC statements and to avoid risk of changing market conditions.

He added that 34 of the 39 issues succeed securities now held by the public and remarked that "the whole thing was put in the banks and insurance companies and the public was out of it."

He explained, too, that with two exceptions — universities — the new issues went to such institutional buyers as banks and insurance companies.

Hits Insurance Firms

Purcell commented:

"I think the insurance companies and banks ought to be a little ashamed of themselves, in the interest of their policy holders and depositors, that they didn't require comparable information to that of our registration statements."

He added that the commission had learned from discussions with issuers that their duties in private and public sales actually were almost "comparable."

Discussing the broad question of simplifying the registration process, the commissioners said both the SEC and the industry sought shorter prospectuses and had agreed that the commission would have the authority to recommend condensation of material usually filed in them. But he added that shorter prospectuses would remain "an ideal" unless the SEC was given permission mandatorily to require such reduction in volume.

And, answering contentions by some Investment Bankers Association spokesmen, Purcell said that actually, the printing cost of preparing registration statements and prospectuses for the commission was not great. He said that of 57 bond issues registered in 1939, the printing and engraving cost averaged less than 12 cents for each $100 bond, while the underwriting costs were about 18 times that total, or $1.97.

He said, too, that since issuers had to do a certain amount of printing before the 1933 and 1934 acts, the total printing cost could not now be attributed to those laws.

U. S. Output Seen 45% Above 1929

Cincinnati, Nov. 5 (AP).—A spokesman for the Office of Production Management declared today that the Nation's production is currently 45 per cent above the peak of 1929.

John H. Martin, assistant director of policies of the OPM's priorities division, told more than 1000 industrialists:

"We're beginning to get results—2000 airplanes a month, 10 light tanks a day, nearly half that many medium (28-ton) tanks daily and 2,000,000 more workmen employed than in 1940."

The business leaders met at a "priorities clinic," exchanging information with Martin and other OPM officials.

Soybeans Soar 8-Cent Limit, Wheat and Rye Surge 3 Cents

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 5.—A runaway soybean market, with prices soaring 8 cents a bushel the maximum permitted in one session, caused heavy buying of grains today that lifted wheat and rye about 3 cents and corn and oats more than a cent.

Grains also derived support from revival of reports that Russia may be in the market for United States supplies as a result of war developments, but traders attributed most of the buying to hasty covering of previous short sales coupled with execution of stop loss orders when bean prices began to rise. They said a return of wet weather with forecast of continued precipitation in many sections of the belt was the factor most directly responsible for the swift rise of soybeans, prices of which hit the best levels in about a month.

Prices in all pits closed at or near best levels of the day, with wheat 2½-3¼ cents higher than yesterday, December $1.17-$1.16⅞, May $1.22¼-⅛; corn 1¼-1½ up, December 78⅝-½ May 84½-⅝; oats 1½-1⅝ higher; rye 2⅜-3¼ up and soybeans 8 cents higher. Lard, borrowing strength from gains and hogs, closed 10 to 15 cents higher.

While market experts have suspected that Russia may need grain imports as a result of German acquisition of much of the western producing area, reports that acual inquiries about wheat had been made at Washington attracted much attention. There was no definite indication that Russia would buy wheat or rye, but Government authorities were understood to have given assurances that there was an adequate supply, particularly of wheat. Some traders, however, expressed belief an export subsidy or lend-lease arrangement would be necessary to attract Russian demands.

Sharp Upturn Carries Eggs To 12-Year Top

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Sharp advances in all egg classifications, which sent average prices to the highest level for November since 1929, were recorded in the wholesale market today. Gains ranged from ½ to 2 cents a dozen.

Best eggs were up most with extra firsts at 37½ cents a dozen and firsts at 35 cents. Both grades sold about 15 cents a dozen wholesale above the same time last year.

Traders on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange said seasonally declining recepits, which normally send prices higher in the autumn, were a factor in the advance, although receipts were somewhat larger than yesterday.

Another factor in the upsurge, traders said, was Government buying for export and domestic relief purposes. The Government bought 4000 cases of eggs in North Central States yesterday, the exchange reported, paying as high as 38¾ cents or ½ cent a dozen above the price of late last week.

United Aircraft Creates Reserve For Peacetime

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 5 (AP).—United Aircraft Corporation today reported it had set up from earnings of the first nine months of 1941 a reserve of approximately four million dollars to provide for transformation from defense production to a peacetime economy.

Of this sum, $2,500,000 was charged against earnings in the September quarter.

For the quarter ended September 30 the concern showed consolidated net profit of $5,188,382, equal to $1.95 a capital share, against $2,971,662 or $1.12 a share in the comparable 1940 quarter.

Federal tax provision for the quarter was $19,711,304, compared with $7,993,821 reported for the like 1940 period.

The company's sales and operating revenues for the three-month period amounted to $81,604,988 against $39,805,913 in the 1940 September quarter.

Net profit for the first nine months of 1940 were placed at $10,771,733, equal to $4.05 a share, compared with $10,461,127 or $3.93 a share in the corresponding part of 1940.

Sears' Sales Up 25% in October

Chicago, Nov. 5 (AP).—Sears, Roebuck & Co., mail roder and retail merchandising firm, today reproted October sales of $96,255,634, up 25.1 per cent over $76,919,573 in October last year. For the first nine months of the company's fiscal year, from February through October, sales were $698,053,110, up 31.7 per cent over $530,139,367 in the like 1940 period.

Earnings Reports

North American Co. and subsidiaries reported net income for the third quarter of 1941 was $5,009,124, equal to 47 cents a common share, compared with $3,972,343 or 35 cents a share in the like 1940 quarter. Net income for the 12 months ended September 30, was $20,266,425, equal to $1.92 a common share, compared with $20,881,668 or $1.99 a share in the previous 12 months.

Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., and subsidiaries, for the 40 weeks ended October 4, reported net profit of $3,815,435 after taxes and other charges, equal to $2.22 a share on class "A" and "B" stock. The company had net profit of $3,477,586 or $2.03 a common share in the 39 weeks ended September 28, 1940.

Amerada Corporation and subsidiaries reported net profits for the quarter ended September 30 was $717,625, equal to 91 cents a share, compared with $439,513 or 56 cents a share in the corresponding period of 1940.

McGraw Electric Co. reported net profits for the 12 months ended September 30 of $1,651,475, or $3.49 a share, compared with revised net profit for the preceding 12 months of $1,459,139, or $3.08 a share.

Sunray Oil Corporation and subsidiary reported net profit for the September quarter of $317,758, or 15 cents a common share, compared with $70,782, or 2 cents a share, in the like 1940 period.

American Commercial Alcohol Corporation and wholly owned subsidiaries reported net earnings for the first nine months of 1941 of $467,455, or $1.79 a common share, compared with $108,965, or 42 cents a share, in the like 1940 period.

Gen. Electric Plans New Phenol Plant

Pittsfield, Mass., Nov. 5 (AP).—Plans for the construction of a million-dollar plant for the manufacture of synthetic phenol by the General Electric Co., were announced today by William H. Milton, jr., newly appointed manager of the plastics department.

The action was taken to counteract a shortage of phenol, a principal ingredient in the manufacture of certain types of plastics used by the Government and industry for production of plastic parts.

Operations Set Record

Cleveland, Nov. 5 (AP).—Republic Steel Corporation announces it operated at 107.2 per cent of theoretical capacity in October, establishing new company records in production of both pig iron and steel ingots. Production for the first nine months was at 99.4 per cent.

Stocks Mount; Rail Pay Plan Enlivens Deals

By Bernard S. O'Hara

Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, Nov. 5.—Making bullish capital out of the report of President Roosevelt's fact-finding board on rail wage increase demands, the stock market today registered a moderate advance on expanded dealings.

Broad improvement in share prices was general at the start, but gains reached their peak after the rails took over market leadership in the last hour, just before the board's findings were published.

While many of the pivotal issues finished fractions to a point or more ahead, closing prices were well down from the tops in many instances and some early gains were converted into loses, reflecting active profit-selling in the final few minutes of trading.

Turnover Expands

The Associated Press 60-stock average rose .3 of a point, to 41.1. Transactions amounting to 919,300 shares were the largest since September 25 and compared with 597,280 Monday.

Wall Street expectation of some favorable points in the rail board's report and improved sentiment on the market's technical position led to a good demand for stocks in the forenoon. Steels, motors and aircrafts alternated as leaders until interests shifted to the rails in the late procedeings.

Wage increases recommended by the President's board, 7½ per cent for workers in the five operating brotherhoods and 13½ per cent average for the nonoperating employes, were regarded with mixed feelings in financial offices after the market's close.

The operating brotherhoods had demanded a 30 per cent boost and the nonoperating workers asked an increase of 30 cents an hour with a wage minimum of 70 cents an hour and two weeks vacation with pay. Managements and brotherhoods have 30 days to act on the board's proposals.

Steel Issues Strong

Stocks carrying plus marks at the close included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Johns-Manville, Westinghouse, Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific and American Tobacco. Erie preferred "A" recorded a 1941 high. American Can dipped to a new year's low.

Railroad bonds whirled upward at a lively pace in the closing minutes of today's market after publication of the committee's report recommending wage increases to rail workers and leaving the door open for a boost in freight and passenger tariffs to pay for the impost.

Total volume of $13,893,375, par value, was the biggest since last May 6 and compared with $6,452,100 on Monday. The Associated Press average of 20 rails ended up .7 of a point, the best gain in any day since the latter part of April.

B. & O. List in Van

Out in front of the advancing group were nearly a dozen issues of Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, including the convertibles of '60 which exchanged hands in the amount of $324,000, Chicago & North Western 5s at 18, Illinois Central 4¼s at 42½, Delaware & Hudson 4s at 56½, American & Foreign Power 5s at 67, New York Central 5s at 47, Northern Pacific 4s at 73¼, Southern Pacific 4½s at 50½ and Southern Railway 6½s at 88⅝.

United States Governments were rather quiet but steady on both the stock exchange and over the counter.

Maryland Drydock Co. Will Change Hands

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Shields & Co., investment bankers, announced tonight they had arranged to acquire stock control of Maryland Drydock Co., of Baltimore. Control formerly was held by Koppers Co.

It was understood Koppers would retain an interest in the concern, and that a public offering of Maryland Drydock securities might eventually be made.

Maryland Drydock Co., the announcement said, is planning to enlarge its capacity by about 75 per cent. About half its current business is for the Government, it added.

JOE PALOOKA — A Challenge — BY HAM FISHER

C'MON BRICK— GET UP.
C'MON CHAMP!
THIS IS SWELL!
I—I AINT IN THE HABIT OF PUTTIN' ON EGGSABISHUNS —FER NOTHIN'— I GIT BIG DOUGH FER FIGHTIN'—
THIS IS JUST A FRIENDLY THING. OH COME ON CHAMP.
AS LONG AS THE CHAMP AINT GOT THE COURAGE T'COME UP—I'LL GO FURTHER FOLKS—HE'S A YELLA CUR—HE BEAT UP LITTLE KNOBBY—YOU ALL KNOW KNOBBY——AN' I COME OUT HERE T'BEAT 'IM UP!! NOW STEP OUT HERE YA RAT! IF YA DON'T YOU'RE A MISERABLE COWARD!
I—I WOULDN'T DIRTY MY HANDS WITH A WASHED-UP HAS-BEEN.

WINNIE WINKLE — Business Going On As Usual — BY BRANNER

SAY, WINNIE, YOU DIDN'T HAPPEN TO HEAR ANYTHING ABOUT THE BOSS SELLING A BIG ORDER TO A GUY NAMED GEORGE GYPPER?
NO! I DID NOT!!
WELL, I ADVISED HIM AGAINST IT, BUT I'LL BET HE WENT AHEAD AND SOLD GYPPER AND I'LL ALSO BET HE GOT STUCK!
WHAT MAKES YOU THINK THAT?
HE'S BEEN ACTING WORRIED THE LAST FEW DAYS!
MR. BIBBS WORRIED? THAT'S JUST YOUR IMAGINATION, AD!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

JANE ARDEN Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. — For Freedom — BY MONTE BARRETT and RUSSELL ROSS

ARE THEY AFTER YOU?
THEY ARE—IF I AM TO ESCAPE, I'LL NEED YOUR HELP!
THE PLANE HAS LANDED
WHY SHOULD WE HELP AN ENEMY OF OUR COUNTRY?
ANOTHER ENEMY AGENT TO STARVE OUR FAMILIES—TORTURE OUR PEOPLE
THAT'S WHY I'VE COME BACK—TO HELP YOU—DON'T YOU RECOGNIZE ME? I AM RUPERT!
THE PRINCE! IT IS THE PRINCE!
YES SIR—HE WAS RUNNING—HE WENT THAT WAY!
GOOD—HE WON'T GET FAR!
WELL DONE, MY FRIEND—REMEMBER THIS, ALWAYS—HOLBEIN SHALL BE FREE!

SUPERMAN — Tink Fast, Charlie! — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

AS LOIS DRIVES TOWARD RALPH ROLAND'S OFFICE....
THE PROOF OF SUPERMAN'S INNOCENCE OF CHARLES DANVERS' DEATH IS HIDDEN IN ROLAND'S OFFICE... I AIM TO FIND IT!
BUT AS LOIS LANE ENTERS, SHE IS SIGHTED BY ROLAND'S NOT-TOO-BRIGHT LIEUTENANT, CHARLIE.
HEY! WHAT D'YOU WANT?
YOU!
ME? I AIN'T DONE NOTHIN'—AT LEAST, I THINK I HAVEN'T!
I'VE PROOF THAT YOU KILLED CHARLES DANVERS. YOU'RE COMING WITH ME TO POLICE HEADQUARTERS!
YOU GOT IT ALL WRONG, SISTER! I DIDN'T KILL HIM!
THEN WHO DID?
(—MY BLUFF... I THINK IT'S WORKING!!—)

Listen! with Glynn

Frazier Hunt, the well known foreign correspondent and C. B. S. news analyst, had an exclusive interview with Adolf Hitler once—undoubtedly one of the very first—and yet he didn't even bother to write it.

Furthermore, the chain of American magazines for which Hunt was then working wouldn't have printed the interview if he had written it. The reason seems strange today. Hitler was too obscure.

It was in 1922, during Christmas week. Uninvited, a strange young man came to Hunt's hotel room in Munich to tell and try to sell the story of the very youthful Nazi party. Even the Munich beer hall putsch was a year away, and the Nazis wanted publicity.

So Hitler sat on the edge of "Spike" Hunt's bed all of a winter's afternoon, telling the story that wasn't worth printing then. His "adjutant" was with him—a cripple who might have been, although Hunt can't remember, the same club-footed Paul Joseph Goebbels who now gets about all the Nazi publicity he wants as Germany's propaganda chief.

Of course, what Hitler had to say then is now told with great relish by Hunt in his nightly broadcasts over WJSV and the Columbia network at 6:10.

That and the other inside stories of the big names he's met in his widely traveled time—such names as Lenin, Sun Yat Sen, Trotsky, Churchill, Ghandi, Mussolini and innumerable others of like newsworthiness.

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — No Smoking, But Something Cooking — BY DALE ALLEN

WAIT A MINUTE, GABE! ....NOW YOU CAN COME IN!
WHEW! STORE EYE-LASHES AND EVERYTHING! AREN'T YOU PUTTING IT ON A BIT HEAVY FOR THIS HICK TOWN PARTY, ANGEL?
YOU SAID I WAS TO PLAY UP TO THAT YOUNG EDITOR, TOM KANE, DIDN'T YOU? OKAY, MR.-FLACK! WHEN I GET DONE WITH HIM TONIGHT, HE'LL START WRITING LOVE LYRICS ON HIS FRONT PAGE!
BUT, YOUR PARTNER FOR THE EVENING IS TO BE DRAWN BY LOT...!
SO WHAT? YOU'LL DO THE DRAWING, WON'T YOU?
DALE

MICKEY FINN — Static — BY LANK LEONARD

AND SHE'S ALL RIGHT?
SURE, MICKEY! THE EXCITEMENT WAS A LITTLE TOO MUCH FOR HER—SO SHE WENT DOWN TO THE COTTAGE! BUT THAT'S NOT THE ONLY THING I CAME BACK TO TELL YOU—
—I CALLED THE TANKSVILLE HOSPITAL AND WHITE IS GOING TO PULL THROUGH!
GOSH—THAT'S SWELL!
WELL, I'LL BE LEAVING NOW! YOU'D BETTER STAY HERE WITH THEM TONIGHT, PHIL!
I INTEND TO, MR. KING! SLEEP IS WHAT THEY NEED—AND I'M GONNA SEE THAT THEY GET IT!
ZZZZ- GLUK-ZIPP! SNORT! GURGLE-BRRRZK
OH, THAT'S NOTHIN'! WAIT'LL HE REALLY GETS STARTED!

MR. AND MRS. — Just a Social Outcast — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL and ELLISON HOOVER

HEY, VI! DO YOU SCENT YOUR SKIN WITH A PERFECT PERFUME THAT IS A MATCH FOR YOUR EGO?
WHAT ARE YOU TALKING ABOUT?
DOES YOUR PERSONALITY ENDOW YOU WITH AN AURA NOT SURROUNDING THE AVERAGE WOMAN?
I DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU MEAN
GOSH, I'M AFRAID YOU'RE JUST HOPELESSLY OUT OF THE RUNNING. YOU DON'T BELONG
DON'T BELONG TO WHAT? WHAT HAVE YOU BEEN READING?
I'M READING THE BALLYHOO OF A NEW PERFUME. A COUPLE OF DROPS ON YOUR HANDKERCHIEF AND YOU'RE SOCIALLY SECURE
I'LL GET A BOTTLE WHEN WE'VE BOUGHT OUR YACHT

DIXIE DUGAN — A Pining Heart — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

SHALL WE GO TO A MOVIE?
YOU GO
I APPRECIATE HER FEELINGS, DIXIE—BUT AFTER ALL—
I'LL DO HER WORK FOR HER, MR. BRUDWAY!
TELEPHONE, DIXIE!
THANKS!
YES—YES, I CAN TALK—MICKEY'S IN THE NEXT ROOM! OH, REALLY—SOMETHING ABOUT MICKEY?? I'M SURE MR. BRUDWAY WILL LET ME COME RIGHT OVER—O.K.—I'LL COME ALONE—BYE NOW!

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Understudy — BY FRANK MARTINEK

WELL, GENTLEMEN, WE'VE SPIKED THE INVASION OF GREENLAND. I'VE RADIOED TO WASHINGTON THAT WE'RE HOMEWARD BOUND
THAT CERTAINLY SUITS ME, CAPTAIN
IMPATIENT TO START SOLVING THAT NEW ENGLAND MYSTERY, WINSLOW?
YES SIR. I'VE WORKED OUT A PLAN.
FROM THE EVIDENCE IT'S MY GUESS THAT IT WAS THE INVADER'S INTENTION—AFTER ESTABLISHING AN AIR BASE HERE—TO FLY AN AGENT TO NEW HAMPSHIRE TO CONTACT THAT MYSTERIOUS SCIENTIST, JACOB VENTOR
THIS LETTER WE FOUND INTRODUCES THE BEARER TO VENTOR AS THE HOMELAND'S SECRET AGENT G 22—
AND THE BEARER? THAT'S GOING TO BE ME!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

MR. GIMMICK! WE'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR YOU! CHIEF WAHOO HAS AGREED TO FINANCE YOUR INVENTION!
EUREKA! COME DOWN IN THE BASEMENT, CINDY LOU! I'VE JUST FINISHED A MODEL!
BEHOLD! A MODERN MIRACLE!
IT—IT LOOKS VERY COMPLICATED! WHAT IS IT?
IT IS A MACHINE WHICH WILL REVOLUTIONIZE LIFE ON THIS PLANET! MY CHILD, YOU ARE GAZING UPON GIMMICK'S SUPER SUN!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

SO LONG, MR. NELO!
SWING OUT, KID! WE MAY BE ABLE TO OVERTAKE AURORA AND HER KIDNAPER BEFORE THEY REACH GLOVER MINE!
KING! WAIT! I SEEM TO HAVE FORGOTTEN HOW TO NAVIGATE ON THESE GREASED SEVEN-LEAGUE STAVES!
IT ISN'T THAT, KID. IT'S THIS HARD CRUST! GOTTA WATCH IT—OOOOPS!
I'M WATCHING, KING! HAPPY LANDINGS!

DONALD DUCK — Starting From Scratch — BY WALT DISNEY

From a Tiny Calico Counter Grew a National Institution

-To Serve The Nation's Capital!

- Calico and crinoline . . . lavender and lace . . . these were prime essentials in the "Nineties" . . . the "Fashion Firsts" when Grandma did her shopping at The Hecht Co.
- But calico and crinoline went out . . . and motor cars came in . . . and radio . . . and airplanes . . . and what was once a tiny hamlet became a great Metropolis . . . nerve-center of the nation.
- We grew along with Washington . . . and kept an even pace beside the Capital's development. And built our future on an ever-expanding service to the public.
- It was the creed of our Founders, Mr. M. S. Hecht and Mr. Alexander Hecht, that every customer's dollar must buy one hundred cents in value . . . that quality must always be considered first . . . and that only the best is good enough.
- And so America's great manufacturers gave into our keeping their honored trade-names and their famous labels. So that today, from roof to basement, you'll find an almost endless gallery of the finest names in American industry . . . and the matchless products of our greatest factories and designers.
- And all the way from Maine to California, they talk about The Hecht Co. . . . as not only a great store in the Nation's Capital, but the store of Nationally Famous Merchandise.
- And though the counters piled high with calico are gone . . . and in their place a score of fine salons and brilliant shops . . . you'll find the friendliness and the service haven't changed . . . but more and more abundant with the years.
- Today we look in retrospect on almost fifty years of growth . . . on almost half a century of service to our neighbors. And as our building program nears completion, we rededicate ourselves to the ideals on which our store was founded . . . and think again of the Tiny Calico counter that grew to be a National Institution . . . serving the Nation's Capital.

You Are Invited to

THE NEW AND GREATER HECHT CO.

FORMAL OPENING AND RECEPTION . . . ON WEDNESDAY EVENING, NOV. 12th, at 8 o'clock
